Philadelphia Flyers salvaged some of the National Hockey League's battered pride Sunday by beating Central Red Army from the Soviet Union 4-1. The game was halted for 14 minutes in the first period when Russian coach Konstantin Loktev pulled his team off the ice as a protest against "animal hockey" being played by Philadelphia. Page 10.

Victoria Cougars could have used some Philadelphia muscle. Short staffed, the Cougars nonetheless turned in a gallant performance before bowing 8-7 to New Westminster when a Victoria player inadvertantly scored the game winner in the third period of Saturday's Western Canada Hockey League meeting. Page 11.

Victoria Scorpions improved their chances of finishing atop the Dogwood Senior Men's Basketball League standing by rallying for a 77-73 victory over Vancouver Athletics Sunday. Page 15.

A coaching change in the NHL is working for New York Rangers, but not for Washington Capitals. Rangers won two games for new coach John Ferguson, the hapless Caps lost their seventh straight since Tommy McVie took over. Capitals now are winless in 21 consecutive games—to equal a dubious record shared by the 1944 Rangers and the 1951 Chicago Black Hawks. Page 10.

Victoria Vikettes have no problems winning. They made it eight straight in Canada West University Athletic Association play by defeating Alberta's Pandas in women's basketball. Victoria's Vikings, however, suffered their first loss, 77-69, to Alberta's Golden Bears. Page 12.

IMPOSSIBLE NOW POSSIBLE—McGEER

ICBC Rates 'Palatable'

Proposals for new rate structures under discussion by the provincial cabinet this afternoon will be palatable to the public and still financially responsible.

That was the word from Education Minister Pat McGeer prior to the meeting. Insurance Corp. of B.C. officials in Vancouver worked over the weekend on the new proposals which McGeer brought to Victoria at noon today.

The minister said in Vancouver that all sorts of options thought impossible earlier now are possible.

And he acknowledged that the new possibilities are a result of massive adverse public reaction to his Jan. 2 announcement that ICBC premiums would increase more than 100 per cent effective March 1.

"I promise the public that whatever we do, we will come forward with a plan that will make it easy for them to shoulder the burden," said McGeer. "There is no question the public must work to solve this financial dilemma."

He said he doubts his proposal to cabinet will be made public after the meeting, adding that the rate structures must be approved and made public soon because renewal forms must be sent out.

Meanwhile, in Terrace, Socred backbencher Cyril Shelford said the cabinet will reconsider plans by ICBC to abolish territorial discounts for car insurance.

Shelford, MLA for Skeena, said he and Howard Lloyd (SC-Fort George) have been assured by Premier Bennett and McGeer, that the cabinet will study the ICBC proposal.

Norman Bortnick, the crown corporation's general manager, announced Jan. 2 at a joint news conference with McGeer that the discounts, introduced by the NDP government as a method of equalizing insurance premiums throughout B.C., would end.

Shelford said that he believes the differential will not be dropped. He also said northern increases in Autoplan could be less than 100 per cent.

CHRISTIE

CRIME WRITER DEAD

LONDON (AP) — Agatha Christie, 85-year-old queen of British mystery story writers, has died, her publishers announced today.

Miss Christie, who wrote The Mousetrap, the longest running play in British theatre history, and at least 84 novels that sold an estimated 350 million copies, died at her home in Wallingford, 55 miles west of London.

Her books had been translated into at least 103 languages, 16 more than Shakespeare's works. On top of her prolific output, she also wrote 19 plays, books of poetry, children's stories and a book on archeology.

"It's murder," she once said describing the writing of her tales of death and detection. "People think writing is easy for me. But it isn't."

Snow On Way

A large Pacific storm moving toward the coast will bring wind, snow, rain and continuing cold tonight and Tuesday in the capital region.

Up-island centres from the Malahat north had scattered snow at the weekend, some of which fell on Saanich Peninsula Sunday, and driving conditions were hazardous. Heavy rain Saturday caused basement flooding in parts of Victoria. To 10 p.m. Sunday 8.9 mm was recorded.

The storm centre is moving rapidly and its frontal edge was to pass over Victoria where temperatures near freezing would cause two or three hours of snowfall after midnight tonight, followed by slight warming and rain that is likely to extend through Tuesday into Wednesday.

The high Tuesday will be about 5 degrees (41 degrees F) with winds at about 15 mph, increasing Wednesday.

Mourners file past the flag-draped body of Chinese Premier Chou En-lai

Chou Cortege Viewed By Sobbing Thousands

By ROSS MUNRO
Special to the Times

PEKING — Thousands of Chinese men, women and children — many of them quietly moaning and sobbing — watched a slowly moving cortege Sunday carry the remains of Chou En-lai through Tien An Men Square in the heart of Peking.

It was exactly 5 o'clock when the blue and white van, draped with black and yellow crepe and bearing the premier's remains, passed in front of Tien An Men — the Gate of Heavenly Peace which serves as the national emblem of the People's Republic of China.

The appearance of the funeral van transformed the crowd. A moment earlier the people were curious onlookers, alerted by the lines of soldiers and policemen that something momentous yet unannounced was about to happen. But as the van passed and the people were certain they were watching the remains of Chou go by, a soft wave of sniffling and moaning was all that broke the silence. Men, women and teen-agers — who only a moment earlier had been jockeying for a better vantage point — stood still and bit their lips as tears rolled down their cheeks.

Almost 150 curtained sedans and red flag limousines — presumably carrying China's top leadership and Chou's family and friends — slowly followed the funeral van past Tien An Men, whose magenta color was blood red in the dusk.

All indications were that Chou's body was being taken to a creamtorium in the west of Peking. Late Sunday night, crowds of Chinese were gathering around Tien An Men in anticipation of the arrival of Chou's ashes at the Workers' Cultural Palace. It is here that resident foreigners and Chinese will pay their condolences beginning today.

A grand memorial ceremony, the closest thing China has to a funeral, will be held Thursday for a limited group of Chinese officials, family members and friends.

As the motorcade passed into the distance down the boulevard of Eternal Peace, the mourners all seemed to quickly regain their composure. Then some saw China's gold-starred red flag which had been flying at half mast in the middle of the square, being hauled down and suddenly scores of young people began running toward the soldier who had wrapped the flag around a staff. The soldier, who appeared to be in his late teens, ignored the young people swirling around him as he resolutely marched straight ahead and into the Workers' Cultural Palace.

Many of the thousands who watched the cortege had wandered over from the monument to the People's Heroes which stands south from the Tien An Gate. All afternoon hundreds and sometimes thousands of people milled around the white marble terraces of the monument where a distinctively Oriental form of organized mourning was under way.

Groups of middle school students, wearing or holding white paper flowers of mourning, impassively marched up the steps of the monument and laid a wreath at the foot of the tall marble slab.

Afterward, on the main shopping street of Wang Fu Ching, people were lining up to buy souvenir copies of the Friday edition of People's Daily which carried the obituary notice for Chou and which had been repeatedly broadcast through China from before dawn Friday. In the stores, crowds were buying silk or paper white flowers or portraits of Chou.

ROME (Reuter) — Italian President Giovanni Leone opens talks with political leaders today in the hope of solving the government crisis and avoiding premature general elections which might bring the Communists to power.

Nyet for Kremlin

TOKYO (AP) — Premier Takeo Miki today rejected a proposal by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko that their governments conclude a friendship treaty while putting off settlement of the Japanese demand for return of four Japanese islands occupied by the Soviets at the end of the Second World War, sources close to the Japanese foreign ministry reported.

Blacks Riot

GWELO, Rhodesia (Reuter) — Police opened fire on rioting blacks here Sunday night, killing one man and injuring another. About 20 youths were involved in the rioting, believed to have been caused by arguments between rival nationalist factions.

Farmers Protest

LISBON (Reuter) — Portuguese farmers, demonstrating their anger to the government over a controversial agrarian-reform law, have threatened to cut off Lisbon's food supplies if the law is not suspended.

Ulster Peace Plan

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson today announced a plan of tough measures to curb growing violence in Northern Ireland's South Armagh border area. He said the British government is determined to protect "all its citizens there."

LAST ESCAPER BACK IN JAIL

Peter George MacLean, 24, the last of 10 inmates who escaped from Wilkinson Road jail Dec. 16 to return to custody was sentenced to four months in jail when he appeared in Victoria provincial court this morning.

MacLean, his hair dyed a bright strawberry blond, pleaded guilty to escape. He turned himself in to Victoria police Saturday night.

The other nine inmates who took part in the mass breakout were recaptured within 40 hours of the escape.

Angola Fate Now Rests With Amin

Times News Services

ADDIS ABABA — Deadlocked African leaders seeking peace in Angola today turned to Ugandan president Idi Amin to steer the Organization of African Unity past the most serious crisis in its 13-year history.

Amin, the burly, controversial OAU chairman, cracked tension-easing jokes Sunday as the 46 delegates traded insults and threats at the emergency summit.

Conference sources said it would be up to Amin — whose election as chairman last year was criticized by many African leaders — to heal the rift over how to end Angola's devastating civil war.

They said 22 states — two short of a majority — supported recognition of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola in its struggle against two pro-Western factions in the former Portuguese colony. Zambia president Kenneth Kaunda, supporting the West left the summit before it ended saying the session had failed.

In a switch from its long-established foreign policy, normally conservative Nigeria led the pro-Marxist caucus and hailed the Soviets for their "heroic role in African liberation."

The PMLA, meanwhile, today flew three white South African prisoners of war to the summit as evidence of foreign intervention in the former Portuguese colony.

Premier Lopodo Nascimento, arrived with the captives in a last-minute effort to swing deadlocked delegates in favor of OAU recognition for his group.

Earlier at the conference, a black U.S. congressman described involvement as "Kissinger's folly," and said it may be "the most serious foreign policy miscalculation" the United States has ever made.

"Regrettably President Ford has blindly followed Kissinger's folly."

On the war front, Soviet-backed forces have been hit by workers' strikes on their southern front and face a potential outbreak of typhoid fever in their capital, monitored radio broadcasts said today.

BUYERS' MARKET

LISBON (Reuter) — The Lisbon stock exchange opened today for the first time since April, 1974 but dealing was suspended after 30 minutes when no sellers could be found.

Under its new rules, the exchange will for the moment only deal in fixed interest stocks.

Finance ministry officials, however, said they cannot foresee any chance of resuming trading in ordinary shares in the immediate future. Most of the companies whose shares were traded previously have been nationalized.

Banks and companies will, until the end of February, only be allowed to buy, and not sell, stocks.

Bombs Near UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Three pipe bombs timed to go off at 3 p.m. EST were found today on a ramp outside the UN library a few hours before the Security Council was scheduled to start its formal debate on the Middle East.

Police said the three bombs were enclosed in a single package near a work ramp of a subway line at First Avenue and 42nd Street, The ramp is located beneath the Dag Hammaraskjold Memorial library.

Police said the package contained a timing device set to go off at 3 p.m., but it was not immediately known how powerful the bombs were.

The security council was scheduled to start its formal debate on the middle east at 3:30 p.m., a half-hour after the devices were set to explode.

McGeer Fires Five At North College

Five NDP appointees to Northwestern Community College were fired by cabinet order last week.

One of the councillors has called the move "an unprecedented political invasion of B.C.'s college system," but Education Minister Pat McGeer said the five refused to obey a Social Credit government order.

McGeer told college councils to take no action binding on their successors but the Northwestern Council planned to hire a new principal, for campuses in Kitimat and Terrace.

Peter Burton, vice-chairman of the council until he was fired Thursday, said the college began to look for a new principal last year and several weeks had narrowed choices to a short list.

Interviews were being set up with potential candidates when McGeer issued his order for councils to not make any new moves until the new government-chosen members were appointed.

Burton said council members decided to disobey the statement because they considered it undue political interference for the college.

He said he believes the real reason for the firings is the new government's objection to council policies such as having courses in which working people, women and Indians can participate rather than classes solely for university entrance.

Skeena Socred MLA Cyril Shelford said he knew little about the situation despite Burton's charge the MLA wanted to purge NDP appointments from the council.

McGeer denied the charge of political interference and said Northwestern is the only college which disobeyed his request.

"But I would say since there will be changes made in the make-up of councils and in the direction from the government, I think it would only have been courtesy to wait until a new council is appointed before decisions are made."

CONVICTS RIOT IN ARGENTINE

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Three hundred prisoners at a maximum security prison in southern Argentina rioted Sunday and took 10 guards hostage, prison officials said.

No injuries were reported in the revolt at the Bahia Blanca federal penitentiary, 350 miles south of here. Soldiers and police surrounded the prison as officials were reported to be negotiating with the convicts.

Prison sources said revolt leaders were demanding "better treatment and other things."

The total prison population was not given, but sources said 30 political prisoners accused of being guerrillas are held there.

The prison mutiny was the second in Argentina this month. About 200 prisoners in a maximum security prison at Neuquen, 900 miles south of Buenos Aires, held 17 guards hostage for three days earlier this month.

Bloodless Coup in Ecuador

QUITO (UPI) — A three-man junta that took control of Ecuador's military government in a bloodless weekend reshuffle says the military will remain in power until the end of 1977.

The commanders of the army, navy and air force eased Gen. Guillermo Rodriguez Lara out of the presidency early Sunday, a few hours after his daughter's wedding at the government palace.

Political and diplomatic sources said the three junta members—Gen. Guillermo Duran Arcentales of the army, Vice-Admiral Alfredo Poveda Borbone and Gen. Luis Leoro Franco of the air force—are conservatives interested mainly in increasing Ecuador's oil production and stimulating the economy.

The only opposition reported came in the form of critical statements by several former cabinet officers, one of whom was arrested last week; by civilian politicians who wanted immediate elections; and by a retired colonel, Jorge Ceballos, who announced he was leading a "resistance command" at the border town of Tolcan, 125 miles north of the capital.

Military sources said they doubt any troops were supporting Ceballos. Various military commanders and garrisons issued statements pledging loyalty to the junta.

The junta ordered a curfew but cancelled it Sunday night with the explanation that there had been no disorders. However, it closed down Radio Quito after it broadcast a statement by Gen. Raul Puma Velasco, the jailed former minister of public works, calling Gen. Duran "inept" and pledging a struggle "for the welfare and the security of the Ecuadorean people."

The police also locked the editors of El Comercio, a newspaper that owns the radio station, in the newspaper plant.

Ecuador in recent years has marketed abroad large crops of bananas, rice and other agricultural products as well as oil, but in 1975 a drop in oil exports resulted in a $300-million deficit in the balance of trade.

This was responsible for higher prices that led to considerable labor and student agitation and urging from civilian politicians for a return to elected civilian government. In September, Rodriguez Lara survived an attempted coup in which 20 persons were killed and 100 others were wounded. Then the government was plagued by a series of strikes.

Beirut Toll 100 In Day

BEIRUT (AP) — At least 100 persons were killed and 173 were wounded in 24 hours as Palestinian guerrillas battled Christian militiamen blockading two Palestinian refugee camps on the northeast side of this Lebanese capital, police reported.

"This is one of the highest casualty tolls for a day during the war," a police spokesman said today.

Police reported Moslem and Christian gunmen also were battling with mortars and machine-guns in the downtown banking and business centre.

"Both sides also poured reinforcements into the hotel area" a spokesman said. "They are evidently preparing for another major eruption in this district."

Although 5,000 guerrillas were reported thrown into the attack, the Palestinians were unable to break through to the Jisr el-Basha and Tal Zataar refugee camps.

The Christian blockade preventing food convoys from reaching the camps began a week ago, touching off a new round of fighting in the civil war and bringing more Palestinian guerrillas into the fight than ever before.

The predominantly Christian officer corps of the Lebanese army was reported infuriated because the guerrillas captured a food convoy Sunday that the army was trying to escort to the camps.

"If there was any sympathy among the officers left for the guerrillas it is now finished," an army spokesman, said.

The convoy was made up of six armored personnel carriers, three armored cars and a tank. The army spokesman said when it reached the Moslem Chiyah section "it was suddenly attacked, overpowered and captured by hundreds of Palestinian guerrillas and commandeered to the refugee camp of Sabra in western Beirut."

Although the entire convoy was returned before a 12-hour army ultimatum expired at dawn today, the spokesman said the army will make no more attempts to help supply the refugee camps.

The two camps are on a hillside overlooking the northeastern approaches to the city, including the highway between Ashrafieh, Beirut's largest Christian residential quarter, and a Christian area inland around Mount Lebanon.

Another refugee camp on the northern outskirts of Beirut was encircled by the right-wing Christian militiamen during the night following hours of mortar and rocket duels with defending guerrillas.

'Blatant Discrepancies' Seen In Makeup of Camosun Staff

Day-care and discrimination against women are concerns stated in special Equal Opportunity report prepared for Camosun College.

Although there is no overt discrimination against women at the college, the report prepared under direction of chairwoman Mimi Robertson recommends a series of steps to ensure equality of men and women.

The "imbalance is extreme" between the number of men and women holding key positions in the college administration, she says.

"There exists in the colleges' faculty and staff numbers blatent and obvious discrepancies between men and women totals," she says.

Recommended is an affirmative action proposal to provide institutionalized channels for re-addressing the imbalance.

In primary paid administrative positions, all nine posts are held by males; in other positions, 31 of 35 are held by men.

College chairman Dr. Hal Knight said today the report has been referred to the administration for further recommendations.

He agreed "there is a need for greater emphasis in hiring women, but we have never had an application for (top posts) in administration from women."

Knight also approved of the recommendation that a day care centre with facilities for at least 25 children be established by the fall of 1977.

The centre, however, will have to wait until the college can find some extra space, likely when expansion, planned for September, takes place. The provincial government has not yet given final approval for the renovations, however.

At the college's counselling centre, Robertson reports "no overt discrimination," but she suggests the college should have a more positive program for women — to reach out into the community and make known the opportunities available.

Other planks in the affirmative action program include:

—recruiting practices to encourage and actively search for women to fill posts;

—awareness workshops on sex discrimination for faculty and staff;

—that the council accept established guidelines spelling out terminology, attitudes and course content.

(Guidelines would attempt to break job stereotypes for both men and women; paint married women who work outside the home in a favorable light and represent both sexes as whole human beings with human strengths and weaknesses, among other things.)

—the council should also work out with unions and the student body adequate procedures to redress grievances of discrimination on the basis of sex.

Misinterpreted—McCarthy

VANCOUVER (CP — Provincial secretary Grace McCarthy said Sunday that her decision to close the provincial Status of Women office has been misinterpreted by labor, education and feminist groups in the province.

Organizations throughout B.C. fired off telegrams Friday to McCarthy and Premier Bill Bennett, protesting the closure of the women's office and the dismissal of its co-ordinator, Gene Errington.

"It's too soon to take a strong reaction to a new government's move which was simply not to renew an old contract an old government had made," McCarthy said in an interview from Toronto.

"I'm sure there are many, many things the NDP government did in the past 3½ years that will not be renewed."

Mrs. Errington was appointed Status of Women co-ordinator a year ago. She was responsible for examining the status of women in the province, for evaluating government policies and projects affecting women and for allocating funds for women's projects in B.C. communities.

McCarthy said her department will consider submissions for grants in the future.

HOTEL BLAST CAUSED BY GAS?

FREMONT, Neb. (AP) — The manager of the Pathfinder Hotel says he "smelled gas all over the place; and tried to call the gas company several times in the hour preceding the weekend explosion that blew the hotel off its foundations and left as many as 20 persons dead.

Manager Jim Rhodus said that after getting a recorded message, he called the local emergency number to get help. Some time after three crew members of the gas company arrived Saturday, a blast ripped through the basement of the six-storey building, collapsing the first floor into the basement.

Twelve bodies had been recovered by late Sunday, but the death toll was expected to reach about 20 when all the missing were found.

Aided by two cranes and several payloaders, firemen dug through mounds of concrete, brick and wood today, searching for more bodies.

Officials say the cause of the blast has not been determined, but an investigation is being conducted by the state fire marshal's office. A final determination is not expected for several weeks.

One of the missing is Bill Van Meter, 56, one of the three Nebraska Natural Gas Co. employees who were in the hotel's basment investigating the report of a gas leak when the explosion occured.

Police Chief Fred Whitt said there was no hope of finding anyone alive in the rubble.

Coroner F. A. Gossett said between six and nine bodies may still be buried in the debris but an accurate count was impossible because of the transient nature of the hotel guests.

A total of 11 bodies were recovered Saturday, four from the upper floors, seven from the caved-in basement area near where officials believe the blast was ignited.

The 12th victim, Lomius Hurska, a barber who operated a shop in the hotel, was found in the basement late Sunday afternoon.

Riot Police Rout Workers in Spain

MADRID (CP) — Riot police routed workers with tear gas and clubs in the centre of the Spanish capital and stormed on to Madrid University campus today to break up demonstrations as Spain's worst labor strife in years made thousands idle for the third straight day.

No injuries or arrests were immediately reported.

Police swooped down on the workers as they demonstrated for higher pay.

They also poured on to the Madrid University campus in buses, jeeps and on horseback after 500 law and philosophy students began marching across the campus, blocking traffic and shouting "Down with dictatorship!"

The protesters urged student-worker unity for a general strike and called on King Juan Carlos "to listen because the people are in struggle."

Police earlier closed a suburban subway line after a bomb ripped rails before daily service began. Subway officials said six other bombs were found.

Police said nobody was hurt by the explosion. But a subway spokesman said damage was extensive. He said he does not know when service will be restored.

The 3,800 subway workers were on strike for five days last week for higher pay. The workers, who make an average of $3,120 a year, demanded $625 more a year; the government agreed to $500.

A meeting of bank employees was called today to discuss a nationwide bank strike. More than a score of Madrid's banks were hit by work stoppages last week. The bank employees' contracts do not expire until the end of the year, but the workers are demanding more pay to cover increases in the cost of living.

The coming week will see a serious challenge to the new government of King Juan Carlos which has promised to liberalize Spain gradually in the post-Franco era, political observers said.

POSTAL UNION DELAYS TRIAL

Union disciplinary action against 13 persons who crossed picket lines here during the postal strike in October has been postponed for a week.

Postal union president Stan Darlington said today the strikebreakers will face a tiral board as provided for in the union's constitution next Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Union Centre.

The meeting was to have been held Sunday, but one of the trial board members could not attend, said Darlington president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers local here.

Strikebreakers could face fine or suspension from the union, as is happening in other locals across the country where picket lines were not respected.

Mayor in a Mess Over Sewer Link

CAMPBELL RIVER — Mayor Kenneth Forde is running afoul of his own council by refusing to hook into a new sewage system.

Forde said he won't connect his premises to the new sewer until he has assurance from the municipality that the gradient is sufficient to permit the system to flow. The municipality refuses.

He said today the municipal engineering department sets a 1½ per cent minimum grade on sewer connections and that the line required to connect Forde's property would meet that requirement.

Forde does not argue with the minimum grade, but he said he can't get a guarantee that his connection would work. He said the consultants also refuse such an assurance.

About a dozen other property owners also have refused to make a sewer connection by the deadline which originally expired last year and has been extended to the end of March 1976.

Forde said he had not discussed the matter with them but felt that they could be in a similar position.

The mayor said he is prepared to wait until the municipality takes steps to make the connecton and add the cost to Forde's tax bill, as it is authorized to do.

It could also charge Forde with failure to meet the provisions of sewer bylaws, which carries a penalty of $200 fine and 30 days in jail.

Forde said he thinks the new sewer system, to serve more than 1,000 households, was insufficiently designed and he wants the municipality to take the onus of responsibility for it.

He said one home he knows of found the line installed by the municipality was six inches too high for the connection. Another house could hook up fixtures on its second floor but not on the ground floor.

Forde said he had taken a site level at his home and found there was not enough grade for the sewer to work.

"I am one of those people who don't like a few laying down the law for the many without them having a say in it," Forde declared. It was a reason why Forde had differences with council from time to time.

"They see things one way and I see them another," he said.

BUILDING RISES FOR SAANICH

Construction in Saanich substantially increased in 1975, 1,414 permits being issued for a total value of $56,394,827.

In 1974, 1,256 permits were issued for a total value of $27,471,950.

A total of 1,210 housing units were created in 1975, including 808 homes or duplexes. Residential construction was valued at $27,742,225.

In the previous year 816 housing units were built, 520 of them single-family homes or duplexes, for a total value of $15,682,700.

Eighty-two permits were issued in December for a total value of $2,094,395. Of these 52 were for homes or duplexes, residential permits making a total value of $1,816,550.

In December 1974, 60 permits were issued, valued at $2,820,820. Eighteen of these were for single-family homes or duplexes with a total value of $678,600.

The largest permit taken out in December was for an $85,000 warehouse addition at 60 Crease Avenue.

Costly Condos Seen for Site

Townhouses, costing well in excess of $100,000 each, are being planned for the exclusive nine acres overlooking Arbutus Cove in Saanich, generally known as the old R. H. B. Ker property.

Details of the project were revealed to about 60 Gordon Head residents at a special meeting in the former Ker home on the property.

Dominic Hanley bought the property in late 1975. Earlier in the year it had been listed on the market with a price tag of $1,360,000.

Hanley plans to build 36 townhouse units on the property, retaining the old home as one unit and building another unit on to the old house.

Hanley hopes to develop the property through the means of a landuse contract between him and Saanich.

Friday's meeting was to allow nearby residents to discuss the project before Hanley makes his official application to council.

Municipal planner Gil Laurenson said today that it would be a "criminal shame" to allow subdivision of the property under the present zoning.

The zoning now allows ½-acre lots on the area near Arbutus Road and one-acre lots on the waterfront.

"This is a better use of the land," Laurenson said. "The property has some beautiful trees and it would be a criminal shame to lose them through subdivision."

Road Charges Looming

Two of the three road fatalities in the province over the weekend occurred in the Greater Victoria area, and a 16-year-old Saanich youth may be charged in connection with one of them.

Alvia Maureen Munro, 19, of 11-1465 Fort died Saturday afternoon after a car left the Trans Canada Highway just south of the Sooke Lake Road intersection and slammed into a power pole.

And late Friday night Elizabeth Ann Hughes, a 37-year-old deaf mute was truck down and killed by a hit and run driver as she and her husband Ken, also a deaf mute, were walking on Elk Lake Drive near Beaver Lake Park.

Saanich police said today a 16-year-old juvenile turned himself in to police the following morning.

Charges of failing to remain at the scene of an accident and criminal negligence are contemplated.

Colwood RCMP said Miss Munro was a passenger in the front seat of a car drjven by Kerry Allan Nobbs, 22, of 866 Tolmie. Her roommate Carol Thomson, 18, was riding in the back seat of the vehicle.

Police said it was raining heavily at the time when the car veered off the right side of the road and crashed into a pole, snapping the pole in three places.

Miss Munro died soon after the mishap which occurred at about 2 p.m. Nobbs and Miss Thomson received minor injuries, were taken to Victoria General Hospital and later released.

Colwood police said a mechanical inspection of the car would be undertaken this week.

In the third B.C. fatality, Raymond Donat Beaulieu, 47, of Maple Ridge died early Sunday when his semi-trailer truck skidded on snow and plunged over a 150-foot embankment seven miles east of Hope on the Hope-Princeton Highway.

Across Canada 21 people were killed in accidents over the weekend.

Since 1894, Raw Sewage

Like the medieval monks who argued endlessly about how many angels would fit on the head of a pin, local municipalities are now debating how many engineers should be employed as consultants on the Clover Point sewer outfall. Two years ago the Capital Regional Board agreed that two firms would be employed, one to handle the onshore facilities, another to design offshore construction. Victoria was a party to that agreement.

Now Mayor Mike Young has taken up where his predecessor left off, urging appointment of a single consultant. The question remains, why didn't Victoria voice its objections when the two-firm strategy was worked out two years ago? It is typical bureaucratic stupidity to backtrack now. Further adding to the confusion, the board's public works committee suggested last week that CRB hire a third set of engineers to oversee the first two.

This kind of idiocy has persisted for five years. Meanwhile, five million gallons of raw sewage flow daily into Juan de Fuca Strait just three feet below the low tide level. Much of this sewage simply flows back and forth — almost at the centre of Beacon Hill park's sea frontage — because the pipe does not reach out into strong tidal areas. Current plans envision a 6,400-foot pipe into the strait at an estimated cost of $8 million. A similar project at Macaulay Point has been very successful to date. Strong tidal action acts like a super tertiary treatment plant, breaking up the sewage and rendering it harmless, according to British studies. Ideally, a tertiary treatment plant is the only long-term answer if Puget Sound, Lower Mainland and southern Vancouver Island populations continue to increase and pollute local waters. At present funds are not available for such a solution. The long pipeline remains the best compromise at this time.

But even this relatively simple solution seems beyond the powers of our city fathers. A 1966 sanitary sewage study of Greater Victoria said Clover Point outfall is a main source of the pollution of shore waters and "sewage slick and gross solids are readily visible." It's been the same scene since 1894 when the outfall began its task. And still the politicians go back and forth, not unlike the sewage they endlessly discuss. Let us have no more fiddling on this important issue. Construction costs are said to be increasing two per cent each month. The $8 million estimate may soon be as rancid as the air over Clover Point. Quit arguing and build the thing.

" . . . gee, here's something interesting, tootsie . . . 1975 was International Women's Year . . . "

A Diffident Style

Perhaps it's just a difference of style. Perhaps it's inexperience compounded with natural shyness. But the Bennett administration's dealings with the public have been decidedly off-key in the brief period following the provincial election. Last Thursday's performance when the premier, accompanied by Finance Minister Evan Wolfe and Education Minister Dr. Pat McGeer, sidled out of a very brief press conference before reporters had finished asking questions is a case in point. When McGeer appeared to hang back, the premier went so far as to tug on his sleeve.

In itself, a small thing. A new government fumbling with the elaborate ritual of manners surrounding any power base. But then we harken back to the first few days following the election when Premier Bennett was "hermetically sealed" in a hotel suite choosing a cabinet. Party President Peter Hyndman, a non-elected Social Credit functionary, was relaying the premier's thoughts to an eager press. Then Dan Campbell, another non-elected Socred, announced a cutback in opposition support staff. Education Minister McGeer offhandedly told the public ICBC increases were the first of a series of unpleasant financial shocks, a hint that should have come from the finance minister or the premier. Highways Minister Alex Fraser implies ferry charges may increase, the minister responsible, Jack Davis later confirms that Fraser was right.

Where pray is Premier Bill Bennett? Little leaks and announcements from the wrong ministers or party hacks do not indicate a government of direction and thrust. There seems to be a hesitancy, an uncertainty in the manner in which things are done. Bennett should sort out the prerogatives in his cabinet. As premier he must be up front, ready to explain his government's policies. Walking out of a press conference he called himself is not only rude, but reveals a lack of preparedness. The premier of British Columbia cannot govern from afar, dealing with petitioners when it suits him and using underling as major policy oracles.

The Selling of the Olympics

News that the Olympic Organizing Committee has endorsed a cold treatment which contains a drug banned by the International Olympic Committee shouldn't surprise anyone. The Olympic Games and its star athletes are so brazenly tied to commercial exploitation it's a wonder a race is run or a shot put without some kind of ancillary advertisement accompanying each event. To be branded with the words "Official Supplier to the 1976 Olympic Games" automatically confers status on products, or so it would seem from the manufacturers' eagerness to get such an accolade.

That Olympic committees are so ready to demean the games by literally offering them for sale doesn't say much for current amateur athletic standards. Chocolate bars, soft drinks and myriad of other questionable products receive the official Olympic designation. If the world's greatest athletes feed on such sugar laden confections then they must be good or so goes the rationale. When the dentist competes against the Olympics the winner is preordained. The Olympic oath that every contestant repeats at the start of the games talks of " . . . the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and the glory of sport." It says nothing about the money one can make in selling ballpoint pens on television.

In the old days the victor of the games received a simple branch of wild olive. Today the winners receive gold medals. The change from ancient to modern carries its own unconscious irony. Perhaps if the Olympics had stayed with its original values we would see more of the true spirit of sportsmanship and less crass commercial reality.

JOHN WILDGUST

New Olympic Sport in Quebec

QUEBEC — Premier Robert Bourassa has made the completion of the Olympic games site in Montreal his government's number one priority this year as he gambles the province's political future against the three-week sports extravaganza.

Should the games be scrapped, there would be little reason to believe Bourassa could sweep to another election victory amid worsening economic tides and the slow, but steady, rise of the separatist Parti Quebecois.

Should the games be held successfully, however, the premier could engage in a round of chest-thumping whose echoes could ring the Liberals firmly back into power for another four years.

Bourassa says that he definitely is not planning to call an election this year, only three years after his steamroller victory in October of 1973.

A 1977 Election?

There are sources within the party who foresee a campaign in the spring of 1977, with a possibility for the premier, should conditions be adverse, to break tradition and hang on until 1978 for a fifth year in hopes that the political winds will change.

Despite Bourassa's unqualified statement that there will be no election this year, the Parti Quebecois, as usual, is not taking his word for gospel. PQ whip Marcel Leger has announced that the opposition forces have been alerted for action this year.

The logic for and against elections this year runs along these lines:

● A spring election, based on a guarantee that the Olympic Games would be held in July and August, could carry the Liberals to victory before taxpayers get the bill for the multi-million-dollar Olympic deficit. (According to Le Soleil, officials have already prepared an income surtax program to pay the deficit.)

● A fall election, after a successful Games, would carry the Liberals to power on the crest of Olympic hoopla amid boasts that Quebec had carried it off without Ottawa's help;

● No election this year would hopefully put a lot of time between Mr. Bourassa's hopes to retain power and the high cost of the Olympics and the poor economy.

Talk is rife in this new year, however, of a post-Olympics slump which will sweep the province — yet another factor in the Olympics-oriented political scene here.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau indicated in revealing the province's budget last spring, however, that he was holding back on capital construction projects such as roads so that something would be left to buoy up a slumping post-Olympic economy. The same performance is likely to be repeated in this year's inflation conscious budget.

ROBERT BOURASSA
. . . pondering an election

But the entire spectrum of political options for the Liberals is dominated by the Olympics.

Observers are wondering whether the province, after having snatched the Olympic stadium complex from the hands of Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, will be able to have the $300 million site ready by the delivery date at the end of June.

Quebec, after swallowing the mayor's "statistics" and promises for a "self-financing" games when city officials appeared at national assembly committees as early as 1973, waited until late last year to take over the site.

According to the province's estimate, the cost of the "modest" stadium complex had rocketed to $600 million from an original Drapeau estimate of $90 million — and there were fears expressed by cabinet ministers that Drapeau's stadium, complete with a parachuting roof, could not be completed on time.

With the "nationalization" of the site, Bourassa has taken entire, direct responsibility for the event — the possibility of election-winning glory or politically fatal cancellation.

Assorted Scandals

Hinged on the central Olympics theme, the political scene here has been splattered with reported scandals involving provincial Liberals with the government Quebec Liquor Corp., the formation of a new political party under former Liberal justice minister Jerome Choquette and the apparently growing strength of the Parti Quebecois.

While Municipal Affairs Minister Victor Goldbloom, the cabinet member now responsible for the Olympics, says he believes the Games sites will be ready on time, he adds with chilling candor:

"We know very well we've got a huge job in front of us, but if there are no further delays, I'm optimistic that we can get the job done."

With unions unhappy over wage controls and bone-chilling weather this winter, delays in construction are not impossible or even improbable.

In the political scrum of would-be political power grabbers, it would seem that the Olympics might give opponents a sporting chance.

Underwriters Reply

In the Times Dec. 19, there appeared an article by James Gray regarding registered retirement savings plans, Joe Thinks RRSPs a Rip-off.

Mr. Gray wrongly suggests that the income tax deduction for contributions to an RRSP is a snare and a delusion because the benefits are fully taxable when received. The fact is that RRSP are schemes for tax deferral, not tax avoidance. This tax deferral privilege is extremely valuable because the taxpayer can build a retirement fund completely sheltered from income tax during the accumulation period.

Look at an unimpeachable authority, the famous Carter report on taxation. Carter demonstrated the difference between registration and non-registration in the following table of figures. These figures demonstrate clearly the advantage of tax deferral, with two assumptions— retirement income is paid for 15 years, marginal tax rate is 50 per cent during the savings period and retirement period.

ANNUAL AFTER-TAX RETIREMENT INCOME FROM EACH $1,000 OF ANNUAL BEFORE TAX INCOME

	Saved for 20 years with an investment yield of 5%	7%	Saved for 40 years with an investment yield of 5%	7%
Not registered	$1,030	$1,220	$2,720	$ 3,670
Registered	$1,595	$2,250	$5,820	$10,960

Mr. Gray complains that an RRSP at maturity must be converted into a life annuity. That is precisely what an RRSP is for, retirement. The need is for a secure income guaranteed for life.

For example, a woman who has accumulated $50,000 in an RRSP by age 71, can convert the fund currently into an income of $524.74 per month guaranteed for at least 10 years and for the rest of her life thereafter. If she lives her normal life expectancy of 15.6 years she will receive a return of her capital plus interest for a total of $98,231. If she lives longer, the $524.74 per month will continue to roll in. Without the help of tax deferral her income would be substantially lower as shown by the above figures from the Carter Report. — Reginald L. Kayler, Q.C., CLU, executive Vice-President, Life Underwriters Association of Canada.

Elitist Attitude

At the same time that Dr. Pat McGeer coughs up cliches of "citizen responsibility," "restraint," and "Federal guidelines for the settlement of teachers' salaries," to one group of people he blatantly flouts and disregards the same principles in an irresponsible manner by doubling ICBC insurance rates. The total disregard of the effects on individuals, their livelihoods, and the economic future of British Columbia exposes an elitist attitude that not even the staunchest of Liberal diehards would tolerate.

Can Dr. McGeer really expect himself to be taken seriously?

His present approach suggests nothing short of the eventual garnishment of wages to meet government revenue problems. Let's see some of the flamboyant free enterprise ingenuity boasted about create revenue and original solutions.

The policy of any elected government should reflect both respect and responsibility to the electorate. If the attitude and policies of McGeer are an example for the students that he feels must "learn respect" for their teachers. Pity both pupil and teacher.

Let the private insurance companies wait an extra year Dr. McGeer and keep the people of B.C. solvent.—C. Meagher, 22 Helmcken Road.

Bank St. School

I would like to elaborate slightly on your article which covered the Monday evening encounter between Bank Street parents and the Victoria school board. The main thrust of our brief was that Bank Street school is not simply an ordinary school caught with its enrolment down. There is underway at Bank, in the early stages of experiment and evaluation, an extremely important oral communications program about which the public ought to know.

Oral communications theory is based on the premise that good reading and writing skills (literacy) depend on a good foundation in speaking and listening skills (oracy). Children learn to speak and listen before they learn to read and write, and the ease with which they learn the latter skills depends to a large extent on the range and quality of their oral language experience.

Bank's programme has been described by the board's own speech pathologist, Joyce Zink, as part of a "wave of the future" in education. She is extremely enthusiastic about what is happening at Bank and claims that there are "fewer serious speech problems at Bank than at any other school which I serve." Mrs. Zink is only one of a number of educational authorities who believe that oral communications has wide applicability and the potential to radically improve the quality of our schools.

As a result of continual mismanagement and ineptitude, the Victoria board has harrassed Bank Street school, reducing boundaries, removing students in order to fill classrooms built unnecessarily and at considerable public expense at Willows, and threatening regularly to close or alter substantially the nature and composition of the school. The most recent interference of this nature involves a recommendation to phase out the annex, moving all students in grades four to six to other schools and making the newer building a kindergarten to grade three operation. We feel that this decision is tantamount to a decapitation following a slow but systematic dismemberment.

The Victoria fire marshall examined Bank Street school in October and found it perfectly safe. Mr. Hawkins, the board's building consultant, admits that the school could be used for five or 10 years without any major capital expenditures. Teachers and parents are aware that the old building is structurally quite sound and educationally extremely suitable for the Communications Programme. So what is Mr. Ross really talking about? He is talking not about capital savings, but rather about operating expenses, which are no more than those of most other Victoria schools, and considerably less than some.

Bank Street school should be given the chance to survive and to grow, to make its contribution to the neighborhood and to the larger educational community.

Mrs. Greenwood, Mr. Knight, Mrs. Tempe and Mr. Temple seem to have come to these matters with open minds. Let us hope that their colleagues will consider the human and political ramifications of their so-called economy drive. Theirs may be a principle of false economy. — Gary Geddes, 1633 Wilmot Place.

Hatchet Approach

I know a family up country — man, wife, 19-year-old son and two younger children. Their car is 25 years old, well cared for, and they have a 10-year-old pickup. They need the use of both vehicles, parents and son. There is no other way to town, to work, to haul things.

They do whatever is available to earn an income, from fire-fighting to selling wild apples. Most of their time is taken up with the countless chores required of those engaged in any degree of self-sufficiency. They are skilled at minimizing their expenses. Survival depends on it.

If the "new" government of B.C. has its way, this family will be required to hand over one-third of their total income for car insurance this year. Yet the chance of these people having any kind of car accident is almost nil. Not only do they drive carefully, but they encounter very few other vehicles on the road during most of their trips.

Meanwhile, back in metropolis, foggy-headed people are literally bashing their way through traffic in their disposable auto-toys, putting ICBC deeper and deeper in the hole.

To raise the insurance rates for all B.C. drivers is not only unfair but also inappropriate. And it's ineffectual in the long term since it replaces any action to deal with the core causes of bad driving. The accident claims will continue to pour in at an ever-increasing rate.

It appears that we are in for more of the kind of narrow vision and hatcet approach to problem-solving that was so typical of the old Bennett regime. I strongly urge all motorists and commercial operators to boycott the rate increase by refusing to pay more than 14 per cent over last year's rate. — Tom Anderson, Shawnigan Lake.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of January 12, 1916

David Wark Griffiths' famous film Birth of a Nation was to open next week in Victoria at the Royal Theatre. Described in the advertisements as the eighth wonder of the world, the film was said to have cost $500,000 to produce and used 18,000 people and 3,000 horses in its making. A symphony orchestra of 30 musicians accompanied the silent epic, described by the promoters as "the greatest art conquest since the beginning of civilization." Ticket prices were 25 cents to $1 with loges going for $1.50.

Venezuela Leading Way for Canadian Oil Policy?

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

By ironic coincidence the federal government's late-blooming petroleum company, Petro-Canada, officially went into business January 1, the day Venezuela carried out history's biggest single takeover of American property by nationalizing the huge Venzuelan oil industry.

Canada's achievement took longer. Legislation to establish Petro-Canada was first introduced in May, 1974, three months ahead of the bill under which Venezuela has taken over, for $1.02-billion cash and five-year government bonds, more than 30 oil companies, including Venezuelan subsidiaries of Exxon Corporation, the Shell Oil Company, Gulf Oil Corporation and the Mobil Oil Corporation.

Canada's achievement is also more modest. Petro-Canada has the right, under the legislation that created it, to go into refining or marketing, but repeated government statements have maintained that that power is to be held in reserve — Petro-Canada's main role will be in exploration and development, and possibly in acting as buyer for imports from foreign state-owned oil companies.

The ironic link between the Venezuelan takeover and the opening of Petro-Canada is that Venezuela's action may have undercut significantly what was originally seen as one of Petro-Canada's main functions, that of direct dealing with the state-owned sales companies of foreign oil producers, chiefly Venezuela's CVP (Corporacion Venezolana del Petroleo). When Donald Macdonald, then minister of energy, visited Venezuela in October, 1973, his hosts suggested that Canada set up an agency or company to deal directly with CVP, thus bypassing the multinationals that controlled the industry in both countries. The oil sold through CVP would be oil collected as royalties from the multinationals in Venezuela.

Oil rigs in Lake Maracaibo . . . the giants bought out

This suggestion was not Venezuela's only contribution to Petro-Canada. As Ottawa developed its plans for the oil corporation it drew heavily on the model of the CVP, which had been in operation since 1960.

Now, however, it appears that, at least for the immediate future, there will be no place for Petro-Canada in the buying of Venezuelan oil, which supplies about 300,000 of Canada's imports of 800,000 barrels a day. For the Venezuelan government has announced that oil from its nationalized production this year will be sold through the multinationals, for resale by them to customers in Canada and the United States.

Venezuela's attitude toward the multinationals, now that it has taken over their properties, is dominated by a desire to maintain friendly relations and co-operation.

"We do not seek or want confrontation," President Carlos Andres Perez said in proclaiming nationalization.

In fact, Venezuela expects to keep the multinationals in the country, no longer as owners, but as the operators of service companies, set up under contracts now being negotiated, to supply technology for the nationalized industry. So the negotiations were conducted by Venezuela with an eye to maintaining long-term relations with the oil giants. Agreement on compensation was reached with all companies but one before the takeover. The one company left in limbo is Occidental Petroleum. A charge by a former employee of the company that Occidental had paid $3-million in bribes to government officials led to a halt in talks until an investigation is completed.

The Venezuelan nationalization is one in a series of takeovers—other recent examples were in Iraq and Kuwait, and Saudi Arabia is to take over this year the 40-per-cent American-owned interest in the Arabian American Oil Company—that have revolutionized the image of nationalization.

Traditionally, The New York Times comments, it "meant a radical purging of foreign devils with much rhetoric and, often, little thought to the future. Today, nationalization generally means long, businesslike negotiations terminating in an agreement sealed with a handshake and a smile."

It is not, of course, only the mellowed approach of the nationalizing governments that has persuaded the oil companies to amicable negotiations. The new clout acquired by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, brandished or not, has inevitably been on the bargaining table.

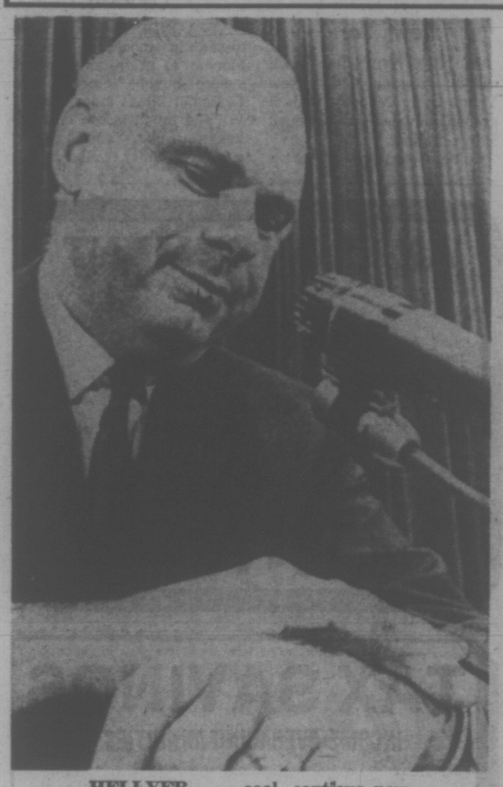
Venezuela, the producing country that first proposed the establishment of OPEC, has been among the more discreet in its use of this clout—it did not participate in the 1973 boycott and moved into nationalization less hastily than did a number of countries in the Middle East. But its moves have demonstrated, step by step, the benefits of a comprehensive policy, thoroughly considered, then methodically carried out.

Canada's needs are not Venezuela's. Venezuela's policy should not be Canada's. But if Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's visit to Venezuela this month were to convince him at last that a national energy policy is an urgent necessity, Canada will have been well served by the Venezuelan connection.

The 'Stationary Prophet' Makes His Move



HELLYER . . . cool, cautious now

By MARJORIE NICHOLS

OTTAWA — To appreciate the phenomenon of Paul Hellyer it is necessary to believe in miracles, guardian angels and predestination. Hellyer has violated almost every rule of conventional political wisdom and, yet, survived.

Last week, as he formally plunged into the crowded race for the leadership of the federal Conservative party, the wags had a field day. If he fails this time, Hellyer is going after Real Caouette's job. The Guinness Book of World Records has promised a picture along with official recognition of his claim to the world record for ideological indecision.

Within the Conservative party, however, no one is laughing. Paul Hellyer must be viewed as a most serious candidate. He must be considered among the top five in the run for Bob Stanfield's job, along with Claude Wagner, Sinclair Stevens, Flora MacDonald and Brian Mulroney.

A veteran and respected member of the Tory caucus predicts, in fact, that the contest will be reduced to a two-way race between Hellyer and Wagner. This MP, a lifelong Conservative who remains uncommitted, concedes that he finds the prospect bizarre, although not altogether unsettling.

Like Hellyer, Wagner is, of course, also a recycled Liberal, a former member of the Quebec cabinet. A further curiosity is that both of these former Grits are considered to be on the right of the Conservative spectrum.

No, the oddities do not end there.

This leadership convention is rapidly shaping up as another classic in the great Conservative tradition of internecine warfare, starring the old antagonists themselves, John Diefenbaker and Dalton Camp. This time, however, the battles will be waged by surrogates.

In the Camp corner there will be Mulroney and MacDonald and John Fraser. And in the Diefenbaker corner? Why, none other than Paul Hellyer.

Diefenbaker, basking in his new-found role as elder statesman and best-selling author, probably won't provide any official public endorsements. But the word has been not-so-discreetly leaked.

When questioned on the subject at his press conference, Hellyer coyly allowed that he was sure Diefenbaker would "welcome my entry into the race." It would be folly to dismiss the significance of the Diefenbaker endorsement. In the West, the former prime minister is still a revered figure of considerable influence among party rank and file.

And it will be the West that makes or breaks it for Paul Hellyer. Oddly enough, Hellyer would appear to be the main beneficiary of the non-candidacy of Peter Lougheed. Hellyer candidly admitted that, had Lougheed entered, he would not have been a candidate. Which also explains his late entry.

Many of those who had been egging Lougheed to enter concede that their enthusiasm for the Alberta premier was not founded upon the belief that he is an intellectual giant or a gifted leader. Rather, the Lougheed appeal stems from the simple fact that he enjoys national stature and is known to be politically saleable.

The Lougheed backers are the pragmatists. The Hellyer supporters are members of the same school. Paul Hellyer's own remarkable survival abilities aside, it must be viewed as a grim reflection on the state of the Conservative party that he is even being considered:

There is simply no comparison between the collective calibre of the announced Tory candidates and the group of Grits who entered the race in 1968 for Lester Pearson's job.

Hellyer claims to have 15 or 20 members of caucus lined up in his corner. If that is so (and there is evidence that it is) that gives him more support than any other candidate but Wagner.

Party sources say that during his 18 months as a Conservative MP, Hellyer played it cool and cautious. He made no enemies and always took a moderate, middle-of-the-road line on contentious issues. Hellyer describes himself as fitting into the middle of the Tory spectrum (which candidate doesn't?) but if that is so, the middle extends farther to the right than left.

The bothersome thing with Hellyer is not his track record as a Liberal cabinet minister or his tenure as a Conservative member of Parliament, but rather his flirtation in transition with Action Canada.

Action Canada found its supporters among some of the freakier fringes in the country — moral rearmament advocates, anti-fluoridation nuts and anti-Communist freedom fighters.

Hellyer argues that he has been a stationary prophet, that it is the rest of the world that has realigned with him, not the other way around.

The Real Education Is Outside

By ROBERT FULFORD
Toronto Star

Dear Margaret:

You've always been a good student but right now you're not a student at all — not in the formal sense. Your high school, like all the others in Toronto, has been closed since November by a strike of the teachers.

This has made most of the parents involved unhappy, and I sense that quite early in the strike it made the students unhappy as well. In me it produced a certain amount of guilt. After all, we adults (teachers, school trustees, taxpayers) have broken our promise to the community's children. Long ago we encouraged you to shape your intellectual development in a certain way, and in return for your agreement to this we promised to provide the means — that is, schools and teachers. Now, abruptly, we've taken these away.

If your lives suddenly seem unstructured, and even in some ways pointless, then you have every right to be angry. We haven't lived up to our side of the bargain, and at the moment — as this is written — we still can't figure out how to do it. We are fighting among ourselves and you are the victims of the fight.

But perhaps this wretched situation has a good side. Perhaps it forces us to think about what education is. Possibly it will make you think about your own responsibility to yourself.

Education, I've often argued, is too important to be left to the schools. Yet that's where most parents prefer to leave it. We insert our children in the system when they're 4 or 5 years old and expect them to be educated when the system finishes with them, 15 or so years later. We tend to see education as an assembly line and the student as the product that emerges, completed, at the end of it.

Organized education has encouraged this view, consciously or unconsciously. Organized education, like organized religion, has built itself into a great industry on the premise that it knows something the rest of us don't know and can't find out without its help. There is some truth to this, in both cases, but it ignores the fact that both your intellectual and your spiritual development are finally in your own hands.

Stephen Leacock once wrote that a PhD is believed to prove that its owner has been examined by the proper authorities and pronounced full; no more can be put into him. His point was that this is the opposite of the truth. The path of learning that leads from nursery school to a graduate degree or a professional degree is and must be narrow. Moreover, it grows narrower as it grows longer. Which is why it is very easy to find dolts who hold PhDs and fools with medical and engineering degrees. You've met some of these people already. You'll meet more.

Your real education, I'm trying to suggest, will take place outside the education system — and this is true whether you stop at Grade 10 or spend another 10 years in formal study. Your real education will be in the things you learn to care about and in your understanding of yourself.

The schools can't help much here. They can teach you to analyze a poem or a novel in a way that will please your teacher, but they can't tell you why a poem or a novel will (or will not) matter in your life. Business school can explain principles of management to you but will never be able to tell you where you will fit (or not fit) in business. History courses and political science courses will explain carefully who did what to whom and why. But they can't tell you how (or if) you should play a role in the public life of your community.

In all of these parts of your life, organized education should be viewed in the same light as organized religion — a useful helper in certain circumstances, a final authority in none.

Of course much of your education will come to you without your consent or even your knowledge. The people around you are teaching you during every minute you spend with them, and the media you consume effortlessly are full of facts and ideas that become part of your own mind and memory. But there are forms of education you can seek out. You can, if you care to, shape your own education and let the schools and the universities take their proper place in the background of your intellectual development.

What I'm suggesting is that you'll become truly educated (or at least move in that direction) only as you learn to educate yourself, as you develop your own private program of studies. In the end your education should be different in kind and content from the education of anyone else in the world.

If you decide that you want to study art, for example, the schools may be able to help you a little. But the important knowledge you eventually acquire will be the knowledge you seek out for yourself, in your own way, on your own time. The museums you visit, the art you make yourself, the books you read — these will be important to the extent that you personally commit yourself to them. For your own sake, not for the sake of your grades or your degree.

The way into an understanding of culture is not through textbooks but through personal inquiry. One way to begin is with one human being who has lived a distinguished life. Studying him or her, and following that one career, will lead you to a dozen different places. Study Paul Cezanne, for instance, and he'll lead you backward into 19th-century art and forward into Cubism and the rest of 20th century art. Study D. W Griffith and he'll make you think about the whole history of cinema, about technology, about art, and about modern history. Study William Blake and he'll lead you from poetry into art and then into history, religion, and mysticism.

Study Frank Lloyd Wright and he'll make you think about the artist as a social being, about individualism, and about a dozen different aspects of esthetics.

What I'm asking you to do is seize one or two or three of these subjects and make them your own, possess them as only a person committed to them and involved with them can. Of course you'll never be "well-read," in the old 19th-century sense, because that's now impossible — there's too much to read, and in the world today there is no such thing as a generally well-read woman or man.

And of course you'll be dissatisfied with yourself many times; often you'll feel you are ignorant. In this way you'll be just like the rest of us. We are all profoundly ignorant, and as the amount of knowledge in the world increases we all grow increasingly ignorant.

I hope that when the teachers finally go back to work they'll find you in the classroom, and that you'll continue to have a happy life in the school system. But at the same time I hope you are embarking on a process of self-education that will last from now 'till the end of your life. My hope is that education will never stop for you and that on the last day of your life you will learn something that will surprise, please and satisfy you.

Love,
Dad.

Construction Spending Rise Seen

OUTLOOK FOR '76

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Construction spending is expected to rise 10 per cent to $3.8 billion in British Columbia this year but this assumes there will be no sharp reduction in provincial government projects and no work stoppage when contracts expire at the end of April.

Frank Reder, president of the B.C. Construction Association, said it is unusually difficult to forecast trends for 1976 because of the long list of uncertainties.

It is certain that construction in the commercial sector will be fairly brisk, partly as a carryover from 1975. Planning is under way for expansion in the mining industry but work might not got off the drawing boards until late this year.

The level of government constructioon is a question mark.

Reder said that while it was difficult for the provincial government to stop large hydroelectric construction programs already under way, it would be an easy matter to delay government office construction projects on the drawing boards.

Forecasts for a 10 per cent increase in construction work assumes there will be no significant cutback by the provincial government. The province's 32,000 unionized construction workers end their two-year contracts at the end of April.

In all, there are 70,000 construction workers in B.C., including non-union personnel.

Reder said contract negotiations may be relatively smooth if federal wage guidelines are firmly in place by April.

"If not, however, the situation could be pretty sad," he said.

While the recession has been hurting the construction industry, along with all other industries, there have been some beneficial side effects.

For example, the price of building materials has been remarkably stable for 12 months.

The supply has also been excellent.

During the boom period of 1973-74, steel was scarce and prices were soaring. Now there is a surplus of steel and prices are stable.

Construction projects under way or contemplated for 1976 include major commercial developments in Vancouver, Laurel Point and other harbor projects in Victoria, expansion of CanCel pulp facilities, and a start on the Afton mine near Kamloops. A fair amount of hospital and school construction is also planned in northern areas of the province.

The supply of labor is sufficient in all areas for construction projects planned for this year.

Reder said that he was "fairly optimistic" but it was difficult to be certain about 1976 because there were so many uncertainties.

Wayne Farmer, secretary of the Canadian Construction Association, said he could see little reason for optimism in 1976. He said the pace of construction is levelling off and any increase in 1976 will be due to inflation only.

Farmer said the private sector has been slack for the past eight months. Recovery is indicated but it would not come until late in 1976.

By that time, there could be a reduction in construction by the federal and provincial government.

It could be that the increase in the private sector will barely make up for the reduced level of government spending this year, Farmer said.

Construction Up

REGINA (CP) — The value of construction in saskatchewan increased 79 per cent in 1975 compared with 1974, Joe Thompson, president of the Construction Association of Regina, reports. He attributed the successful year to the province's bouyant economy. In Regina building permits were issued for a record-breaking $152 million and in Saskatoon for $128.6 million.

No Financial Trouble, Bank Chairmen Claim

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairmen of the First National City and Chase Manhattan banks have denied a published report that their banks, the second and third largest in the United States, are in financial trouble or on a "problem" list of the U.S. comptroller of the currency.

In Washington, the comptroller, James Smith, called both banks "among the soundest in the world" and denounced the Washington Post, source of the report, saying it used "random and out-of-context comments" in an attempt to "sensationalize."

The Post said examinations showed that both banks had "inadequate capital and increases in assets of questionable value compared with previous examinations."

The article quoted examiners as emphasizing there was no indication the banks were in any immediate difficulty. First National City's prospects were called "excellent" and Chase's "fair."

The newspaper said, however, that the banks were on the "problem" list which names 200 of the 14,500 banks in the U.S. as in line for special supervisory attention.

The Post quoted Smith as saying: "They are strong, well-managed banks."

David Rockefeller, board chairman of Chase, said, "There is absolutely no question that Chase is sound, vital and profitable" and that "any information to the contrary is totally irresponsible."

He said the story was based on information that was more than 18 months old and "taken out of context."

Walter Wriston, chairman of Citibank, First National City's holding company, called the Post article "misleading, irresponsible and at variance with the facts."

He said his bank had increased its capital funds by $500 million last year, for the "largest absolute year-to-year capital increase in banking history." The bank could have taken loan losses three times the amount actually incurred in 1970 and still not have reduced its loan-loss reserve, he said.

The Post quoted examiners as finding that the banks had too many outstanding loans "considered to be of substandard quality or of doubtful collectability."

FOREST UPSWING

NANAIMO (CP) — The forest industry has taken a recent upswing because of favorable outlooks for trade with the United States in a presidential election year, Highways Minister Alex Fraser said Saturday.

"I have never seen a lumber market better than in a presidential election year," the minister told 200 Western Independent Log Haulers' Association members. "The downward trend has been reversed."

The minister also told the truckers that road improvements throughout B.C. will come but not necessarily this year.

He said highway and secondary road developments had dwindled during the last three or four years but as money becomes available in current or future budgets it will be used to upgrade roads.

Bearing Row Rolling

OTTAWA (CP) — The anti-dumping tribunal will hold a public hearing Feb. 4 into the dumping of single-row tapered roller bearings from Japan.

Dumping is selling goods in an export market at prices lower tham domestic prices.

The revenue department ruled Dec. 31 that the Japanese bearings, in sizes up to 6.625 inches in diameter, are being dumped in Canada and a provisional dumping duty was imposed.

The tribunal now must decide whether the dumping is causing financial injury to domestic manufacturers. If this is found, a permanent duty will be imposed by the government.

Submissions to the tribunal must be filed by Jan. 26.

Bank HQ To Alberta

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Commercial and Industrial Bank is moving its head office to Edmonton from Vancouver.

"It's not a question of abandoning B.C.," bank president Howard Eaton said. "Alberta is the only major province without the head office of a bank and we feel we can make a greater contribution there."

Eaton said the Bank of B.C. has done a good job developing the capital market in B.C. and the Commercial Bank could do the same in Alberta.

He said some Alberta officials had "encouraged the bank to headquarter in Edmonton."

Eaton did not identify the officials.

The Commercial and Industrial Bank will not receive deposits from the public. It will concentrate on commercial and business loans, most of them to medium-size companies.

GM's Chevette brightens auto picture

By EDWARD D. LECHTZIN

DETROIT (UPI) — The Chevette, the minicar that's off to the fastest start of any General Motors auto in history, has been so successful Chevrolet had a backlog of 76,000 orders in early December.

With just one plant in Wilmington, Del., building America's smallest car at the rate of 65 an hour, it could take Chevrolet almost 14 weeks just to meet the customer and dealer orders it already has in hand. A second plant will be added in March at South Gate, Calif.

Robert D. Lund, GM Vice-President who heads the Chevrolet division and is in the envious position of having the U.S. fuel economy champ, last summer, before the Chevrolet was introduced, was talking in terms of 250,000 sales in the first year. With 34,404 already sold in the first nine weeks of the 1976 model year, Lund has upped that prediction to 300,000 Chevettes. He's holding it there because that's the limit on the production facilities.

Chevette has outsold each of the foreign models it was designed to compete against — the Volkswagen Rabbit, Datsun B210 and Toyota Corolla.

Effect on Price Known in Year—Pepin

OTTAWA (CP) — Anti-inflation board chairman Jean-Luc Pepin says it may be the end of the year before the board can demonstrate that it is able to affect consumer prices.

"Only by the end of the year, after we're able to study the big companies' profit reports, will we be able to say that we've had an effect on prices here, or touched something there," Pepin said.

Meanwhile, the board is being unfairly criticized because it has not yet made any decisions on price rises, he suggested.

"You guys in the press want instant coffee," he said.

Most companies will avoid bringing proposed price rises before the board for a decision, so it will not be able to turn them down, as it has several proposed pay awards. But there will be "anticipatory actions" by companies that will slow the rate of price rises, Pepin said.

"We can claim to have already had a certain influence in some areas," he added. State Farm Insurance Co. of Toronto recently withdrew proposed auto insurance rate rises that it had before the board and is revising them.

Pepin says the board is looking closely at the insurance industry and at certain key food commodities for further price action, but he refuses to be more specific. Any action will be in addition to a requirement imposed on 117 companies, including some insurers and food companies, to give prior notice of any price increases, he indicated.

Pepin, back on the job last week after a Christmas vacation in Mexico, complained that many people seem to expect the anti-inflatin board to freeze prices.

"That's not the way this program operates," he said.

"It's a pass-through or a profit margin one." The board's job is to make sure the companies do not pass through in higher prices any more than the amount they need to recover higher production costs.

"These guidelines on prices are much more difficult to put into use than the ones on wages," he added.

Pepin said he agreed with vice-chairman Beryl Plumptre that the board must zero in on food prices. Plumptre said in a recent interview a special unit to monitor food price rises, using weekly computer print-outs on selected items across the country, was being set up.

The idea is to use the expert staff that Plumptre built up during her tenure as chairman of the now-defunct food prices review board, Pepin said.

"We have to play a special role in food because it has not only an economic but a psychological effect," Pepin said. Plumptre noted earlier that the board likely will be judged by its effect on holding down food prices "because that's what's most visible" to consumers.

Pepin said that, hopefully, the board will announce its plans for food price monitoring before the end of this month. The intention is to monitor profit margins for retailers, distributors and processors and demand justification for any unusual increases.

INDIAN LAND DISPUTE

TERRACE (CP) — A spokesman for the Kitwancool Indian band says the Nishga band is trying to claim two-thirds of his band's land in the Nass Valley, 25 miles north of this municipality.

Peter Williams, Kitwancool band president, said Sunday that the land in dispute, which is in the Kiteen and Cranberry rivers area, is traditional Kitwancool territory.

Williams said members of his band have put up territorial boundary markers to let the provincial and federal governments know of their counter-claim.

The Nishga are claiming about 4,400 square miles after a split decision by the Supreme Court of Canada in 1973, recognizing their aboriginal right.

Williams said the Kitwancool people didn't speak out when the Nishga had their land claim before the courts because they did not want to hurt them during the legal proceedings.

He said the Kitwancool band will not be making a formal demand to a government negotiation team currently meeting with native Indians at New Alyansh, in the Nass Valley, but he hopes the team will hear from the Nishga.

Judd Buchanan, federal Indian affairs minister, Iona Campagnolo, Liberal MP for the area and Allan Williams, provincial minister responsible for Indian affairs, are taking part in the preliminary talks aimed at claims settlement.

Farm Income Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The total of farmers' income from farming operations in all provinces except Newfoundland during the first 11 months of 1975 was up about three per cent from the same period in 1974, Statistics Canada reports.

Growth of Assets Cited by Bankers

TORONTO (CP) — The steady increase in earnings by Canada's chartered banks in recent years is the result of growth in money supply and higher profits from foreign operations, says the Canadian Bankers' Association.

"The annual level of profits of the chartered banks for the years 1968 to 1974 can be almost totally accounted for by the growth in bank assets," says the CBA in a brief prepared for the royal commission on corporate concentration.

"This asset growth came from increases in the domestic money supply, increases in foreign assets and as a result of inflation."

The CBA brief shows that earnings and assets for both domestic and international operations of the five major Canadian chartered banks more than doubled between 1970 and 1975. Profits from foreign business accounted for 25 per cent of total bank earnings last year, compared with 15.7 per cent in 1970.

The commission, headed by Robert Bryce, executive director of the International Monetary Fund and former deputy minister of finance, resumed hearings today to discuss briefs from Hugh Russel Ltd., Indal Ltd., United Steelworkers of American and the Communist Party of Canada.

The commission sits here until Wednesday when the CBA brief will be discussed, and will hold a one-day hearing Friday in Montreal. It returns to Toronto next week for three more days of hearings.

The CBA brief says total earnings of the five largest banks, which account for 90 per cent of the Canadian banking industry, increased to $1.14 billion last year from $492 million in 1970.

The largest annual increase during that period was in 1975 when domestic profits rose about 35 per cent and international earnings increased 62 per cent.

The CBA describes 1975 as "an exceptional year in the operations of the banks."

The brief says profits rose faster than normal last year partly because earnings were at depressed levels the previous year.

Higher profits from foreign operations and a wider spread of domestic interest rates were also major factors.

Although bank profits have been steadily rising during the last few years, the brief says the composition of the banking industry has changed little in the last 50 years. Therefore, there has been no increase in the concentration of power.

"Far from having a monopoly position over banking in Canada, the share of the business held by the banks has been declining for some time. Many other institutions are now in the banking business. About one-third of the business is now carried on by organizations not officially called banks."

IT WAS A CHALLENGE BUT THE BULLS WON

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuter) — The bulls emerged unscathed but both bullfighters were badly shaken when they competed in a challenge bullfight Sunday.

Spaniard Pedro Sidoti, in classic bullfighting regalia, was carried from the ring with a broken rib and Australian Bluey Bostock, brandishing a red cape and wearing cowboy clothes, injured his shoulder.

The Spaniard won the contest, the first of its kind in Australia, by showing greater style and daring.

The bulls? They were protected by laws against cruelty to animals and bore nothing more painful than taunts.

Boxers Keep Lead In Tight Struggle

London Boxing Club, Cosmopolitan Royals and Victoria West remained in a neck-to-neck race atop the Vancouver Island Soccer League's premier division with decisive victories at the weekend.

Boxing Club retained a one-point lead with a 3-1 decision over Nanaimo City in a Saturday match at Royal Athletic Park.

On Sunday, Royals dropped Gorge United 4-1 at Heywood Avenue Park and Vic West tripped UVic Vikings 3-2 at UVic to stay in a tie for second spot while Powell River Villas outgunned Gorge Moslsons 7-3 at Topaz Park.

The scheduled Sunday match between Oak Bay and Duncan was postponed because of snow on the up-Island pitch.

Boxers and Nanaimo battled to a 1-1 half-time tie on a pitch lashed with a mixture of rain and snow. Dan Hood of Boxers and Ike McKay of Nanaimo traded the first-half goals. George Pakos connected for the go-ahead goal with 16 minutes remaining and Bob Bolitho scored the insurance goal on a penalty shot at the 84-minute mark.

Rudi Kuebler fired three goals to set the pace for Cosmo Royals, who led 1-0 at the half. Gil McIlraith added the other tally. Marvin Dircks scored for Gorge United.

All scoring came in the second half at UVic. Greg Booth gave Vic West the lead 15 seconds after the break only to have Vic Escue tie it up for Vikings at the 65-minute mark.

Then Gary McLaren found the range and punched in goals at 75 and 87 minutes to give Victoria West the win.

Brian Gomez and Graham Hollingsworth scored two goals each to spark Powell River while single tallies were added by Larry Louis, Ken Baker and George Orchiston. Dan Bolton, Bill Walker and Leigh Hagen replied for Molsons, who held the Villas to a 2-2 deadlock at half time.

In second division matches Sunday, Gillespie Electric nipped Metro Toyota 1-0, Crystal Photo and Labatts battled to a 3-3 draw, Cosmo Royals blanked Prospect Lake 2-0 and UVic Norsemen downed Vic West 1-0. A scheduled match between Braves and DaVinci was postponed because of poor field conditins.

Up-Island snow postponed the Nanaimo-Castaways and Duncan-Oak Bay "A" matches in third division. In matches played, London Boxing Club Maroons trampled Kickers 10-4 and Oak Bay "B" fought to a 2-2 deadlock with Glen Meadows.

In fourth-division play, Camosun College slipped past Castaways 2-1, Duncan blanked DaVinci 3-0, PG men's Wear topped International Restaurant 2-0, UVic Alumni and Sooke played to a 2-2 deadlock and Vantreights gained a 1-0 win over William Head by default.

'Animal Hockey' Upsets Russians

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Bobby Clarke stood outside his locker with the blood trickling from a large stitched cut on his forehead.

Russia's Viktor Kutergin laid his stick on Clarke's head but the Captain of Philadelphia Flyers insisted it was an accident.

Clarke was one of the standouts in Philadelphia's 4-1 victory Sunday over the champion Soviet Central Army team.

The Flyers put on one of their more bruising shows and the Russians became disorganized as a result of the Flyers hard checking. Coach Konstantin Loktev became so angered that he pulled his team off the ice for 14 minutes.

"We never play such animal hockey," said Loktev in a postgame interview.

Clarke shrugged off the animal label.

"We have been called a lot of worst things," he said. "This wasn't one of our rough games."

Still it was a brutal display of power by the bigger, stronger and obviously more effective Flyers, who skated with the Russians.

It was a day that started with deep political overtones and ended that way when Loktev said through an interpreter:

"The Flyers seem to be trying to make some kind of damage to our players . . . sometimes one of the Flyers was hunting another player just to hit him with the stick."

Loktev maintained that the Flyers are a good team who can play any type of hockey and need not resort to intimidation.

The Russian coach and other Russian officials were also upset by the anti-Russian banners displayed inside the Spectrum in full view of millions watching the telecast of the game via satellite to the Soviet Union.

Loktev said he would not allow his team on the ice until the banners were removed, and owner Ed Snider of the Flyers ordered the signs removed by attendants. Pickets carying various anti-Russian messages marched outside both entrances to the arena.

"Free Soviet Jewry," was one of the themes prominently displayed until the officials cracked down.

On the ice, Central Army was quickly swamped by the Flyers and only the goal-tending of Vladimir Tretiak held the Russians even until the walkout at 11:21.

What made the Russians madder, at least on the surface, was the charging of Flyer defenceman Ed Van Impe, who dumped star forward Valeri Kharlamov and knocked him to the ice. But referee Lloyd Gilmour didn't call a penalty.

The Russians got a bench penalty for delaying the game and then walked out.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said he believes the Russians had no intention of walking out.

Snider disclosed that the NHL is holding $400,000 in fees owed the two Russians squads which played eight games in the last two weeks.

"If we had to cancel that game we would have lost $200,000 in refunds and we certainly would not take that loss," Snider said.

The Central Army squad defeated New York Rangers 7-3, tied Montreal Canadiens 3-3, beat Boston Bruins 5-2 before bowing to the Flyers for a 2-1-1 mark.

The Wings of the Soviets, under Coach Boris Kulagin, won three of their four matches with NHL clubs, losing only to Buffalo Sabres 12-6. The Wings beat Pittsburgh 7-4, Chicago 4-2 and New York Islanders 2-1.

Campbell said he did not feel the image of the NHL has been really hurt by the Russian over-all showing — five wins and a tie in eight starts.

The NHL president noted that the top three clubs in the league—Montreal, Buffalo and Philadelphia—all were unbeaten.

Meanwhile, coach Fred Shero proclaimed his Flyers the new world champions, a claim disputed by Loktev, who said one game does not make a champion.

"We beat a helluva machine," Shero said. "Ninety-nine per cent of the NHL didn't think we could do it."

The Flyers hit Goalie Vladimir Tretiak with 49 shots while the Russians had only 13 of their own.

Saturday night in Uniondale, N.Y., the Wings got goals from Victor Schlalimov and Vyaschlev Anisin while Bryan Trottier scored for the Islanders.

Four persons were arrested for tossing plastic bags filled with red paint and marbles on to the ice. Coach Kulagin threatened to pull his team out if it occurred a third time.

JOCK RIDES WINNER UNDER DEATH THREAT

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Jockey Angelo Trosclair was threatened with death if he won the first race on Friday's card at the Fair Grounds, but he booted his horse home on top anyway, a state racing official said Sunday.

The death threat against Trosclair was part of a web of unusual events surrounding the race and daily-double betting Friday. Track security personnel and the FBI are investigating, said Al Stall, chairman of the state racing commission.

The threat comes about a year after another jockey — James Sibille — was found shot to death after riding a winner at Jefferson Downs in suburban Kenner. That death is still under investigation.

Trosclair was aboard the favorite, John Jet, in the first race Friday. The threat was apparently aimed at getting John Jet out of the race, Stall said.

"Angelo told his boss, Mr. J. P. Dorignac Jr., and Joe called me. That's how it came out that Angelo had been threatened.

"He was told that if he won the race, he'd be dead. If he lost it, he'd get $2,000.

"But even before that, Pete Pichon — one of the stewards — got an anonymous call saying John Jet had to be scratched, because he had been hit with a drug.

"We pulled blood and took tests, but they didn't show any drugs.

"We told the kid that the horse was okay, and he rode his butt off."

John Jet nipped Inverary at the wire under a superb ride by Trosclair.

Inverary opened at 30-to-1 odds but was at 5 to 2 when the race started, a shift in betting odds that made the horse the No. 2 pick in the race.

Stall said he can recall seeing odds half that long shift to odds as short as those on Inverary at post time, but the dramatic shift to 5 to 2 from 30 to 1 was unusual.

Jockey Kenneth Bourque was aboard Inverary in an earlier race in which he brought the horse home a badly-beaten last, as well as being in the irons Friday.

Track stewards suspended Bourque for 20 days Sunday, accusing him of "contrasting rides."

"There were 44 $10 'wheels' on Inverary and only five on John Jet, the favorite. That just doesn't happen," Stall said.

Germans Show Power

MONTREAL (CP) — Four East Germans gave a possible preview of the 1976 Summer Olympics swimming competition by winning 10 gold medals at the three-day Pointe Claire invitational swim meet which concluded Sunday night.

The Germans, who almost missed the competition because of a visa mix-up, dominated the final night, winning four of 10 events.

Kornelia Ender, holder of three world records, added gold medals in the women's 100-metre freestyle and 100-metre butterfly to go with her victory Saturday in the 50-metre freestyle and clinch the over-all meet title for female swimmers.

When Ender did not hold the limelight, team-mates Birgit Treiber, Ulrike Tauber and Roger Pyttel showed why East Germany has become a power among swimming nations. Treiber won her second gold medal in taking the women's 200-metre backstroke in 2:20.05. Tauber, who won two gold medals earlier in the meet, finished second in 2:22.64

Pyttel won his third gold medal when he edged Greg Jagenburg of Philadelphia in the men's 100-metre butterfly in a time of 57.16.

Canada got victories from Mike Scarth of Edmonton, who won the men's 200 backstroke in 2:12.03 and the Pointe Clair A team which won the women's 400-metre medley relay in 4:29.13.

Steve Badger, an Australian swimming for Cardinal Swim Club in Winnipeg while attending the University of Manitoba, clinched the men's over-all title with his victory in 1,500-metre freestyle in 16:16.25, his third gold of the meet.

Brenda Borgh of Philadelphia, who finished second to Ender in the women's over-all standings, won the 800-metre freestyle in a time of 9:03.14 while Andy Coan of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., captured the men's 100-metre freestyle in 53.23.

The meet was a disappointment for fans of Nancy Garapick, a 14-year-old Halifax sensation, who finished third Friday in the women's 100-metre backstroke and then failed to qualify for the final in the 200-metre backstroke Sunday.

The surprise of the meet was 13-year-old Robin Corsiglia of the host Pointe Claire club, who made her international debut Saturday a winning one in the 100-metre butterfly. She was clocked in 1:16.07.

Rangers Move for Fergie; Caps Won't Budge for Tom

The Canadian Press

A new coach appears to be helping New York Rangers, but the coaching change made just before the new year by Washington Capitals has done nothing to improve the play of the worst club in the National Hockey League.

With John Ferguson behind the bench, the Rangers posted a pair of wins during the weekend, downing Chicago Black Hawks 6-2 in Chicago Sunday night after topping the Scouts 8-4 in Kansas City Saturday night.

Meanwhile the Caps, by losing 7-4 to Boston Bruins Sunday, stretched their winless streak to 21 games—18 losses and three ties—and tied a league record set by the 1944 Rangers and equalled by the Black Hawks during the 1950-51 season.

In other action Sunday, Montreal Canadiens blanked Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0, Buffalo Sabres dumped Pittsburgh Penguins 6-0 and Atlanta Flames took Vancouver Canucks 5-2.

Saturday, Montreal smashed Detroit Red Wings 7-1, Vancouver and Pittsburgh played to a 3-3 tie, Toronto nipped Los Angeles Kings 4-3, Boston edged California Golden Seals 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars shut out St. Louis Blues 2-0.

Ferguson, who took over the general manager's role last week after the firing of Emile Francis and who later assumed the duties of coach Ron Stewart, had to be happy with the effort by his club, especially Sunday as they snapped the Black Hawks' eight-game unbeaten string.

"Look at the statistics and you'll see this club had a lot of injuries," Ferguson said. "You can't play good hockey with injuries.

"We played a solid game at Kansas City last night," added Ferguson in reference to an 8-4 triumph Saturday night over the Scouts. "We wanted to get off to a good start against the Hawks tonight."

That the Rangers did. They hit the Hawks with three goals in the first 10½ minutes of play, then saw the margin cut to 3-2 early in the second period before regrouping to put the game away on Walt Tkaczuk's second goal of the game, followed by Steve Vicker's 17th of the season.

"Dunc gave us a good game again," said Ferguson of goalie Dunc Wilson. "He's got his chance now and he's got to do it for us."

Asked if he plans to turn the Rangers into a rough hockey club, the former Montreal Canadien player replied: "Only if the siuation arises."

At Landover, Md., John Buyck scored three goals and winger Wayne Cashman added four assists to pace the Bruins over the Capitals who got two goals from Bob Sirois.

"We are a young team and we will be winning soon," said Sirois. "I'm glad to be with the Capitals."

Sirois did not say how soon the Capitals will win but his coach Tom McVie hopes his rookie forward is right. Since taking over the Capitals from Milt Schmidt after a loss to Montreal Dec. 29, McVie has watched his team lose seven in a row.

Washington has not won a game since a 7-2 triumph over Los Angeles Nov. 26.

The Flames got third-period goals from Curt Bennett, Randy Manery, Hilliard Graves and Barry Gibbs to erase a 2-1 Vancouver edge. Manery's goal at 5:20 proved to be the winner.

Gerry Meehan scored the other Atlanta goal with Garry Monahan and Gerry O'Flaherty scoring for the Canucks in the first period. See summaries on Page 9.

Third Win Too Much? —Miller Gets Heckled

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It was different, and tougher, and maybe a little bit more satisfying. But the result was the same.

Johnny Miller won the Tucson open golf tournament.

"I almost felt guilty about it," Miller said Sunday after he scored his third consecutive victory in this event. "You know, I think the gallery might like to see somebody else win."

That point was brought home to him when he got some heckling for the first time in his career.

"It didn't bother me," Miller said. "You know, this is supposed to be a gentleman's game.

"But now we get all kinds in the gallery. Maybe its even a good thing."

Good thing or not, it had absolutely no effect as the placid Miller calmly put together a charging, four-under-par 68 that lifted him three strokes clear of the field with a 274 total, 14 under par on the 7,200-yard Tucson National Golf Club course.

The victory—in sharp contrast to his record-setting triumphs of 1974 and 1975—enabled him to become the first man to win the same event three times in a row since Jack Nicklaus took his third Disney Open title in 1973.

He has a chance for a second triple this week. The tour moves on to Phoenix. Miller, bubbling with confidence, has won that one for the last two seasons, too.

The record is four in a row, set by Walter Hagen in the PGA National Championship in the 1920s.

Miller faced constant challenges through the last day of the Tucson Open from Tom Weiskopf and Tom Watson, but he won it going away.

Weiskopf, the third-round leader, finished third at 73-278. Watson, with a 73, was tied for fourth at 279 with Dave Hill, Dave Stockton, Pat Fitzsimons, Bruce Lietzke and Jerry McGee.

Senior Bowl Offers Offensive Fireworks

By The Associated Press

A pair of National Football League coaches were a little surprised at the offensive efficiency generated in Sunday's Senior Bowl football battle.

Quarterback Craig Penrose directed the North to a 42-35 victory over the South.

"We were looking for a wide open game and it was," said Jack Pardee of Chicago Bears, who coached the South all-stars. "I was impressed with the execution of both teams, considering we only had a week of preparation."

Chuck Fairbanks of New England Patriots, who coached the North, said: "For a game of this type, our offence made very few mistakes. That third-quarter spurt and better defence in the second half is what won it for us."

Penrose, a star at San Diego State, brought the North attack to life with a trio of third-quarter touchdown marches as the North surged to a 42-28 lead after trailing 21-7 at one point.

Penrose, named the game's most valuable player, connected on 12 of 15 passes for 303 yards and three touchdowns, two to his San Diego team-mate, Duke Ferguson. The second put the North ahead to stay.

The North then got what proved to be the winning score when Penrose and Wyoming's Larry Gaines combined on a 73-yard scoring play, with Gaines taking the pass in traffic at his 40, hopping clear and outrunning everybody to the end zone.

In Saturday's college football action, the North beat the South 21-14 in the American Bowl in Tampa, Fla., and the East beat the West 16-0 in the Hula Bowl in Honolulu.

Verdict Offered Before Women Fought: A Sad Sight

Times News Services

Two women fought an exhibition boxing match Saturday night that was called a gimmick and a sad sight before it began at Waterbury, Conn.

It was agreed before the fight that there would be no winner or loser in the four-round bout.

The fighters were Gwen Gemni, 152 pounds, of Springfield, Mass. and Marian Trimar, 148, of New York.

Trimar was more aggressive than Gemni, who was more of a standup fighter. There were no knockdowns and neither fighter was shaken during the exhibition.

Gov. Ella Grasso said Thursday she opposed the "sad sight" of a boxing match between women but there was no legal way she could stop it.

Vito Tallarita, promoter of the six-bout program, said the fight was a gimmick to draw spectators.

Mary Heslin, the state's boxing commissioner, approved the bout on the condition the fighters wear leather bras for protection.

Led by gold medal winners Terry Kubicka and Dorothy Hamill, the United States' Olympic skating contingent is clearly stronger than four years ago, team leader Paul George believes.

"We are very enthused about these people," George said at the conclusion of the U.S. figure skating championships in Colorado Springs Saturday night.

The top finishers in the four-day national meet won berths on the Winter Olympic team which will compete in Insbruck, Austria, next month.

Kukicka, a 19-year-old Californian, wrapped up the men's singles title with a dazzling free-skating exhibition that included five triple jumps and a back flip more commonly seen in gymnastics.

The judges gave him mostly 5.9 marks out of a perfect 6.0, and it rocketed him from third place to first.

David Santee won the second-place silver with 17-year-old Scott Cramer in third.

Miss Hamill, 19, of Riverside, Calif., led all three segments of the senior ladies competition to take the title for a third straight year. But she had to withstand a brilliant free-skating routine by 15-year-old Linda Fratianne.

Miss Goolagong won $25,000 in the tournament, which featured the four best women players of 1975.

IN SKIING a dense fog forced organizers of the men's World Cup giant slalom race at Adelboden, Switzerland, today to postpone the second run to Tuesday morning.

Italy's Gustavo Thoeni was leading by more than a second over Switzerland's Heini Hemmi and by 1.32 seconds over Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden after the first run.

Canadians were well down in the standings after the first run. Jim Hunter of Calgary finished in 18th place in one minute, 31.52 seconds, Bob Safrata of Toronto was 36th at 1.36.52 and Dave Murray of Abbotsford, B.C., was 37th in 1:36.98.

Thoeni clocked 1:25.33 on the 1,250-metre track with a vertical drop of 340 metres and 66 gates with alternating patches of hard and soft snow on which many competitors fell, among them the strongest Italians.

World Cup leader Piero Gros of Italy, whose ski boot burt open during the race, was among the most prominent victims.

In women's action at Les Diablerets, Switzerland, Marie Morerod of Switzerland won a special slalom race, defeating World Cup leader Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany by seven-tenths of a second. Her time was 81.20 seconds for two runs down a 160-metre slope through 45 gates. France's Patricia Emonet was third, 0.80 seconds behind.

Betsy Clifford of Old Chelsea, Que., finished in 21st place and Kathy Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., was 31st. Susan Clifford finished 24th.

Meanwhile, Dale Irwin of Thunder Bay, Ont., was reported in good spirits in hospital where he is recovering from injuries suffered Saturday.

Irwin suffered a facial cut, a slight concussion and a broken rib when he fell and crashed into a protective net along the 4,187 metre long Lauberhorn downhill course.

At Wengen, Switzerland, Ingemar Stenmark of Sweden won the slalom event and Austria's Franz Klammer took the downhill race and captured the Alpine Combination title of the Lauberhorn Classic ski series on the weekend.

At Winter Park, Colo., Jean-Noel Augert narrowly defeated defending pro ski champion Hank Kashiwa to take first place Sunday and win $4,000 in the slalom event, sixth on the pro circuit. Josef Odermatt, second in Saturday's giant slalom, took third and won $1,500. Tour leader Henri Duvillard won Saturday's giant slalom. With his second-place finish Sunday Kashiwa moved to within 12 points of Duvillard.

Bodies a Cougar Problem In Tough Loss to Bruins

JEFF MCDILL
. . . four goals

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

The Western Canada Hockey League hit a trade deadline at midnight Saturday, but there wasn't much that Victoria Cougar coach Pat Ginnell could do even if he wanted to swing a final deal.

At the rate things were happening, bodies became a scarce commodity in the Victoria camp.

The situation was such that Ginnell expressed pleasure with a loss. It's not that he wanted to throw away two points. It's just that, considering the manpower problem, he figured the players on hand performed gallantly in an 8-7 loss to New Westminster bruins.

On the day all WCHL were to trim their roster to 19, Ginnell was able to dress only 16 for the Memorial Arena encounter. The total included Nanaimo farmhands Gary Lupul and Rod Guimont.

At game's end, only 14 were available.

What Ginnell didn't learn, until later in the weekend, was that he almost wound up losing two others—goalkeeper Murray Bannerman and forward Rick Durston.

Room-mates in the Colwood area, they were invived in an auto mishap en route to the game. While shaken, neither was hurt. They reported their plight to police, then hitch-hiked the rest of the way to tne Arena.

Another Durston-owned car was involved in another mishap later in the evening. An auto driven by Rick's sister, a figure-skating instructor in Port Alberni, was struck by a youth driving a stolen car.

Fortunately, she, too, escaped serious injury.

Despite the unnerving accident in Colwood, Bannerman had an outstanding game aginst the Bruins. He made 44 stops and the Bruins slipped away with the two points only because of an unfortunate miscue by Curt Fraser.

The Victoria winger popped the winning goal for the Bruins. Teams were tied 7-7 when Fraser attempted to direct a New Westminster pass behind the Cougar goal and out of trouble.

Still, the Cougars played valiantly.

They started without defencemen Tim Williams, sidelined with a tummy-turning virus, and centre Mike Will, nursing a pulled groin.

Another defenceman, Greg Tebbutt, sat out the second game of a two-game suspension imposed by league president Ed Chynoweth.

The ranks were reduced further when Archie Henderson and Guimont both were chased with game misconducts for their role in a second-period brawl.

In addition, forward Gregg Anderson played but was obviously below usual form. Bothered by a minor leg problem in recent days, Anderson suffered a mild concussion in Friday night's exhibition against the Czechoslovakian Young Olympics. Anderson played Saturday despite a headache that had been with him since Friday's collision with a Czech.

With only three defencemen, Ginnell used Lorry Gloeckner for 50 of the 60 minutes. Another Victoria rearguard, Don Johnson, was on the ice for almost 45 minutes. Rookie Rick Hendricks, played about 40 minutes and Ginnell occasionally spotted Durston on defence.

Bannerman shared the spotlight with winger Jeff McDill: McDill scored four goals to boost his season's total to 32. Lupul, Fraser and Dale Ewasiuk also scored for the Cougars.

The "legitimate" goal by Fraser extended his goal-scoring streak to a seventh straight game.

The New Westminster line of Rich Shinske, Mark Lofthouse and Steve Clippingdale accounted for seven Bruin goals. Clippingdale got three and his linemates both scored twice.

Fred Berry was the other producer, getting credit for Fraser's unintentional goal.

Before the trading deadline came around, Bruins' Ernie McLean accomplished one deal. He traded forward Randy Rudnyk to Medicine Hat Tigers in exchange for the rights to Bruce Andress, a winger playing for Billings, Mont., in the Southwest League, and Kevin Shagus, a midget-division player from Edmonton.

The deadline means Victoria won't be trading Dan Lucas, the 17-year-old winger who left the club in December.

Only two other games were played at the weekend. Lethbridge Broncos edged Regina Pats 3-2 while the Bruins, striking for five goals in the final period, defeated Calgary Centennials 7-3.

Czechs Rally For Tie

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — Czechoslovakia Young Olympics scored with 2:13 remaining in the third period to earn a 3-3 exhibition hockey tie with Medicine Hat Tigers of the Western Canada Hockey League Saturday night.

Medicine Hat led all the way in the international contest before Jaroslav Pouzar scored his second goal of the game at 17:47 of the third period on a 45-foot slapshot that baffled goaltender Peter Peeters.

Peeters shared Medicine Hat goaltending equally with Ken Holland and both were superb while facing 40 Czechoslovakian shots.

The game, played before 4,261 fans, was the last for the Czechs on their exhibition tour in Canada. The Young Olympics, considered the second-best national team in Czechoslovakia, lost only one game of nine — that against Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Senior League.

Morris Lukowich scored two goals and center Greg Carroll rounded out the Tigers' scoring.

Island Senior Reps

LAKE COWICHAN — Gordie Stewart of Duncan and George Bayford of Campbell River will represent Vancouver Island in the Pacific Coast Curling Association senior men's playdowns Jan. 30 to Feb. 1 at Vancouver Curling Club.

Stewart (Howie Christopherson, Bob Wilkinsen, Ole Panzer) edged Bayford (Vince Jones, Bill Fritz, Bill MacLeod) 6-5 in the 10-end "A" event final of the Island playdown here Saturday night.

But Bayford bounced back to take the second berth when his last rock in the 10th end bit the four-foot circle to defeat Lorne Vanetta's Courtenay rink in the "B" event final Sunday afternoon.

Vanetta gained the final by eliminating Victoria quartets skipped by two-time B.C. champion Gordie Moore 7-2 and Gordon Walker 11-5 in earlier Sunday draws.

On Saturday, Stewart nipped Glen Phillips of Nanaimo 8-7 in an extra end while Bayford topped Moore by the same score during "A" event play. In "B" event play that day, Vanetta ousted Dave Johnston of Victoria 7-6 while Walker eliminated Gene Koster of Nanaimo, 8-7.

Gain For Sweden

TORONTO (CP) — Defenceman Borje Salming and forward Inge Hammarstrom of Toronto Maple Leafs have agreed to play for Sweden in next fall's World Invitational hockey tournament.

Salming said he and Hammarstrom had been asked to play for the team by the Swedish Ice Hockey Federation.

Under tournament rules, players may represent the country of their birth. Several players in the World Hockey Association and National Hockey League are European nationals.

The six-country tournament is the first of its kind. Canada will be represented by an all-star team from the WHA and NHL.

If Saints Do Fade, It'll Be In Style

By The Canadian Press

If the World Hockey Association decides to close up Minnesota Fighting Saints today or Tuesday, the Saints will be able to say they went out in style.

The financially-troubled Saints, high on the agenda of a meeting of WHA owners that starts today in Cleveland, scored four times in the final period Sunday night to defeat Cincinnati Stingers 7-4.

Unless new money is injected into the Minnesota operation, the Saints could fail to survive that meeting.

Owner Wayne Belisle failed to meet his last payroll and state authorities have given him a deadline to straighten out the team's finances. The unpaid players are doing their best not to let their uncertain future affect their play.

"Despite everything, we've been pretty loose when everybody gets togeher," coach Harry Neale said Sunday night, noting that the Saints have won four of their last six games.

The Saints held a pre-game meeting because, said Neale, "this just might be the last time we're all together."

"The players just wanted to get together and confirm what they had voted on two weeks ago (to wait for their pay). I don't know what is going to happen tomorrow. Since everything came out, we've been playing good hockey."

In Sunday's other games, Cleveland Crusaders edged Indianapolis Racers 4-3, Winnipeg Jets edged Ottawa Civics 6-5, New England Whalers trimmed San Diego Mariners 8-4 and Houston Aeros dropped Edmonton Oilers 5-3.

On Saturday, Phoenix Roadrunners whipped the Civics 8-5, Quebec Nordique edged San Diego 4-3 and Houston topped Minnesota 4-1.

Wayne Connelly, who scored five times in one game against Cincinnati last fall, scored twice and drew two assists for the Saints on Sunday.

The Crusaders have won five successive home games and moved within three points of the second-place Stingers in the East standings, but Cleveland defenceman Paul Shmyr says they'll get even better.

"When a few more pieces fall in place, we'll be all right," he said. "We haven't played a bad game in the last eight or nine games."

Jim Harrison scored twice and assisted on the other Cleveland goals, scored by Gerry Pinder and Al McDonough.

Anders Hedberg scored his 31st goal of the season late in the sudden-death overtime to give the Jets a win that moved them six points in front of second-place Quebec.

Rosaire Paiement had three goals and Larry Pleau added a pair for the Whalers, who lead the second-place Stingers by six points in the East Division standings.

The league takes it annual all-star break for Tuesday's all-star game at Cleveland.

Bird, Giese Gain Finals

Phyl Bird of Victoria Curling Club and Ellie Giese of Duncan will carry the southern zone hopes into the Vancouver Island women's playdowns starting Friday in Nanaimo.

Mrs. Giese claimed the first birth with an 11-6 decision over Flora Martin of Victoria, the reigning Canadian senior champion, in the "A" event final of the zone playdowns Sunday at Playland Curling Club.

Carol Duncan, Jo-Anne Ternier and Jean Fulford form the balance of the Giese rink.

But Mrs. Bird's foursome, which includes Shirley Gray, Barbara MacKenzie and Shirley Raike, had to follow a torturtous path before beating Mrs. Martin 8-7 in an extra end to claim "B" event laurels and the other berth.

Minoso Named White Sox Coach

CHICAGO (AP) — Minnie Minoso, former Chicago White Sox star outfielder, has been named to the American League baseball team's coaching staff.

Owner Bill Veeck of the White Sox made the announcement Saturday night when he introduced Minoso as the mystery guest at the Chicago baseball writers' dinner.

Ashby, Garland Called By Leafs

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League announced Sunday they have recalled centres Don Ashby and Scott Garland from their Oklahoma City farm team of the Central Hockey League.

The pair replace Lanny McDonald and Stan Weir, who have been sidelined by injuries.

Lake Cowichan Trips Esquimalt

LAKE COWICHAN — Lake Cowichan Bairds Trucking collected its fourth win of the season and the first victory over one of the top three clubs by tripping second-place Esquimalt Legion 4-2 Saturday night before 350 South Island Junior "B" Hockey League fans at Lake Cowichan Arena.

Mark Coulombe led Bairds with two goals while singles were added by Wes Swain and Glen Smith. Gary Bechtold and Gerry Cadwallader scored for Esquimalt as the squads played to 0-0 and 1-1 period ties.

Bruce Morrow made 29 stops in the Lake Cowichan net while Bruce MacLeod of Esquimalt blocked 24 shots.

Celebration of "Fan Appreciation Night" means everyone will be admitted free to the next league game between first-place Saanich Braves and Fuller Lake Flyers at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday in Pearkes Arena.

SETS RECORD

EAST BERLIN (Reuter) — Waltraud Strotzer of East Germany set a European indoor record for the women's 800 metres Sunday when she clocked two minutes, 2.0 seconds at a track and field meet here.

Vikings Suffer First Loss

University of Victoria Vikettes extended their unbeaten streak to eight games Saturday but the UVic Vikings stumbled for the first time as both teams faced the University of Alberta in Edmonton.

Marg Mainwaring set the pace with 11 points as Vikettes dropped the Pandas 34-30 and extended their lead to four points in the Canada West University Athletic Association women's league.

The Golden Bears, however, dominated the boards on offence and scored a 77-69 men's league victory as the Vikings commtted 25 turnovers.

Vikettes, who downed the Pandas 53-21 Friday, relied on a tight defence and ball control for the Saturday victory.

Edna Richie dominated the defensive boards for Vikettes with 10 rebounds while clubmate Ronnie Hind pulled down six rebouns.

The win moved Vikettes four points ahead of Alberta and eight points ahead of the University of British Columbia Thunderettes and Saskatchewan. Thunderettes grabbed a share of third place the same day with a 50-42 decision over visiting Saskatchewan.

In the only other women's action, Calgary Dinnies won their first game of the season by defeating Lethbridge Pronghornettes, 52-50.

Vikings and Bears were tied 34-34 at half time but the Alberta club moved ahead in the second half and killed Vikings' hopes of a rally by dominating the boards in the final minutes.

Rob Parris and Lee Edmonson, who usually spark the Viking offence, came up cold Saturday. Jim Duddridge led the UVic club with 20 points and 11 rebounds.

Lorne Dakin, who fired 26 points as the Vikings tripped Bears 65-60 Friday, injured an ankle and missed most of the second half.

The loss left Vikings with a 7-1 record and tied for first place with Calgary Dinosaurs, who defeated Lethbridge Pronghorns 108-82 the same night while UBC Thunderbirds were disposing of Saskatchewan Huskies, 92-45.

Vikettes Click Twice In Volleyball Opener

UVic Vikettes won two out of three encounters Sunday in Vancouver as play opened in the Lower Mainland Senior "A" Women's Volleyball League.

Vikettes defeated Simon Fraser University and B.C. Olympics but lost to Fraser Valley Volleyball Club.

Other teams in the league are UBC Thunderettes, Vancouver Chimos, Victoria "Y" and Victoria Volleyball Club.

But both the Vikettes and Vikings failed to reach the finals in tournament action Saturday.

Vikettes placed fifth with a 4-8 record in one of the two divisions at the Thunderette tournament in Vancouver. Chimos defeated Thunderettes in the final of the 14-team affair.

Vikings placed fifth out of 10 teams in the Seattle invitational tourney after losing 21-9 fo Vancouver Volleyball Club in the quarter-finals.

CLOWNING TROTTERS TRIUMPH

Mixing basketball finesse and comic routines all the way, Harlem Globetrotters defeated California Chiefs 124-90 before approximately 4,000 fans Sunday night at Memorial Arena.

Ron Knight set the scoring pace for Globetrotters with 34 points while "Twiggy" Saunders added 24. Jerry Turner was the high scorer for Chiefs with 20.

Solid Sound To Lumber

Victoria Home Lumber crushed Valkyries 87-23 in one of one of two Victoria Senior Women's Basketball League games played Sunday at the old UVic gymnasium.

In the other game, UVic Jayvees tripped First United Unitys, 61-50.

Donna Blackstock led Home Lumber with 20 points, two more than the total contributed by clubmate Dee Freethy. Mavis Turner was the top gun for Valkyries with eight points.

Yeta Dilalla sparked Jayvees with 14 points and Linda Neilson added 12 while Marie Morrison and Cindy Smith fired 13 points each for Unitys.

UVic Concert Season High

Without much fear of being proved wrong, it is possible to predict that Sunday's concert at the University of Victoria will not be eclipsed in quality and pleasure of content this season.

Two items made up the program presented in the MacLaurin Auditorium, and they could not have been in more striking contrast while at the same time preserving a sense of joyous vitality.

First half of the program was devoted to the Brahms Horn Trio, which is music to revel in and with; the second half provided a vivid performance of William Walton's fantastic Facade suite by the UVic faculty chamber ensemble conducted by George Corwin.

The horn trio is Brahms in his most radiant and jovial mood — except for the sombre adagio — a dancing, lyrical Brahms. The performers were Robin Wood, piano, Sydney Humphreys, violin, and Richard Ely, horn.

This trio of musicians was beautifully balanced and in perfect agreement, one with the other. Lovely string tone, a secure, warm and limpid horn, sensitive and articulate piano provided a richly colored, vital and moving reading of the work.

The high artistry and vitality of the performance drew a prolonged ovation from a nearly full house.

Facade is described as "an entertainment" and that it is. All sorts of familiar dance rhythms and folk-like themes are introduced into the 21 episodes which are embellished with poems by Edith Sitwell.

The wild and witty music calls for virtuosity on the part of the seven musicians involved with frequent emphasis on the percussionist, in this case, John Smith.

Others were Lanny Pollet, flute and piccolo; Kenneth Zumda, bass clarinet; Timothy Paradise, clarinet; Lynn Greenwood, alto sax; Blyde Hood, trumpet, and Linda Hougland-Daniels, cello.

It was well that Corwin, in a few introductory remarks, explained that the audience was not to worry about not hearing perfectly the two raconteurs, Joanne Corwin and David Grubb.

The words of the poems were mostly nonsense, he explained, and only there as a variation in the whole texture of sound.

Both speakers had good alto and baritone-pitched voices, excellent rhythmic awareness and well defined enunciation, but it clearly was not possible for them to ride on top of the instruments at all times, but only to emerge now and then to intrigue and delight the ear.

The whole was buoyantly lead by Corwin with a full realization of the charm and whimsical nature of the work.

Protected Animals Smuggled Abroad

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Protected animals are being captured or killed in Southeast Asia and smuggled abroad through a so-called "Singapore connection," a Bangkok newspaper said Sunday.

The Bangkok Post said gibbons, leopards and tiger skins are being shipped through Singapore, where health certificates acceptable to European and American authorities are issued.

The story by Shirley McGreal, co-chairwoman of the International Primate Protection League, said the smuggling continues despite tough laws in Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia protecting the animals.

"In order to get "hot" shipments legally respectable, they are routed to Singapore and receive official export documents and health certificates, regardless of how the animals were procured," the article said.

Although no recent figures are contained in the story, it said 77 gibbons — a protected species — were exported to the United States from Singapore in 1972.

With the recent Communist takeover in Laos, the story said, illegal shipments through Singapore probably will increase.

Few Desert Because Of Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — A defence department report says only 14 per cent of the U.S. Army deserters who participated in President Ford's clemency program "mention Vietnam as being in any way responsible for their decision to leave."

"Their reasons for leaving were generally unassociated with the war," said the Pentagon report on the president's program, which was aimed at healing divisions created by the Vietnam war.

Half of the men said they deserted because of personal, family or financial problems, the report said, and most of the remainder were unable to adjust to army life.

The clemency program, which also affected draft dodgers who never got into uniform, ran from Sept. 16, 1974, until last March 31.

According to the report, 5,555 deserters from all of the services voluntarily returned and were processed under Ford's program. This was just under 55 per cent of the total of deserters considered eligible for clemency.

The report said only 19 per cent of the deserters saw service in Vietnam and only one per cent had deserted from combat.

The deserters who voluntarily took part in the clemency program included 13 officers, including a woman who was a nurse. There were also eight enlisted women who sought clemency.

A total of 475 participating army deserters were living abroad while fugitives. Of these, the report said, 332 came from Canada, 41 from Sweden, 23 from Mexico, 19 from Germany and 60 from other places.

They're hot.

Scorpions Rally for Split

GORD HOSHAL
. . . supplies sting

Victoria Scorpions won a game they had to win Sunday but the next two also hold "must" importance if the team hopes to finish first in the Dogwood Senior "A" Men's Basketball League.

Rallying strongly in the second half, Scorpions decisioned Vancouver Athletics 77-73 Sunday at the University of Victoria gym to regain a share of first place.

Athletics and Scorpions both have 16 points, two more than Burnaby Bullets. But the Burnaby squad has two games in hand, and that's the club Victoria will face next weekend in the schedule-ending series for Scorpions.

Athletics put an end to Victoria's five-game home-floor winning streak by tripping Scorpions 72-70 at Mt. Douglas High on Saturday.

Sparked by the offensive heroics of Brent Watson and Derek Sankey, the Athletics appeared ready to make it two straight Sunday. Vancouver led 42-41 at the half and jumped into an eight-point margin at one stage in the second half.

Key baskets by Victoria's Mike Bishop, Brian MacKenzie and Gord Hoshal helped Scorpions move ahead.

The trio put spark into a mediocre Victoria shooting performance with their second-half play. Bishop scored six of his eight points in the comeback stretch before fouling out with about five minutes remaining.

While the Athletics concentrated on checking high-scoring Victoria forward Bob Burrows, MacKenzie and Hoshal also broke loose to help bring Scorpions from behind.

MacKenzie pumped in 12 of his 14 points in the second half while Hoshal, who finished with a total of 16, dropped 14 during the same stretch.

"There's no doubt we had to win this one," said coach Howard Tooby. "I don't think we played to our best form, but it still was a pretty good team effort."

Burrows, held to only 11 points Saturday, led Scorpions with 21 Sunday.

Watson, who also was effective on the boards, led all scorers with 25 while Sankey added 18. Both played key roles in Saturday's triumph with Sankey scoring 26 and Watson collecting 20.

MacKenzie led Scorpions with 18 points in Saturday's game.

Sanghara Paces Spectrum Squad

Harbinder Sanghara scored on a 60-foot shot with a mere four seconds remaining Saturday to give Spectrum a 61-60 victory over visiting Kitsilano in an exhibition high school boys' basketball game.

Sanghara finished with 33 points while clubmate Roy Gerrath added 14. Mark Terry topped Kitsilano with 20 points.

At Reynolds the same night, the Roadrunners defeated New Westminster 58-53 in a boys' game while New Westminster downed Claremont 55-32 in a girls' exhibition.

Jim Dunn led Roadrunners with 23 points and 22 rebounds while Jan Bohn led New Westminster with 26 points.

Sandra Digby set the pace for the New Westminster girls with 19 points while Lisa Atkinson sank 11 points for Claremont.

At Vancouver, Mt. Douglas Ramblers tripped Reynolds 41-33 in an all-Victoria final in the Point Grey girls' tournament.

Bev Gait led Ramblers with 10 points and Donna Rogers and Rhonda Kellar had nine each for Reynolds.

Sheila Chalmers was the whole show Saturday at Belmont when she scored 27 points, 14 in the last quarter, to lead Belmont senior girls to a pulsating 43-42 victory over New Westminster. Chalmers won the game with two free shots with 30 seconds to play. New Westminster led 29-17 at the half and 37-28 at the three-quarter mark. Sandra Digby paced New Westminster with 13 points.

RICHMOND CAPTURES TOURNEY

Richmond emerged as the winner of the third annual Esquimalt-Victoria West elementary school girls' volleyball tournament which wound up Saturday at Esquimalt High School.

Evergreen of Campbell River was the runner-up in the 10-team, round-robin affair.

Other schools competing were Green Timbers of Surrey and Fairburn, Bank Street, Macaulay, Tillicum, Rockheights and Lake Hill of Victoria.

Reynolds Takes Tourney Honors

Reynolds bounced Cedar Hill 54-33 Saturday in the final of an eight-team junior high school girls' basketball tournament at Belmont-Fisher, co-sponsored by the Victoria City Police Athletic Association.

Debbie Furmsen led Reynolds with 10 points and Terry Robinson was the top scorer for Cedar Hill with 10.

Reynolds downed Colquitz 36-19 in one semi-final while Cedar Hill gained the final with a 36-30 decision over Belmont-Fisher.

Other teams in the tourney were Highrock, Central, Oak Bay and Parkland.

Karen McComber of Reynolds was picked as the most valuable player in the tourney and was selected to the all-star team along with clubmate Lori Holroyd, Heather Kirker of Cedar Hill and Parkland players Stasia Gallagher and Linda Rebbitt.

Giants' Shift Will End Toronto's Long Wail

TORONTO (CP) — If National League owners approve transfer of San Francisco Giants to Toronto this week, they will end more than two decades of rumors.

As far back as the 1950s, baseball men were talking about Toronto as a lush baseball market, ripe for a major-league franchise.

Lou Perini, who changed baseball's map for the first time in half a century when he moved the Braves to Milwaukee from Boston in 1950, frequently said for publication that Toronto should be the next city to get a big league team.

Toronto was a cornerstone of the International League and of baseball's minor leagues before television, summer cottages and the preoccupation of sports fans with the major-leagues killed baseball here.

If the National League decides next week to approve sale of the team to a Canadian group that plans to move the team here, this city will have its first professional team since 1967.

Owners Bob Hunter and Sam Starr threw in the towel after only 67,000 fans paid their way in to Maple Leaf Stadium to watch a team that consistently led the league in attendance in the 1950s.

Baseball hit its peak in the 1950s when Jack Kent Cooke bought the team and staged nightly give-aways to pack the park on Toronto's lakefront. One of Cooke's teams attracted 446,000 patrons in a single season.

When the Mack family had to sell Philadelphia Athletics after the 1955 season, there were reports they would wind up in Toronto, but they went to Kansas City instead.

Toronto was passed up again when four teams were added in 1969 because of the city's lack of a stadium. In that round of expansion, teams went to Montreal, Seattle, San Diego and Kansas City.

Other communities added to the major league map while Toronto waited its turn were Baltimore, Anaheim, Oakland, Dallas-Fort Worth, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Atlanta, Houston and Los Angeles.

Until it was allowed to deteriorate, there were suggestions that Maple Leaf Stadium, home of the International League, could be turned into a temporary home for a big league team by adding outfield bleachers.

Talk of a domed stadium began after Houston built its Astrodome but not until 1974, when the decision was made to revamp CNE Stadium to make it suitable for baseball, did Toronto have a place to

However, there is still the chance that Toronto will have to wait a bit longer before getting major-league baseball. In San Francisco, mayor George F. Mascone announced Saturday he will go to Phoenix next week to try and dissuade National League owners from approving the sale of the Giants.

Family Tradition to Crumble With Falling Bricks

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A family tradition spanning more than 60 years will come to an end later this month when Joe Skinner does his rounds and closes the doors of the Campbell Building for the last time.

Joe's father, Tom Skinner, became the janitor there a year after the building opened in 1912. Joe joined him as assistant and understudy in 1935, and has been in the job ever since.

For a time, his mother operated the ornately-grilled Otis elevator.

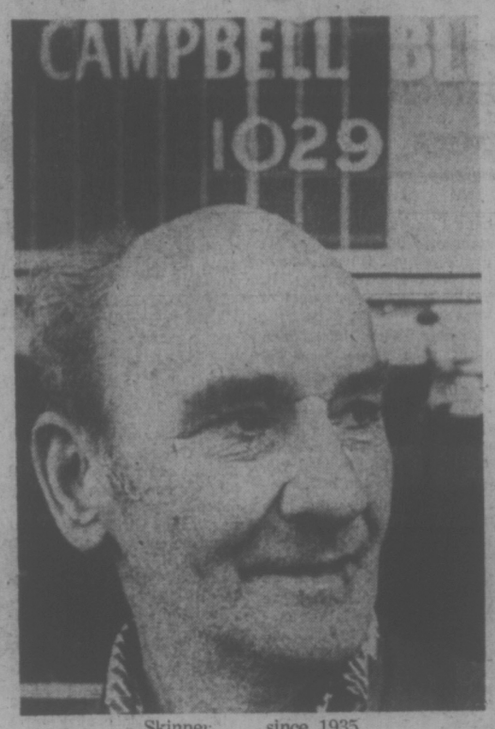
"I don't like to see it go. It's been like a home to me," Joe admitted.

But nostalgia is an almost worthless commodity in the harsh world of economics.

The Royal Bank, owners of the old eight-storey building at the corner of Fort and Douglas, has decided to close and then demolish it. The 39 tenants have been given notice to vacate by Jan. 31.

Officiaial reason given for the decision is bureaucratic insistence on upgrading the building to meet current fire safety standards. Implementing these requirements of the city fire department would be "so onerous and costly as to be positively impractical," says the bank's local agent.

However, it's long been common knowledge that the bank intended some day to pull down the structure and redevelop the site, once the necessary land assembly had been completed. Tenants have occupied their premises on a month-to-month basis for about five years.



Skinner . . . since 1935

Whatever the reason, the Campbell Building seems destined for the demoliton fate already meted out to some of its stately downtown contemporaries.

To those such as Joe Skinner and Dr. William Westwood, a dentist who has been in practice there since 1946, in the same surgery established by his dentist father in 1919, the closure is both regrettable and an irritation.

"It's damn short notice," grumbled Westwood, whose quest for new accommodation must include special requirements for plumbing and electrical installations.

But to other tenants the eviction poses a more serious problem.

Although the Campbell Building began life as a professional "skyscraper," accommodating doctors and dentists who had previously practised out of their own homes, in latter years it has become a low-rental haven for a number of community groups and social service organizations.

And spokesmen for these tenants admit they have little or no hope of finding suitable alternative accommodation in the downtown area at anything like their present rents.

On the second floor, the offices of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Institute of Vancouver Island, the Big Brothers and Big Sisters organization of B.C. and the Greenpeace Foundation stand cheek by jowl.

Mrs. Louise Olsen, president of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Institute, said the group pays $35 a month for its two rooms. It might manage $50 but otherwise the only alternative would be to operate out of one of the officials' homes.

. . . still gazing

"Someone phoned us up and offered 1,000 square feet for $450," she said, without further comment.

Penny Parker, of the Community Information service which shares office space with the Victoria Volunteer Bureau, said she believes they have been able to line up alternative premises in the downtown area, but at much more than the present $50 rental in the Campbell Building.

Rents in newer office buildings are "outrageously expensive," she added, "We're going to have to dip into our advertising budget to cover the cost of the new rent."

Nancy Goldsberg, co-ordinator of Rape Relief, said the counselling and information service has no office alternative in sight at present, and the prospects appear bleak.

Their own survival interests apart, some of the longer-established tenants concede they'll be sorry to say goodbye to the Campbell, which was built by druggist Duncan Campbell.

City archivist Ainslie Helmeken recalls that Campbell had a strange obession with stuffed animal heads, which lined the walls of his ground floor store.

His trade mark was a camel's head — possibly chosen because of its pronunciation similarity to hiw own name — and three camel's head gargoyles were incorporated into the building's facade. Two disappeared several years ago but one, on the Fort frontage, still gazes out over the city to some distant oasis.

Today the Campbell Building still retains an air of faded elegance, its marble-lined staircase providing a stark contrast with cracked wall plaster, dingy beige paint and other signs of neglect.

Wandering along the mostly-deserted corridors, it's hard to conjure up visions of busy medical and dental waiting rooms, the Conservative Club which had its home there for many years, and the seventh-floor dance hall where the oldtime revellers stomped the night away.

If the building itself can't be saved for posterity, at least some of its fittings should — and not least the magnificent brass mailbox in the foyer, built by the "Canadian Cutler Mail Chute Company Ltd., Montreal."

GROOS DEAD AT 57, BURIAL AT SEA

Former Liberal member of parliament for Victoria, David Groos, 57, of 3130 Norfolk, will be buried at sea on Thursday.

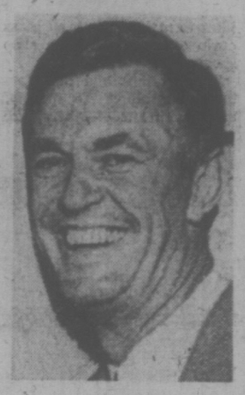
Groos died of cancer at the Royal Jubilee Hospital on Sunday. He had been ill for the past 18 months and was hospitalized Sept. 4.

Dean Brian Whitlow will officiate at a service in Christ Church Cathedral at 11 a.m. Thursday. Groos' burial at sea will take place from the deck of an armed forces vessel that afternoon.

Prior to his political career, Gross served in the Royal Canadian Navy for 26 years, retiring with the rank of captain in 1961. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross in 1945 while serving in HMCS Restigouche.

He was first elected to the House of Commons in 1963, being re-elected in 1965 and 1968.

During the nine years he was in Ottawa, he served as secretary to the minister of national defence, was executive director of the North Atlantic Council, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's top political body, and worked on the standing committee for veterans' affairs.



GROOS
. . . cancer victim

He is survived by his wife, Phyllis Elizabeth; his son, Brian, and three daughters, Laura, Madeleine and Hilary.

Groos was one of two brothers to serve as naval officers. His brother, Harold, retired with the rank of commodore and is now a real estate consultant in Victoria. Groos is also survived by his sister, Mrs. Michael (Jeanne) Reid of Kelowna.

McCall Bros. are handling funeral arrangements. The family has requested that there be no flowers. Instead, donations to the Cancer Society at 867 Caledonia would be appreciated.

Ask The Times

Q. What are people talking about when they mention the French Quarter? — N.P.

A. Probably the French Quarter of New Orleans, the oldest and most famous section of the city. The area is much the same as it was in the 1700s and 1800s.

Q. I've never been sure of the difference between a producer and the director of a television show. Please enlighten me. — R.T.

A. The producer is the most important man on the show. He is to a television program what a captain is to a ship. It's his responsibility to plan the show, choose the performers, supervise the writing and attend rehearsals. His chief assistant is the director who has the actual job of putting the show on the air. He chooses which picture from three or four cameras should be telecast at a given moment, tells actors how they should say their lines and how they should move about the stage.

Freezer Plug Blamed For Fire

A short circuit in a freezer plug outlet is blamed for causing a fire in Sam Kee and Sons grocery Store, 143 Moss early Sunday.

A spokesman for the Victoria fire department said the fire, reported at 6:44 a.m. caused about $3,500 damage to one wall and some grocery stock piled against the wall and on top of the freezer.

Citizens Buying 'Like There's No Tomorrow'

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victorians have just completed their biggest three - month spending spree in 25 years, according to a survey by the regional office of Canada Manpower.

Spending on consumer goods and services in this area during October, November and December was up 4.9 per cent from the previous three months, the biggest jump since 1951.

At the same time, the amount of credit buying increased 15.2 per cent.

The buying reached its peak in the Christmas season. One Sideny store said sales were up 30 per cent from the previous Christmas. Victoria stores reported increases in the 15 per cent range.

Adding to store revenues was a definite trend toward expensive Christmas presents this year.

"Store managers report that Victorians were buying like there's no tormorrow," said Stan Purdy, regional manager for Canada Manpower.

"It seems just like the wartime attitude: Live for today because no one knows what tomorrow will bring."

Sales were brisk across the city during the Christmas season. One store manager reported sales a little slow during the first week of December, better in the second and then "it took off like a skyrocket during the last 10 days."

Retail sales were the brightest spot in a year that was otherwise mixed from an employment viewpoint.

There was widespread unemployment among young people, with jobs for students particularly scarce. The forest industry shutdown during the summer months eliminated a number of jobs that traditionally are available for the students.

"In 1976 we are not expecting a big year, but hopefully it will be a little better than 1975," Purdy said.

There are indications of an improvement in the forest industry and continuing strength in the retail sector. With economic conditions improving in the United States, there could be a better tourist flow this summer.

A major concern is the expiry of contracts for the construction industry at the end of April and for various provincial government workers during the year.

Purdy said they were two key industries for the Victoria economy and a labor disruption in one or both could have a serious impact on the prosperity of the district.

The job outlook for students is rather bad, he said. Although jobs should be available in the woods this year there is otherwise very little available for young people.

A December economic survey, compiled by district Canada Manpower information officer Dan Bowes, contained the following highlights:

—Retail sales in December ranged from good to excellent.

—Restaurant revenue has increased more than 11 per cent.

—Yarrows Ltd. dockyard hired 75 additional employees in December to handle repair work, bringing the total work force to 775.

—Construction is brisk on residential and commercial structures (except for rental apartments) and union spokesmen say unemployment is almost nil. Some construction workers have taken jobs elsewhere on the Island where demand is also high.

—Hiring is restrained at the provincial legislature with employees being brought in on a replacement basis only. The work list has a peak of 125 vacancies, down from a high of 225 in November.

—There is little activity in agriculture, fishing and logging but some indications that market conditions are improving for sawmills.

NEW KIND OF REFEREE FOR 'BATTLING COUPLES'

Sheila Bell, Const. Herb Wetherell

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

The days when policemen acted alone to settle family squabbles or juvenile delinquency in Esquimalt may soon be a thing of the past.

Community workers and some social workers will be right alongside policemen Friday and Saturday nights . . . the two nights in a week most family and juvenile cases come to the fore.

Chief Art Burton said "social and community workers have the time and expertise needed to handle these situations . . . the policeman doesn't.

"All he can do is answer the call; if it's a married couple or common law couple arguing all we can do is try and get them to seek help. That's all.

"But with someone trained in the social scene along, they can give almost immediate attention to the problem and also carry on with the follow-up visits to see if relations are progressing."

Burton admits that at times a uniform — especially if it's a younger constable—may cause the "battling couples" to say: "What the heck do you know."

"This new concept—for us at least—takes it out of the police station and puts it in the hands of the poeple who are responsible—the social services," he said.

At present community workers Shirley Wakeham and Sheila Bell, who cover the Vic West, Esquimalt and View Royal areas, ride the cars most weekends. As well, some of the social workers from the Vic West and Esquimalt offices also go out on a volunteer basis but not on a regular stint.

Discussions are still going on and it is hoped that in the near future this will be part of the social worker's "day."

Chief Burton stressed that the policeman will still be the first one to assess the situation. He will enter the house and call a social worker if necessary.

Burton said his constables are taking training at the police college in Vancouver in how to handle such situations.

There is another aspect of the program which Burton and the social services staff would like to see incorporated.

If it can be done, Burton would like to see "tickets" issued in the case of family or juvenile cases. The summons would force the person or persons "within a set time period" to consult either a member of the social services team or any other appropriate agency.

Burton said the numbers of calls dealing with "family" or social cases is increasing tremendously and there is no way the police alone can handle the problem.

He cited the case of a woman who called the Esquimalt station 30 times in one day.

"This is an extreme but it points up the problem."

The police, added Burton, will still be involved to investigate law-breaking in a dispute "but with us and the social team working together it will be a better utilization of manpower and a better service to the people we serve here."

So if you see any of Esquimalt's four cars with a woman in the front seat beside the policeman, she's not being arrested. She's there to cut down and hopefully to prevent an arrest for some troubled man, woman or child.

$500,000 For Empress Changes

The Empress Hotel will spend $500,000 to renovate 150 rooms and make alterations to the kitchen of its Garden Cafe, hotel manager Ted Balderson said today.

The work is scheduled to be completed before summer. New carpets, drapes and bedspreads are being purchased for the rooms along with new lamps and other small pieces.

Alterations to the cafe kitchen are designed to speed up the service. A new dishwasher will be purchased for $30,000.

The hotel normally spends between $200,000 and $300,000 per year on renovations.

Still on the drawing boards are plans for a swimming pool and expansion for parking but no decision has been made. It might be some years before money becomes available for those two projects, Balderson said.

$50M Bond Issue For B.C. Railway

A $50 million bond issue for B.C. Railway was authorized by the provincial cabinet last week.

Cabinet orders made public today showed the 25-year bonds will carry an interest rate of 10.4 per cent payable half-yearly.

Also included in the orders is a readjustment of salaries for directors of the Mediation Services Commssion.

Director Roy Macdonald will receive a salary of $28,600, retroactive to Oct. 1, 1974. His salary had been $27,600, so he will receive about $1,250 in retroactive pay.

Assistant directors Gus Leonidas and Clark Gilmour will receive $28,000 retroactive to April 1, 1975, up from $26,000.

NEW YORK (NYT) — Most women remember when George Masters turned Lynda Bird Johnson from a sparrow into a swan. And when Ann-Margret fell and badly injured her face, it was Masters who was called into make her up after the plastic surgery. Currently, he is working his miracles with make-up at the Bergdorf Goodman beauty salon here, and a number of women who dream of looking like glamor girls are lining up for a chance to be transformed by him.

George Master's miracles don't come cheap. The fee for a 20-minute make-up is $150. ("I haven't raised my prices with inflation," he explained.) If the customer also follows his suggestions about her coiffure and hair color, the tab may go up by $100 more.

Although Masters started out as a hairdresser, he doesn't actually work on hair any more. He explains his ideas to the client and then turns her over to a Bergdorf stylist. Once her hair is done, he does her face.

Masters gave up his Beverly Hills salon some years ago. Now he tours the country, establishing himself in a department store salon for a week or two, taking about seven appointments a day. He explains that his customers aren't just the sable-clad rich. The other day at Bergdorf's, he had made over an airline stewardess, a salesclerk and a housewife — "Just normal people," he said.

But why would a "normal woman plunk down so much money? Because he promises that a woman will look as pretty as she possibly can when he's through with her. He won't make her look freaky; he considers a woman's age, clothes and way of life when he is wielding his brushes. He thinks the idea of changing fashions in make-up is silly.

"The average woman shouldn't walk around with brown streaks on her cheeks," he said firmly. "Don't overdo. Don't copy fashion magazines. You have a face of your own, not a 20-year-old model's. Save up your money for cosmetic surgery — there are very good doctors in New York."

Calling All Vic High Students

elizabeth forbes

Hear Ye! Hear Ye! All those who, at any time, attended Victoria High School.

This is the year in which the school marks its hundredth birthday and you are invited to return to its classrooms and halls for a gala weekend, May 7-9, to help celebrate that historic event.

An exciting program is being arranged under direction of Lawrie Wallace, a former student and teacher at the school and now British Columbia's deputy provincial secretary.

"We'd like to see every former student of Victoria High here for the reunion," Wallace says, "especially any who attended the school at the Fort-Yates-Fernwood Road location."

First Victoria High School opened its doors August 7, 1876, in an old district school house at the head of Yates Street, about opposite the present fire hall.

This two-room school, on land donated by the Hudson's Bay Company as a school reserve, was available because a new public school had been opened on the same acreage. (It was known later as Boy's Central School.)

About 70 pupils were enrolled in that first high school.

Extracurricular activities included a boys' debating club named the Lyceum, that met once a week; a boys' paper called The Leisure Hour and a girls' paper, The Hyacinth.

"It is thought these papers were oral and that the items when written, were then read out," Wallace says.

At the end of the 1876-77 term, 31 boys and 23 girls passed their tests.

That school served as the only high school in the province until one was established in New Westminster in 1884. A third was opened in Nanaimo in 1886.

Eventually, of course, the school became too small. So, in 1892, a second was built, adjoining the new public school.

It was followed, in 1902, by a third and much larger building fronted on Fernwood Road. (Later it became the Girls' Central School and today it is part of Central Junior High School.)

It wasn't long until that building, too, had outgrown its usefulness and plans for another school were on the drawing board — this time at a site on Camosun Street.

The cornerstone was laid on September 14, 1912, and the school was officially opened in the spring of 1914.

During the past few months letters, over the Wallace signature, have gone out to all Canadian newspapers publicizing the anniversary and inviting former students and staff members to join the home-coming weekend.

Information has also been broadcast over radio and television networks.

Already well over 1,000 have registered for the reunion and Wallace predicts "at least 6,000" will probably be here in May.

"Right now, however, it is the pioneers who attended the Fort-Yates Fernwood schools that we are eager to contact," he says.

With this in mind he has named a special pioneers' committee headed by Mrs. W. D. (Winsome) Oliver, daughter of the late Harry H. Smith, a former principal of the school.

Anyone with information about such pioneers should get in touch with her by telephoning 592-6260.

To date the oldest ex-student discovered is Mrs. Fred Shepherd (Martha McConnell) who attended Victoria High School in 1887.

She graduated with high honors three years later, in 1890.

Program highlights for the May weekend include a musical extravaganza, Come Give A Cheer, at Memorial Arena.

It has a cast of 200 past and present students, some who are now professional entertainers. The director is a high school teacher, Tommy Mayne.

A sports breakfast, a dinner for pioneers, a centennial tea, a garden party and an anniversary ball, also in the Memorial Arena, with dancing to the music of Mart Kenny and his orchestra, are all in the plans.

An archives that "hopefully" will be permanent is being organized by Victoria high teacher Faith Reimer. She is looking for pictures and other memorabilia, including old-time Camosun year books particularly before 1912, that could be donated or loaned to the school.

First High School — 1876

A book on the school's history has been written by Dr. Peter Smith and will be available on the anniversary weekend.

Two pre-celebration events are also arranged.

The first on February 20 will see a plaque unveiled at the present school building, with the date the school opened, 62 years ago.

Shortly before the May weekend there will be a party at University of Victoria, for former and present staff members and their wives and husbands.

Twenty committees with between 200 and 300 volunteers are working hard to make this hundredth birthday of Victoria High School, a success.

"What we need is to get the message to all former students inviting them to register early," Lawrie Wallace says.

Registration can be done through Victoria High School or by writing to P.O. Box 1976, Victoria, B.C.

Couples may register — but if they do, one at least, must be a former student.

Further information is available by telephong the school at 388-5456, weekdays.

An information and registration booth will also be set up in the Hillside Mall, January 30 and 31.

The $3 registration fee places a person registering on the celebration committee's mailing list.

Czechs Go Wild Over Mushrooms

PRAGUE (AP) — One of the surest ways for a Czech to get his picture in a newspaper is to find a huge mushroom.

Fond parents usually forgo their chances for brief fame by passing the credit to their offspring, so newspaper readers find out that schoolboy Vladimir Trnka found two champignon mushrooms together weighing five pounds or that another boy found one as large as a football.

Czechoslovakia claims 1,400 varieties growing within its borders. Some are so rare they appear only once in 20 years.

The town of Stachy is famous for growing the king of mushrooms—the chubby boletus. These are protected and each is fixed with a number and "date of birth." In 1974, 200 were counted. By late October 1975, 135 had poked up their brown caps.

Mushroom picking is such a rage in the fall that even black limousines of top officials can be seen parked along the edges of forests where mushrooms are bountiful.

But the mushroom craze can be carried too far. In Hradec Kralove, for instance, the town council had to prohibit mushroom picking in the local cemetery.

Mushroom picking is not limited to the fall. Some hardy varieties thrive under snow and soon appear in the spring when the snow begins to melt.

Despite continual warnings in the press, 10 to 20 Czechoslovaks die each year of mushroom poisoning. Last July there was a mass poisoning at Velka Ida in which 19 persons went to hospital and eight died.

If the Roof of Your Dollhouse Falls In, Simply Call the Miniature Plasterer

By LISA HAMMEL

NEW YORK (NYT) — Edward Acevado is a plumber and electrician.

Dorothy Wade is an architect.

James Fraser is a fancy plasterworker.

Not very unusual occupations, you say? Well it's true, except that these people perform their services for collectors of dollhouses.

There are now so many people making or servicing miniatures — a collecting hobby that has grown tremendously in popularity in the last few years — that today you can find a tiny counterpart of almost anything that exists in a real house.

If the little people in your house are having a birthday party, for example, Linda De Ritter can make you a cake (nonedible, however). If you have a kitchen to outfit, Harry Littwin, who is now retired, can cupply the copper pots and pans.

If your miniature library looks rather naked, Jane Bernier, who used to be a dental hygienist, can actually print and bind tiny books.

Edward Acevado, in his full-scale life, is an interior decorator. A few years ago, as "a therapy to help me stop smoking," he began handcarving copies of antique furniture.

It didn't stop his smoking, but he has gone on to acquire a number of miniature skills. One of them is the electrification of dollhouses. He will even install a little light above a what-not case to show off miniature objects d'art.

"If a dollhouse is too large to be moved, I come complete with a soldering gun, wires and my tool kit," he said. He does the work right on the premises and conceals all the wiring behind moldings or in the ceiling of the dollhouse.

Acevado is also a plumber of miniatures. He makes the fixtures himself, but the actual turning on and turning off of the water has to be done manually behind the wall of the room. He also restores miniature furniture and is particularly proud of his finishes.

And if all you're starting with is the four walls and roof, Acevado will do the decorating.

If, on the other hand, you don't even have a dollhouse, but want to make one or have it made, Dorothy Wade will design it and plan it out, in any style you want.

Like many of the miniature makers, Mrs. Wade covers a wide field. She will do the decorating, electrify the house, make the fixtures and furnitre and even do the upholstering.

"I use real mahogany and walnut for the furniture," she said, "and I give people samples of the fabrics so they can choose."

She has been involved with miniatures for "hundreds of years," she said. "I lived on a farm when I was young and there was no one to play with, and I loved building things, so I started making doll furniture."

Among her other specialties are harpsichords, harps and grandfather's clocks, which she overlays with tiny dried flowers from her own herb garden and then shellacs.

James Fraser, who is retired now, was a carpenter and plaster specialist. He still is; he just does everything very small. He can fit out a miniature house with any kind of ceiling or wall or fireplace molding, or cover a room with wood panelling, or do hard-carved beams. He also likes to make curvefront glass curio cabinets and little shop showcases.

The services and manufactures of all these people, along with lots of others, are available through Mini Mundus, a shop devoted exclusively to miniatures at 1030 Lexington Avenue in New York City.

U.K. EXPERT RECOMMENDS TEACHING TOTS TO DRINK

LONDON (Reuter) — Parents should encourage their children to drink moderately at home to take the mystique out of alcohol, says a British education expert.

It is no good trying to stop children drinking as they will try it anyway, says Marcus Grant, education director of the Alcohol Education Centre, writing in a London magazine.

Grant added it is far better that children should do their drinking in the controlled atmosphere of their own homes than in uncontrolled and unsupervised surroundings.

Grant practices what he preaches — he allows his six-year-old daughter Rachel to have the occasional glass of diluted wine or beer.

"I do not forbid alcohol to my six-year-old daughter, who does not appear to be developing an unnatural craving for the drug — and will just be just as likely, when offered the choice, to select orange juice as wine or beer," he said.

The children most likely to develop a drink problem are those whose parents are alcoholic or teetotal, he said.

Too Busy To Eat

DEAR ABBY: I guess maybe love is blind, but I should have known something was wrong when Freddy didn't show up for dinner half the time and would get home at dawn.

Also he'd go on a lot fishing and hunting" trips, but he'd never tell me how I could reach him in case of emergency.

Well, it all became clear when two young girls came to my house yesterday. One of the girls said she was my husband's "fiance" and started telling me all the heartbreaking details about how Freddy had promised to marry her as soon as our "divorce" was final. She said her home was 150 miles away, but that she'd quit her job, sold everything and moved here waiting for Freddy's divorce to come through so they could be married. She was also six months pregnant.

I asked her to stay until Freddy came home. When he got here and saw her, he nearly died. He admitted having "known" her, but denied that he promised to marry her. I knew he was lying and told him so. He exploded and then took off and left me with an hysterical, pregnant girl on my hands.

What do you make of this mess? What would you do in my place?

FREDDY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Freddy sounds like a pathological liar to me. He needs to see a lawyer and a doctor. And if he refuses to do so, I'd see a lawyer and tell Freddy to get lost.

DEAR ABBY: After 33 years of what I thought was a happy, solid marriage, my husband asked for a divorce to marry a 22-year-old girl.

Abby, I know that old men think they are lucky to get young girls, but what could a young girl see in a man who is old enough to be her father?

After the settlement, he will have very little money—so it can't be money.

HEART BROKEN

DEAR HEART BROKEN: Don't rule out the possibility that she could "love" him. "Love" means different things to different people. We never really know what is in the hearts and minds of others.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 26-year-old waitress who has been working in restaurants since the age of 13. I am now employed at one of the finest cocktail-dinner spots in town and hope you'll print this. It would help waitresses immensely if the public would follow these simple rules.

1. Please don't holler across the dining room at your waitress, especially, "Hey girlie!" Also, don't snap your fingers or whistle at us. (We aren't dogs.)

2. If you're not satisfied with your food, please don't snarl at us. Calmly state your complaint, and we will be glad to get you something else and report it to the management.

3. When the waitress hands you a menu, please study it and decide what you want so that when she comes back she can take your order. (About 95 per cent of the customers never look at their menus until the waitress comes back to take their orders. The customers are then annoyed because it takes so long to be served.)

4. If it says, "No substitutes" on the menu, please don't ask if you can substitute.

5. Tell the waitress when you order if you want everything on one check or separate checks.

6. If you're going to fight over the check, please don't tear the check in half!

Thanks, Abby!

WANTS TO PLEASE

DEAR WANTS: That's a switch. A tip from a waitress. I hope it helps.

WHEELS

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike:

I've got a 1971 Skylark. Can I file my ignition points instead of changing them? Also, is it all right to mix different brands of oil in the crankcase?

UNSURE

Dear Unsure:

No to both questions. Grinding or filing pitted ignition points is a short-term cure. They'll soon pit or burr again. And different brands of oil have different properties. Different weights of the same brand and line of oil are okay, but you're best off sticking with one good brand throughout a car's lifetime.

Dear Mike:

My 1970 Montego has standard transmission. I can coast a long part of the way from my home to downtown. Does coasting hurt anything? Is it advisable?

THE COASTER

Dear Coster:

It might make your clutch throwout bearing wear a little sooner, but I see no harm otherwise if you take the following precaution: Never shift into neutral while coasting. Always leave your transmission in gear and cost by pushing in the clutch pedal. This gives you some engine braking if you get into an emergency. An never coast on slippery or icy roads.

I want to add, too, that cars with automatic transmission should never be coasted, not even down short hills. Coasting can ruin an automatic.

Dear Mike:

I own a 1970 Rambler that I bought used because it has overdrive. Was overdrive a factory option that year or did someone custom-install mine?

CURIOUS

Dear Curious:

According to Automotive Industries Magazine, 1970 was the last year any U.S. automaker offered behind-the-transmission overdrive like yours. Only 1454 units were sold that year in all cars, so yours is very rare.

Spinach Pie: What a Surprise!

By HILDA BEASTALL

New ways of using quite ordinary vegetables are welcomed as a means of making them an enjoyable part of daily meals. Some of us are lucky enough to like spinach, kale and cabbage as they are, plain, cooked or uncooked, or both. Some families ask for them disguised or at least minimized by other ingredients.

One or the other of these three green vegetables are available now to everyone locally, from stores or from the garden or allotment. Kale is a winter garden vegetable that I have never seen for sale commercially. Swiss chard is a winter grown substitute for spinach. The imported spinach now in stores is worth the price, for an enormous amount is packed into the plastic bags. Canned spinach is a decided second-best choice in flavor, texture and is higher in price. Kale and Swiss chard is not canned to my knowledge.

When using fresh spinach, or Swiss chard from store or garden, wash each leaf quickly by hand in tepid water to remove grit lodging in the crinkled leaves. Shake off most of the water.

Cook in a covered pan for five minutes after coming to boil, using only a spoonful more water than remains on the leaves. Cutting the leaves (when they are large) into about one-inch lengths on a chopping board makes for easier handling.

Drain off the juice, keeping it for gravy or soup. It contains the vitamim and mineral content lost from the vegetable.

Spinach Pie is unusual to most families yet makes a delicious dish to go with any supper, or a complete lunch at noon for the children. There is no pastry, so serve with warmed homemade bread slices or buns spread with a little margarine topped with a spoonful of peanut butter. Will they be surprised!

Spinach Pie

3 cups lightly cooked spinach
¼ tsp. dried chives
3 tbsp. soft margarine
3 small eggs, beaten
½ cup dry skim milk
1 tbsp. chopped raw peanuts
3 tbsp. grated Cheddar cheese
Paprika and dill seeds, a few

Lightly grease a 9-inch pie plate or other shallow glass baking dish.

Add chives (if available and margarine to spinach. Beat eggs, add skim milk powder, nuts and cheese. Combine with spinach. Spoon into greased dish; sprinkle with paprika and a few dill seeds.

Bake in moderate oven at 177 deg. C for 30 minutes until almost firm and lightly browned.

To enjoy this same nutritious and tasty dish without using oven heat, follow this procedure: Lightly cook the spinach; drain off liquid, keeping it for soup. Add all other ingredients to the hot spinach, and heat for 3 minutes, without boiling, just to cook the eggs and melt the margarine and cheese without toughening. Serve on crisp toasted homemade buns.

The same recipe is used when making Kale Pie; this will be a fluffier texture because of the crinkled leaves keeping their shape even when cut into one-inch lengths.

Kale leaves need careful washing before use, though in the garden they grow on plants 12 to 15 inches tall, so that splashing with soil in wet weather is not so common as with spinach.

I have an unorthodox use for kale to pass on to you if you have not also thought of it. When parsley is scarce or only to be obtained by dressing for soaking wet rain or snow to pick the few pieces from the garden, then I use a quantity of kale leaf to take its place. I cut out the center stem, using the leafy part cut quite fine.

Not only is the color naturally a good bright green, but kale tends to keep its texture. The flavor as pointed out in a previous column is not cabbagy although it is related.

Balcony gardeners will find a couple of kale plants, each planted in a nine-inch tub, enough to keep two people with fresh and cooked greens from November until late March. The oldest and largest leaves are beautiful in flower arrangements with a flower.

Cabbage too can be beautiful if treated right. First when buying, choose a small solid head and the greenest you can find. The flavor is better than the larger cabbages.

A dish of freshly prepared Cabbage in Yogurt is a treat that goes with almost any main course for dinner or supper. If you like sour cream with cabbage you will like yogurt, especially if you make it yourself with skim milk powder.

Green Cabbage With Yogurt Dressing

1 small cabbage (about 4 cups shredded)
3 tbsp. soft margarine
1 tsp. sugar (optional)
¼ tsp. salt
1 small egg
¼ cup non instant skim milk powder
½ cup homemade yogurt (from skim powder)
1 tbsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. caraway or dill seeds (optional)

Remove core and damaged outer leaves from cabbage. Even these can be cooked for soup liquid for their minerals and vitamins.

Melt margarine in a large frypan or skillet having a lid. Cook finely shredded cabbage in margarine for about 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Use gentle heat, not a frying heat. When done but still crisp, add sugar and salt.

Beat egg with yogurt, lemon juice and skim milk powder, and mix into hot cabbage. Cover, and leave on hot stove (without boiling action) for 3 minutes just to cook egg but not to spoil yogurt bacteria. Sprinkle with caraway or dill seeds and serve.

Another way is to add the yogurt before serving just long enough to heat a couple of minutes without spoiling it, yet not cooling the cabbage. Serve with any main course or as a lunch on toasted or warmed homemade bread topped with Cheddar cheese.

A favorite cabbage dish because it is really a surprise is called Cabbage Surprise. I have given this recipe before when the first summer cabbages were ready. Now we use storage or imported cabbage to enjoy it again in winter.

This is an oven dish to cook at moderate heat while baking apples or other type of fruit dessert to conserve electricity.

Green Cabbage Surprise

2 tbsp. soft margarine
4 cups shredded green cabbage
4 slices whole wheat bread
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup wholewheat flour
1 tbsp. brewer's yeast
½ cup ground raw peanuts
¼ cup seedless raisins
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. fresh lemon juice
4 small eggs, separated

Simmer cabbage in margarine 5 minutes in covered pan. Stir occasionally.

Meanwhile, soak bread, with crusts, in boiling water until soft. Drain off surplus water. Mix in flour, yeast, nuts, raisins, salt, lemon juice and egg yolks until well blended. Add to the cabbage, mixing well. Then fold in stiffly beaten egg whites.

Spoon into greased 1½ quart casserole and bake in moderate oven 177 degs. C. for about 30 minutes or until set and lightly browned. Serves 4 as a low cost protein meal with other vegetables.

In its original form this recipe was discovered in an English cookbook which is part of the "surprise" angle. As a nation, the Britishers have not been favorably known for their treatment of cabbage, a food which grows so well in their climate.

Halve the recipe ingredients to serve one complete meal satisfying and delicious in its blend of flavors.

Here again we have protein at low cost, plus a great variety of flavors possible when combined with herbs and with complementary vegetables.

Long Life Recipe —Russian Style

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Hard work, a diet of vegetables and dairy products plus the odd glass of wine make up the prescription for long life, says a Soviet study published Friday.

The recipe for old age is gleaned from a survey of the lifestyles of more than 100 men and women aged between 80 and 110 years living in the Caucasus where inhabitants are renowned for longevity.

A Tass news agency report said the survey showed that old people in the region continued to work after reaching normal pension age and existed on a basic diet of fresh vegetables and milk products.

Only one in seven men did not drink. The others observe the local custom of raising a glass of wine to a guest's health, Tass reported.

Plyushch Reaches France

PARIS — Soviet dissident mathematician Leonid Plyushch arrived in France Sunday night, still suffering from the effect of drugs administered to him in the Ukrainian mental hospital where he was held for nearly three years until his release on Thursday.

Maria Sinyavsky, wife of literary critic Andrei Sinyavsky who emigrated here in 1973 after serving a prison sentence for anti-state activities, said Plyushch confided that he was given injections on Thursday.

Later that day, he was told he was being released and was taken to the Soviet-Hungarian border point of Chop where he boarded a train with his wife and children for Vienna.

Plyushch was shielded from the public on his arrival at Orly Airport Sunday evening, but his wife briefly answered journalists' questions.

"He is still under the effects of some drugs and that is why he cannot talk to you," Mrs. Plyushch said.

Mrs. Plyushch attributed her husband's release to an international campaign on his behalf.

Plyushch was arrested on anti-Soviet charges in his home city of Kiev in 1972 and committed to an asylum the following year for "slowly creeping schizophrenia" and "a paranoid disorder characterized by reformist ideas."

Grandpa's Flashers Wage War on Porn

ACOMB, England—Grandfather Horace Bulmer and his anti-pornography vigilantes say they are winning the battle against sex films in this quiet Yorkshire village. Bulmer, 63, said Sunday that "within five minutes I can get 40 residents out" to shout "dirty old men" and shine flashlights in the faces of patrons coming out of a cinema club that shows x-rated films. He said he has not seen any of the films himself.

STAN AND OLLIE NOW TOP OF POPS

LONDON — Up in the top 10 best-selling records in Britain is a long-forgotten disc recorded nearly 40 years ago by Laurel and Hardy.

Th Trail of the Lonesome Pine was No. 3 last week and No. 2 the week beefore. It has sold nearly half a million copies since a television revival of Way Out West, the 1937 movie in which Stan and Ollie sang it.

Its success has startled United Artists, the record company that issued it in November.

"It shot right into the top 100 at No. 48," said United Artists executive Alan Warner, a Laurel and Hardy fan who dug the song out of the archives.

"Three weeks later it was in the top five."

Warner, a specialist in reviving neglected songs from Hollywood musicals, included The Trail of the Lonesome Pine in an album he compiled of songs and gag routines from vintage comedy classics.

He issued the Laurel and Hardy track as a single, hoping it would be played on radio networks to promote the album. It surprised him and record industry pundits by snowballing into the oddest hit of the decade.

"They laughed at us when we issued the record," Warner recalled. "But the deejays loved it."

"They played it day and night," said music writer Dave Meehan. "Everybody was humming it."

TENANTS SEEKING RENT HIKE CHOPS

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The North Shore Tenants' Association has written a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau asking that the British Columbia rent ceiling of 10.6 per cent be reduced to eight per cent.

Premier Bill Bennett has said the current limit would remain.

A spokesman for the federal Anti-Inflation Board said the letter to Trudeau would probably be referred to the board.

The association said the 10.6 limit is "in violation of the federal guidelines."

Stun Gun Ban Feb. 1

OTTAWA (CP) — The electric "stun gun" which incapacitates victims with a 50,000-volt shock will be banned in Canada Feb. 1, Justice Minister Ron Basford said today.

Basford said in a news release that the gun has been placed on the government's prohibited list, making it a criminal offence to buy, sell or possess the weapon.

Tests conducted by the National Research Council and the RCMP did not rule out the gun's capacity to kill, Mr. Basford said.

"The risk of this potentially lethal weapon falling into the hands of criminals is too great to allow it to be sold, manufactured or imported into Canada," he said.

The gun, made by Taser Systems Inc. of Los Angeles, and known as the Taser "public defender," incapacitates by means of an electric shock delivered through two wires which can be shot a distance of up to 18 feet.

Chinese Bugs Could Save Trees

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

One of Canadas top entomologists says he thinks there are some bugs in China which might help control insects which destroy millions of trees in Canada.

Dr. D. Ross Macdonald, deputy director of the Pacific Forest Research Centre on Burnside Road, recently returned from a visit to China where he studied parasites (prerator insects) for controlling forest pests.

"Yes, I saw some biological control organisms which look promising," he said in an interview, "but before they can be brought into Canada, the matter has to be negotiated between the two countries."

Macdonald did, however, bring back materials which might eventually benefit the forest industry.

They included seeds of two species of trees — the Korean Pine and the Siberian Larch. They will be tested to determine if they grow well in Canada and will also be used for cross-breeding.

He also brought cuttings of popular hybrids.

"If these trees perform as well as they do in Nanking, then we will have a really good wood producing tree," he said.

MACDONALD
. . . back from China

Macdonald said he was impressed with some social practices he saw in China — such as dedication of the people to a policy of self-sufficiency and work.

"The emphasis seemed to be not to talk about doing things, but to do it," he said.

He said, however, the Chinese appear fearful of war.

"There was evidence of civil defence activity in most places I visited," he said. "The Chinese fear an attack from Russia and this would bring in the United States."

His observation on living conditions was that people ate well and there was housing for everyone.

Canada, he noted, is a favored nation in China, partly due to the reverence the people have for Norman Bethune, the Canadian doctor who saved thousands of lives during the civil war.

"The warmth for Canada is genuine," he said.

China, with a population of about 700 million, has a strong birth control program, he said. No one is allowed to get married before age 28 — except for minorities, such as the Tibetians.

Macdonald said he didn't think he was a very important person until he reached Hong Kong.

"When I got there I showed my special passport to the immigration officer," he said. "The man looked at it and asked me how I had entered China. I told him via Shanghai and then by plane to Peking.

"Sir, you must be a very important person," replied the officer. "Tourists and businessmen enter China via Hong Kong."

B.C. HYDRO RATES UP?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Bonner, recently appointed chairman of British Columbia Hydro, said Sunday that efficiency and economy will be the guiding ideas behind future operations of the crown corporation.

Bonner, following a week of meetings with Hydro officials, said he's impressed with corporation executives. He said the expertise is available to run a good operation, which he added will be streamlined.

The former Social Credit cabinet minister said Hydro must seek ways to increase revenues to meet demands for more energy.

Offshore Rigs Easy Targets

LONDON (Reuter) A top North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) admiral has called for national offshore naval and air squadrons with international policing powers during peace time to protect oil installations in the North Sea from risk of hijacking and terrorism.

This was disclosed in a report published today arising from a confidential international seminar on the security of North Sea oil held in London last June under NATO auspices.

Rear-Admiral Albert Besnard, Dutch chief of NATO's Allied Staff Channel Command, told the seminar that, at present, the determined and well-organized terrorist, given the right conditions, would have little difficulty in getting aboard a rig or platform.

The seminar brought together more than 100 persons from the 15 NATO countries — many of them experts on defence and oil matters. The meeting was chaired by Prof. Eugene Rostow, a former U.S. under-secretary of state for political affairs.

Besnard said any protection plan must ensure a quick response. At the same time, there must be an adequate naval and air presence in the area.

"I am sure that if the military forces are seen regularly in the oil and gas fields, they would serve to deter the attacker," he said.

The admiral said that if a 200-mile exclusive economic zone was accepted, countries would have a considerable problem policing their enlarged territory.

"The formation of national offshore squadrons consisting of ships and aircraft with responsibilities beyond fishery protection area possible solution," he said.

However, he said he believes if some form of international agreement — perhaps on the lines of fishery protection — could be achieved, it would serve to make the best use of available Western European forces.

LRB Rejects Appeal On Kelowna Ruling

KELOWNA (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board has rejected a second bid by Kelowna city council to appeal the board's ruling on a job-evaluation study of pay rates for the city's 275 municipal workers.

The workers, members of local 338 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), have been on strike since Sept. 3 in support of wage parity with their coastal counterparts.

The union is demanding that the city honor a commitment to adhere to the findings of a joint city-union job-evaluation study completed last August. The study was based on a Kamloops study and recommended wage parity with coastal CUPE workers.

The city claims many job classifications in the study were erroneous and if implemented would see half the Kelowna CUPE employees paid more than coastal CUPE workers.

The Labor Relations Board has upheld the union to the extent that it ruled the city should have paid the Kamloops rates, effective Jan. 1, 1975, but only until Sept. 3, when the strike began.

The labor board's decision to uphold this earlier ruling was termed "a victory for the union" by city Ald. Bert Roth.

He said the decision is "extremely frustrating for the council."

Ken Preston, president of the Kelowna CUPE local, said, "we are satisfied that after two tries the city must realize that we are correct."

"We are ready to begin serious talks again, including those on job classifications," he said.

The municipal workers have been without a contract for more than a year.

The city has offered outside workers a wage increase of 21.5 per cent in the first year and an increase of 13.5 per cent in the second year of a two-year agreement. Inside workers have been offered increases of 18 per cent and 10 per cent.

Base rate for outside workers is $4.41 an hour under the old contract. The job-evaluation study would increase the annual base salary to $12,800.

Seaman Treated

A Victoria seaman taken off a Canadian Coast Guard weather ship by helicopter Saturday was treated for an eye injury and released from Victoria General Hospital.

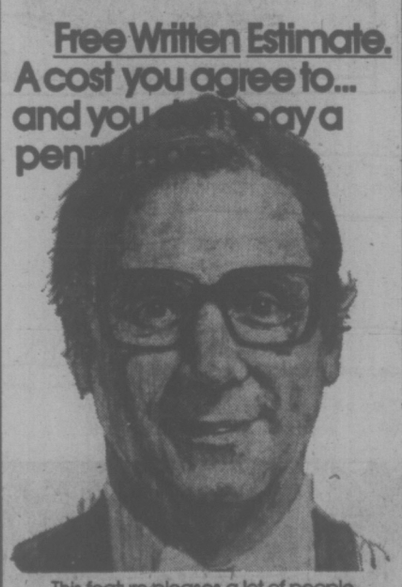
Jim Shaw, who had a piece of metal lodged in his right eye since Jan. 3, was taken from the weathership Vancouver by a Canadian Forces rescue helicopter from CFB Comx and transported to Victoria.

He suffered the injury at the ocean weather station Papa, 900 miles west of Vancouver Island.

Introducing the new AMC Service Protection Plan.
Another exclusive for AMC cars. Any model. Any year.

We've come up with another idea car owners think is a great one:
A system of ongoing guaranteed car service and repairs after the AMC Buyer Protection Plan.
Car drivers' responses have been, to say the least, positive. "Great idea? You said it!"
So here it is: You don't just get great back-up on new AMC cars. You now also get great back-up on all AMC cars.

Free Written Estimate.
A cost you agree to... and you pay a penny more.



This feature pleases a lot of people.
Because before your AMC Dealer does any service or repair work on your car, he'll figure out exactly what needs to be done, and give you a fixed written cost estimate—at no charge to you. And he won't exceed it without your prior approval.
No surprise when you get your bill.

Guaranteed Parts and Labour. The Dealer and the Factory back the work on your car.

In simple terms, here's what our new Guarantee says:
When you buy any service or repairs for your AMC car from an AMC Dealer, American Motors (Canada) Limited guarantees to you that the work done—which may include parts and/or labour—will be free from defects under normal use for a full three months from completion of the work or for 3,000 miles, whichever comes first, and that your AMC Dealer will correct any defect at no charge to you.
That's a big promise to keep, but we'll be keeping it.
And you'll find the promise holds good... at any AMC Dealer in North America.

All parts replaced during the repair will be offered for your inspection, so you can see for yourself what the problem was. Just ask at estimate time. You may keep them if you wish.
So there you have it: the new AMC Service Protection Plan.
Isn't it good to know you own a product from a manufacturer who really stands by you. Not just with the new car Guarantee. But after that too.

Parts Inspection.
We don't just tell you... we show you the parts we replace.

First, the Buyer Protection Plan for new 1976 AMC cars.
Now, the Service Protection Plan for all AMC cars.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Typical of the top-notch defensive play necessary to win major championships (or to emerge as a winner in any bridge game) is the performance of the East-West defenders in today's deal. Sitting West and East, respectively, were Arnold Kauder and his wife, Mary Jane, of Los Angeles.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Dbl.
2 ♠	3 ♡	3 ♠	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	4 ♠	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

West's opening lead of the heart king was overtaken by East's ace, after which the jack of diamonds was led. South played low, West did likewise, and dummy's queen won the trick. It should be noted that if West had assumed that East's diamond jack was a singleton, and had won the trick with the ace to return a diamond, declarer would have had an easy time of it. From here in, his only losing trick would have been a club to West's ace.

After dummy's queen of diamonds had won trick two, declarer cashed the king and ace of trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. Then came a low club, and Mr. Kauder put up his queen, dummy's king taking the trick. The deuce of clubs was returned. Mrs. Kauder, alert to the situation, came up with the jack of clubs, to play back her remaining diamond. South's king was now trapped, and West couldn't be prevented from making two diamond tricks. And so declarer went down one, losing one club, one heart, and two diamonds.

Actually, even if West had not put up the club queen on the initial club lead, declarer would probably have gone down anyway. But West could foresee that if he played low, after dummy's king had won the trick, a club return would compel him to take the trick with his queen.

If West next played the ace of clubs, South would trump, and dummy's two remaining clubs would be established as winners; if, instead, West cashed the diamond ace, he would make a winner out of South's king. West's only safe play would have been to lead a heart. Whether declarer ruffed the trick in dummy (discarding a diamond from his own hand) or ruffed the heart in his own hand while discarding a diamond from dummy, declarer would eventually have to lose two diamonds (or one diamond and one club).

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for, Tuesday, Jan. 13

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Emphasis on ideas, trips, relatives, messages: Key is to consolidate, to test and experiment. Cancer, Capricorn individuals could be in picture. Highlight versatility—and be aware of security. Means plan ahead. Make contact with one who recognizes your potential.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Accent on money, collections, payments, evaluation of personal possessions. Gemini figures in important way. You are provided with pertinent information — properly utilized, this results in considerable gain. Do something about it.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Lunar cycle high—take initiative. Trust your own judgement—you will be at right place at right time. Be direct, forthright independent. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio persons could be very much in picture.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Be prepared for questions—have answers available. Give full play to your own intellectual curiosity. Accent on getting story behnd the story. Did beneath surface indications. You strike pay dirt if persistent. A secret will be revealed.

LEO (july 23 - Aug. 22): Emphasis on friends, desires gain derived through professional endeavors. Purchase of luxury item could be on agenda. You are applauded, flattered and perhaps, encouraged to be extravagant. Be diplomatic but protect your interests.

VIRGON (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): You regain sense of direction. Your prestige shoots upward—one you respect pays attention and offers helping hand. Perfect techniques. Evaluate property. Aim high —you are not without allies. Message will be clarified.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): You are able now to put philosophy into action. Accept challenge, responsibility. Letter of credit—or special communication—could be highlighted. Capricorn, Cancer persons could figure prominently. Gain shown through special study.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): You feel at one with events around you. Means you no longer will be a stranger in your environment. Certain puzzle pieces fall into place, enabling you to complete, assignment, project. Aries, Libray may be in picture.

SAGGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Emphasis on partnership, co-operative effort, legal technicalities and marriage. Leo, Aquarius could be in picture. Lie low. Let others reveal their hands. You do best by detecting subtle, involuntary signals. You'll perceive the concept!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Study Sagittarius message. Concentrate on service, ways of doing best possible job. Steady pace bests sensational approach. Show that you have endurance, determinatin. One who "pulls strings" is a careful observer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Creativity, change, love —these are emphasized. You now are able to teach, to reach beyond apparent restrictions, to learn and relate. You're given opportunity to express feelings, to be affectionate, to respond to one who asks pertinent questions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Specifics, details, fine points, restrictions are featured. Take each step separately—don't attempt to skip over basic materials. One you confided in now wants you to be a good, steady listener. The wheel has turned, the cycle has turned 180 degrees.

IF JAN. 13 IS YOR BIRTH-IF JAN. 13 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you knew early what it meant to have loved ones separated or "at odds" with each other. This year you enter a new field, will find July your most significant month. Scorpio and Leo persons play important roles in your life. You are direct, honest and stubborn.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. HUNTER

It was hot in the stuffy little office. "What's the time, Sam?" she asked plaintively. "I'm half asleep."

The old man smiled, glancing at his watch. "This will keep you busy a while," he told her. "In sixteen minutes time it will be twice as long since 3 o'clock as it was till 5 o'clock eleven minutes ago."

Well?

Friday's answer: SWAN was 1097.

Ashe Connects In Tour Opener

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Arthur Ashe, the 1975 World Championship Tennis king, picked up where he left off last year by winning the WCT's opening tournament Sunday with a 3-6, 6-3, 7-6 victory over Andrew Pattison.

Ashe collected $17,000 for his first victory of the year. He advanced to the finals with consecutive set victories over South African Bob Hewitt, Russian Alex Metreveli and Australian Phil Dent. Pattison won $7,000 as runner-up.

True Winter Blooms Out Now

The flowers we see in outdoor gardens in January are more likely to be truly winter blooms than those noticed during November and December. When late fall weather is fairly mild and no more than a few degrees of frost have been briefly experienced, the hardiest of the fall plants continue producing flowers.

But now in January, those we see truly belong to winter, that is, the winter of Greater Victoria. A few miles to the north, even around Vancouver on the mainland, the story of winter flowers will probably be different at this same date.

As reported in this colun at the time, foliage of the pure white daffodil Beersheba was showing a half inch above soil in Christmas week. Now they are two inches up. By careful poking around a couple of buds were found, a lovely sure sign of future beauty. This is one of our favorite daffodil varieties.

The yellow Winter-jasmine, Jasminum nudiflorum, though in bloom from early November shows no signs of quitting. A large plant spread over a big area finds microclimates to bring sections into bloom for a succession of many weeks. Fragrance has been cited by some old-time writers, but this I have never detected either outdoors or in a warm room.

A different story with the marvellously fragrant Daphne mezereum and its variety alba. From the first tiny purple flowers to the last of the white variety, the clustered stems emit a perfume whether indoors or out. One cannot claim they are showy unless seen on large old shrubs as we come across in sheltered Oak Bay and Fairfield gardens. Daphne mezereum's color is somewhere near cyclamen-purple on the color chart, not vibrant in a quarter inch flower. But who cares when the perfume in a winter garden more than makes up for lack of size and brilliance.

A large woody shrub that can be trained as a small tree to fit into a sunny sheltered entrance-way is the familiar (to many gardeners) rich orange-yellow Hamamelis mollis; or one of its hybrids with even more colorful blossome than the tyupe. The fragrance of this Chinese shrub on a mild damp winter evening is a welcome not soon forgotten. A cold spell temporarily stops blooming, but the next mild spell brings another clutch of buds into flower. This continues through the early spring or even into April when the frogs start up their chorus.

Viburnum fragrans, a shrub which produced its first scented flowers about the same week the last of its leaves fell in November, is still opening round headed clusters of tiny pinkish white blossoms. The scent has been described as clove and rose petal, but every sniffer registers a different simile. This rather lanky shrub needs a filler at its feet for summer shade to the soil and for visual improvement.

Snowdrops were well advanced by Christmas week and are still blooming freely where they have naturalized in a well drained leafy soil.

Probably this is the common Galanthus nivalis, a small flowered species, though G. elwesii a taller larger species having well defined green markings, is slightly earlier in a mild winter.

With the snowdrops came Eranthis hyemalis, an inch-high stem holding a buttercup-like flower backed by an encircling green ruff.

At Saxe Point Park (Esquimalt) winter heathers were admired by eastern Canada visitors on New Year's Eve, and one open blossom of purple aubrieta (essentially a spring flower) olinched the easterners' belief that we do indeed live in a generally favored, though unpredictable climate.

IN MEMORIAM DONATIONS

should be directed to CANADIAN CANCER SOCIETY, 857 Caledonia Ave., Victoria

There is some one who misses you sadly,
And finds the time long since you went,

There is some one who thinks of you always,
And tries to be brave and content.

Gone is the face we loved
so dear,
Silent the voice we loved to hear;

'Tis sad, but true,
we wonder why,
The best are always the first to die.

Off and again, a leaf blown
by the wind
Falls on the broad ocean

'Tis never lost; where'er it fate may blow,

The imprint of its settling's
left behind.

And so with every life,
whate'er its kind,

It shapes itself a place,
'tis destined so,

If hence in peace or turmoil
it should go,

Its influence ever lives,
as 'twas designed.

More Metric Changes On Way This Year

OTTAWA (FP) — The process of metric conversion in Canada will continue at a steady pace in 1976 but with little as dramatic as last year's switch to Celsius temperature readings.

At a news conference this week Metric Commission chairman S. M. Gossage outlined this year's changeover plans indicating that the majority of Canadians supported metric conversion although there was some opposition.

Commission Executive Director P. C. Boire said in an interview the next change with sweeping impact would come in the fall of 1977 yhen all road signs, speed limits and so on are tentatively scheduled to go metric.

This year's planned changes are less sweeping and are part of a gradual implementation program designed to hopefully have Canada metric by 1980.

Beginning this month, newsprint and market pulp are to be supplied in metric units on demand.

Early in the year it will be necessary that automobile speedometers be marked in kilometers. Boire notes that many already are.

Most toilet goods will have to be packaged in metric sizes by March.

Boire says many products like toothpaste and shampoo already are metric.

By April, atmospheric pressure, visibility and wind speed information will be provided in metric measures.

The conversion to metric packaging of sugar is to be completed by next spring. It is already the case in Western Canada.

By next fall, the shoe industry is planning to convert its internal operations to metric, but it will not affect the sizes at the retail level.

One of the problems raised at the news conference was the possibility of manufacturers trying to make extra money when changing packaging from imperial to metric units.

This could be done, for example, by selling a litre of milk for the same price as the old quart.

A litre being about 10 per cent less than a quart.

Both Gossage and Boire said an alert shopping public and the media could limit such incidences by publicizing them.

Gossage said the Metric Commission, which is directing the voluntary conversion to metric, had had "one or two" such cases reported to it which turned out to be "misunderstandings" on the merchant's part.

Boire said responsible manufacturers and retailers would avoid such practices rather than risk a "black eye" which would result with exposure.

Boire noted the Australian example where few such cases rose after conversion.

"In all of 1974," he said, "only 10 such cases were reported to their metric conversion board and all of them proved to be misunderstandings."

The process of metric conversion in Canada is a voluntary one with various sectors of the economy free to decide when and how to convert.

The Metric Commission, set up in 1971, is involved in planning and co-ordinating.

Gossage said co-ordinating efforts with our major trading partner, the United States, was important and running fairly smoothly.

He noted that the U.S. government adopted a Metric Bill last December setting up a board to co-ordinate the changeover process in that country.

In Canada, he said, co-operation with the provinces was vital and ongoing.

Federal and provincial ministers responsible for metric conversion would meet here next week on the subject.

NEW U.S. CATTLE BEEF

WASHINGTON (FP) — A senior American official revealed this week the U.S. has decided to start testing imported Canadian cattle for blue tongue disease, a move prompted by a tough, new screening system to detect the disease in U.S. cattle imposed by Canada.

The U.S. official said tests will be carried out on a random sampling of Canadian cattle entering the U.S. to determine whether Ottawa's claims that the disease does not exist in Canada are true.

The American Naional Cattlemen's Association, a group that lobbies on behalf of U.S. cattle producers in Washington, is dubious about the Canadian government's assurances.

It believes the Canadian testing system, which results in a lengthy quarantine period that makes it uneconomical to export feeder cattle to Canada, is an attempt by Ottawa to restrict competing U.S. imports.

Blue tongue disease, which is common throughout the U.S. including border states adjacent to Canada, causes mouth lesions that make it difficult and painful for farm animals to eat — thereby reducing their weight and eventual market value.

It most commonly affects sheep, but cattle, as well as goats, can also suffer from the disease.

"The carrier of blue tongue is a gnat and we don't believe gnats know that the border exists," said Bill MacMillian, executive vice-president of ANCA.

Macmillan stressed that he didn't "want to rattle the sabre" before the results of U.S. tests on Canadian cattle are known. But he noted in an interview that the existence of blue tongue in Canada would contradict Ottawa's claims that its new screening requirements are aimed at preventing spread of the disease across the border.

"I don't think the United States should take the word of the Canadian government considering all the problems we've had over beef and cattle trade in the past," said Macmillan.

Jakarta Finds Timor Anything But Pushover

Manchester Guardian

CANBERRA — Indonesian invasion forces in Portuguese Timor are believed to have run into unexpectedly strong resistance in attempts to destroy the 3,000-strong army of the leftist nationalist movement Fretilin, according to Australian intelligence analysts.

Since Indonesian troops entered the former Portuguese colony Dec. 7, more than 450 Indonesian troops have been killed in Fretilin ambushes and guerrilla raids in the jungles and mountains, sources say.

The Indonesians, with between 15,000 and 20,000 troops, have been unable so far to subdue large areas of Timor.

They also have had limited success in uncovering Fretilin arms ammunition and food dumps. The Fretilin faction is fighting for an independent Portuguese Timor. The Indonesians are supporting other groups seeking to make the former colony a part of Indonesia, which already includes half of the island of Timor in its territory.

The Australian intelligence community, using information based on the monitoring of all Indonesian communications traffic in the area, says that there was more widespread killing of non-combatants by the Indonesians during the invasion than had previously been believed.

There was, the sources say, a serious breakdown in discipline and tactical command when troops took the capital, Dili.

Indiscriminate shooting by Indonesian marines is believed to have caused a large but unspecified number of casualties in Dili.

Waste Nets Hong Kong Privy Profit

HONG KONG (AFP) — China will buy $200,000 worth of night-soil (human waste) from Hong Kong this year.

A spokesman for the Hong Kong Urban Council, which is responsible for handling human waste, said the sales would both provide needed revenue and reduce the colony's problems with disposing the nightsoil at sea.

Shipments by barge from Hong Kong to nearby Chinese counties began recently, the spokesman said.

The total amount of nightsoil involved was not disclosed.

China still relies primarily on nightsoil to meet its fertilizer needs.

Federal CS Pay Up 18%

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal civil servants were paid a total of $1.46 billion during the three months ending June 30, 1975, an increase of $225.6 million or 18 per cent from the same period a year earlier, Statistics Canada reports.

The agency said it was in error last week when it reported the payroll had increased by $255.6 million.

There were a total of 474,351 employees on June 30, an increase of 11,487 or 2.42 per cent from a year earlier.

MORE PRECEDENT NEED STRESSED

Canadian Press

Jim Matkin, deputy minister of labor, says more precedents must be set under the British Columbia Labor Code before the issue of secondary picketing during strikes becomes clear.

Matkin was commenting in the wake of B.C. Labor Relations Board decisions rejecting appeals against two rulings last year on the legality of secondary picketing.

The deputy labor minister said he hadn't read the decisions but said the labor board's decision to allow secondary picketing in one instance and prohibit it in another was based on the individual merits of each case.

In its decisions, the labor board upheld a three-member panel decision allowing picketing at MacMillan Bloedel Ltd.'s corrugated container plant in New Westminster by members of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada on strike at the firm's pulp mill at Harmac.

MacMillan Bloedel had sought to declare the picketing illegal when members of Local 5 of the PPWC in New Westminster refused to cross picket lines set up by striking members of Local 8 from the Harmac mill.

Congress Aids Skier

CHICAGO (AP) — Czechoslovakian native Jana Hlavaty, the second ranked cross-country skier on the United States women's team, will be able to represent her adopted country in the Winter Olympics.

Mrs. Hlavaty, 34, has received her United States citizenship after Congress passed a special bill.

There had been a possibility she wouldn't be able to represent the U.S. because the Feb. 4 starting date for the Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, was two months short of the four-year residency requirement for citizenship.

Technicality Overlooked

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Berger, owner of Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, has decided to give start running-back Johnny Rodgers a cheque for $4,800.

The money represents each Alouettes share of two winning playoff games as well as the losers share of $2,500 for the Grey Cup.

Berger had withheld payment of the money because he maintained Rodgers and his lawyer had waived on clause 25 of the standard players contract covering post-season payment.

"I thought about it for some time," Berger said in an interview. "I knew there was no legal obligation on my part to pay him the money. When you draw up a contract, and have in front of you the old contract that included such payment, but then specifically leave it out of the new one, well, I'm not legally bound to pay him."

CABLE MAN DIES

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bud J. Shepard, vice-chairman of the board of Premier Cablevision Limited, died Friday in Houston, Texas. He was 46.

Shepard was in Houston for cancer treatment.

He formed a partnership in 1952 with Syd Welsh and Garth Pither to develop the cablevision operation that eventually became known as Premier Cablevision Limited, with operations in Vancouver, Victoria, Coquitlam and Toronto.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Shepard is survived by his wife, Donna, and three children, all of West Vancouver.

Unlisted Names Accepted By France

PARIS (AP) — After 20 years and a struggle that went to the World Court, France has decided to give full citizens' rights to six children whose Celtic first names made them legally non-existent.

The government ombudsman, Aime Paquet, has notified Jean Jacques Le Goarnic that France is "now disposed to normalize the civil status" of his children — Adraboran, Maiwenn, Gwendal, Diwezha, Sklerijenn and Brann, aged 12 to 19.

Because their Breton names of Celtic origin were not included on an 1803 list accepted for use in France, the Le Goarnics had no birth certificates, could not legally drive a car, marry, claim state health or social benefits, or enlist in the army.

Coming after two decades of rebutting Le Goarnic in court, the government action came as a surprise because President Valery Giscard d'Estaing ignored a personal appeal by Le Goarnic last January.

The decision in his favor is seen as a gesture of conciliation to Breton nationalists who have been demanding more autonomy and support for the Celtic culture of their province on the west coast of France.

Paquel told Le Goarnic in the presence of a member of the National Assembly that his children now have full rights, that Breton names will be admitted on birth registers, and that the government is ready to accept "all the implications" of its decision.

This means, in Le Goarnic's case, that he will retroactively receive family benefits, amounting to the equivalent in francs of several thousand dollars, withheld from him over the years.

"It's a terrific victory for us and of course we're very pleased," a family spokesman said. "It's a vindication."

Le Goarnic's problem began in 1956 when tthe registry clerk in Boulogne, a suburban Paris town, refused to accept his newborn son, Adraboran. Le Goarnic was then prosecuted for not registering the child, an offence under French law. The judge released him, finding that he was acting on good faith, but none of the five other Le Goarnic children born from 1957 to 1963 was registered.

Le Goarnic, an engineer, brought his case to local and district courts without success and last year petitioned the International Court of Justice in The Haguee for a judgement, asking that his children be declared European citizens of Breton nationality. The court ruled it was not competent to intervene.

Tanker Port Opposed

BURROWS BAY, Wash. (AP) — Residents from the west side of Fidalgo Island Saturday agreed to organize a group to petition state House and senate transportation and utilities committes against choosing Burrows Bay as a supertanker port.

They also heard comments from Bill Malseed, manager of the Shell refinery at March Point on the island's east side, and Glen Leadbetter, executive secretary of the state oceanographic commission.

The commission last spring named Burrows Bay as a possible site for receivng crude oil from supertankers.

John Carraba, who organized the meeting, is a former chairman of the Anacortes Planning Commssion. Anacortes is on the east side of the island.

Tougher Conspiracy Bail

A B.C. Supreme Court ruling is going to make life that much tougher for prosecutors in bail proceedings involving persons charged with conspiracy.

The court has ruled that evidence gathered by electronic means, such as wiretapping, cannot be used by the Crown in showing cause why an accused should not be released from custody.

The decision, although handed down last April, was applied for the first time in a case in Victoria provincial court Friday and it came as much of a surprise to the prosecutor as it did to the defence lawyers. For up to now the ruling has not been made widely known.

The case involved two Victoria men, James William Buckner, 32, of 352 Moss and Russell Tschritter, 30, of 946 Ellory, jointly charged with conspiring to traffic in hashish, who appeared for bail.

Details of the hearing can't be given as Judge Fred Green placed a ban on publication at the request of defence lawyers.

But the question of whether or not the prosecutor, Mike Hutchison, could produce wiretap evidence did come up and Green adjourned the hearing to study the issue.

When the judge returned he announced his finding of the Supreme Court ruling and thereupon released Buckner in his own recognizance in the sum of $2,000 and set bail for Tschritter in the same amount but requiring one surety.

Speaking outside court, Hutchison said the ruling has the effect of hamstringing the prosecution in bail applications dealing with conspiracy charges.

"What it means is the Crown is precluded from leading evidence gained from electronic surveillance," he said. "But if you're dealing with conspiracy you're dealing with an agreement between two people — that's the substance of the offence — and such evidence is normally got these days by wiretapping."

He said an appeal is out of the question. For the problem is appeals on matters relating to bail can only be made to the B.C. Supreme Court, and it is unlikely that count would or even could hear an appeal to one of its own rulings.

Gold Booby Prize

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — A golden brassiere made of 8,000 links will be the first prize in a lottery at the annual Berlin press ball. Organizers said the brassierre, weighing 10 ounces 139 grams and valued at just under $4,000, took the donating West Berlin jeweler 300 hours to put together.

Eaton brands wear the Sanitized label.
We insist on it.
For your good value!

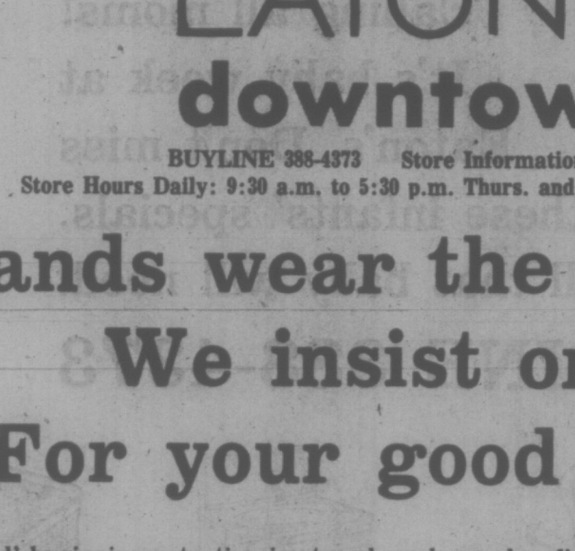
'Sanitized' hygienic protection in store brand merchandise is an Eaton "exclusive" in Canada. And it's important. Because you're assured of better performance, greater satisfaction and better value for your dollar when you buy Eaton's Quality brands. Add 'Sanitized' protection to that Eaton brand, and you get what you want for your money. . . . Value. Look for the label.

'Sanitized'

'Sanitized'-treated Apparel
It's a big plus factor in apparel made especially for Eaton's. In Vanity Fair panti-hose and men's Birkdale underwear, 'Sanitized' works silently for you as a built-in deodorant. 'Sanitized' doesn't mask odours, it acts to prevent their formation by doing away with the cause — bacteria. Garments that require dry cleaning won't need cleaning as often. And washable garments withstand repeated laundering. Protection lasts!

'Sanitized'

'Sanitized' treated skates
Truline skates are treated inside with "Sanitized' — an Eaton exclusive — to stay hygienically fresh, free of odour and athlete's foot fungi. The linings last longer, too! So for top value, choose Eaton's Truline skates. An Eaton Quality brand plus 'Sanitized' protection.



'Sanitized'

'Sanitized' treated baby needs
Know what a lot of young mothers do when they buy things for their babies? Launder them. Even before they're worn! So they'll especially welcome Bonnie Brae sleepers, training pants and nursery pads. They're treated with 'Sanitized', the special process that guards fabrics, plastics, leather and paper against the growth and action of bacteria. Bonnie Brae items come hygienically fresh and will stay that way. An Eaton's plus. To count on.

'Sanitized'

'Sanitized' treated bedding
You get a special bonus when you buy Haddon Hall electric blankets and Haddon Hall mattresses. They're treated inside and out with 'Sanitized' — an Eaton exclusive — to stay fresh, free of musty odours, mould and mildew. And it also inhibits the action of bacteria which deteriorates the filling materials. So look for the crisp blue and white label.

'Sanitized'

'Sanitized'-treated containers
Dark, poorly ventilated storage areas are breeding grounds for bacteria which rot linings . . . for mould and mildew which stain and produce musty odours. Eaton's Birkdale luggage is 'Sanitized' treated to stay hygienically fresh, free of bacteria, mould and mildew. Good reasons to shop for Eaton's Quality brand lines.

JAPANESE DRINKERS HARD HIT BY PRICES

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japanese drinkers were hit by price increases today as the start of what threatens to be an expensive year for the man-in-the-street.

Projected price increases in the first six months of the year include postage rates, state university and school tuitions, telephone and electricity charges, medical fees and state railway fares.

The price of cigarettes has already increased more than 40 per cent.

The government has managed to bring down the inflation rate from nearly 30 per cent 18 months ago to an estimated 10.5 per cent in 1975.

But some economic observers question whether it will succeed in its aim of lowering inflation to about 8.8 per cent in the coming year.

The Straits Great Waste Disposer

By AB KENT
Times Staff

What must be one of the world's most efficient natural disposal systems lies between Victoria and Vancouver — the continually flushing waters of Haro Strait and the Gulf of Georgia.

Marine scientists working on the International Biological Program, which in 1975 concluded a decade of planning, study and evaluation of organic production on land and sea, found the waters between the Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island unchanged in 30 years.

Despite population growth, industrial expansion and new forms of pollution emptied on the seaboard itself or carried downstream by the Fraser and other rivers, nutrient levels and the plankton population have not deteriorated since a study made during the 1940s.

Object of the investigation that included five years of field work in various parts of Canada and in 37 other nations was to establish a basis of biological productivity and human welfare, through a look at existing and newer organic sources, and to note human adaptability to changing conditions.

Work was done under the International Council of Scientific Unions, whose affiliate in Canada is the National Research Council which set up an IBP committee in 1964 to study all geographic regions at a cost estimated at $13.5 million for 900 man-years of work.

NRC paid for 46 per cent of the total, or $6.2 million.

By means of such study, scientists may be able to predict how much energy is available for human consumption in the form of food and determine the environmental implications.

Production is measured in terms of energy units originating as solar radiation which is captured by plants which also recycle earth minerals and provide food for animals and humans.

For survival, a human requires about 2,000 calories a day and plants convert about one per cent of solar energy reaching the earth. In turn, about one per cent of this amount becomes converted into animal life.

In both fresh water and the seas, the action of solar energy converts nutrients into organic matter by phytoplankton, algae and seaweed, providing food for fish.

The Canadian IBP study showed, for example, that in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, fish production is estimated at one-tenth of one per cent of phytoplankton production for a total two million tons of fish a year.

It is encouraging to note that current commercial fisheries harvest only 25 per cent of this quantity.

In the Gulf of Georgia there is as much food available for the support of fisheries as there was 30 years ago, an important base line factor to consider when estimating effect of environmental change.

The forest industry alone has made giant strides since the earlier study, establishing large new pulp mill complexes at three points on the eastern shore of Vancouver Island — at Harmac, Crofton and Duncan Bay — and increasing productive capacity at Powell River and other mainland points.

To 1966 there were double the number of seaboard and inland pulp mills there had been 1947, with six times more productive capacity.

In each case waste from manufacturing operations is dumped in the sea and large quantities of unused wood, bark and chips find their way into the water where they pose a hazard to bottom-feeding marine life.

In addition, the effluent from Vancouver Island and Lower Mainland sewage systems and from upstream on the Fraser is significantly greater today with a population estimated at 1.4 million for communities bordering on the gulf or in the Fraser Valley, compared with fewer than 900,000 in all of British Columbia in 1946.

With base line information to work from, further study is planned for the body of water under a project being organized by Environment Canada, entitled Georgia Strait Ocean Resources Management Program in which fisheries and marine sciences researchers will work.

GSORMP has not yet been launched and no funds committed to it, but this is likely to be considered in current federal government estimates.

Dr. Cary McAllister, of Pacific Biological Station at Nanaimo, was to be its manager and he was asked how he accounts for the fact the waters are unspoiled despite the years of industrial and municipal pollution.

"There have been changes," he said, but it was his "informed guess" that the pelagic or open waters had not been harmed and cited the need for further investigations.

There are local areas of pollution issuing from pulp mills and sewer outfalls, as well as vast quantities of metallic, hydrocarbon, chemical and silt pollutants coming out of the Fraser and ultimately mixing with the sea water.

But the active flushing of tidal currents in the basin has disseminated these foreign materials so thoroughly that good habitat is maintained for marine nutrients in open waters, McAllister said.

Space Shot Close to Sun

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Space Agency plans to send a West German spacecraft closer to the sun than any previous man-made probe Thursday to measure radiation, magnetic fields and a surprising cluster of space dust.

The shot is to be followed several days later by the launch of a Canadian communications satellite with an American transmitter 10 to 20 times more powerful than those of current commercial radio relay satellites.

The German spacecraft is the second of two that have been named Helios after the Greek sun god.

Helios 2 is to soar into a great elliptical solar orbit that will bring it to within 26.9 million miles of the Sun every 93 days. This will be nearly 2 million miles closer than the path travelled by Helios 1 which has survived 700 degree fahrenheit temperatures — hot enough to melt lead.

Scientists estimate the new Helios will experience 10 per cent more heat than its predecessor.

One of the puzzles scientists hope Helios 2 will shed more light on is the high density of micrometeoroids Helios 1 found close to the sun. Project scientist James Trainor said the spacecraft detected 15 times more bits of space debris in the area 33 million miles from the Sun than observed near earth 90 million miles from the Sun.

Philadelphia Flyers salvaged some of the National Hockey League's battered pride Sunday by beating Central Red Army from the Soviet Union 4-1. The game was halted for 14 minutes in the first period when Russian coach Konstantin Loktev pulled his team off the ice as a protest against "animal hockey" being played by Philadelphia. Page 10.

Victoria Cougars could have used some Philadelphia muscle. Short staffed, the Cougars nonetheless turned in a gallant performance before bowing 8-7 to New Westminster when a Victoria player inadvertantly scored the game winner in the third period of Saturday's Western Canada Hockey League meeting. Victoria Scorpions improved their chances of finishing atop the Dogwood Senior Men's Basketball League standing by rallying for a 77-73 victory over Vancouver Athletics Sunday. Page 15.

A coaching change in the NHL is working for New York Rangers, but not for Washington Capitals. Rangers won two games for new coach John Ferguson, the hapless Caps lost their seventh straight since Tommy McVie took over. Capitals now are winless in 21 consecutive games—to equal a dubious record shared by the 1944 Rangers and the 1951 Chicago Black Hawks. Page 10.

Victoria Vikettes have no problems winning. They made it eight straight in Canada West University Athletic Association play by defeating Alberta's Pandas in women's basketball. Victoria's Vikings, however, suffered their first loss, 77-69, to Alberta's Golden Bears. Page 12.

IMPOSSIBLE NOW POSSIBLE—McGEER

ICBC Rates 'Palatable'

Proposals for new rate structures under discussion by the provincial cabinet this afternoon will be palatable to the public and still financially responsible.

That was the word from Education Minister Pat McGeer prior to the meeting. Insurance Corp. of B.C. officials in Vancouver worked over the weekend on the new proposals which McGeer brought to Victoria at noon today.

The minister said in Vancouver that all sorts of options thought impossible earlier now are possible.

And he acknowledged that the new possibilities are a result of massive adverse public reaction to his Jan. 2 announcement that ICBC premiums would increase more than 100 per cent effective March 1.

"I promise the public that whatever we do, we will come forward with a plan that will make it easy for them to shoulder the burden," said McGeer. "There is no question the public must work to solve this financial dilemma."

He said he doubts his proposal to cabinet will be made public after the meeting, adding that the rate structures must be approved and made public soon because renewal forms must be sent out.

Meanwhile, in Terrace, Socred backbencher Cyril Shelford said the cabinet will reconsider plans by ICBC to abolish territorial discounts for car insurance.

Shelford, MLA for Skeena, said he and Howard Lloyd (SC-Fort George) have been assured by Premier Bennett and McGeer, that the cabinet will study the ICBC proposal.

Norman Bortnick, the crown corporation's general manager, announced Jan. 2 at a joint news conference with McGeer that the discounts, introduced by the NDP government as a method of equalizing insurance premiums throughout B.C., would end.

Shelford said that he believes the differential will not be dropped. He also said northern increases in Autoplan could be less than 100 per cent.

CHRISTIE
. . . dies at 85

CRIME WRITER DEAD

LONDON (AP) — Agatha Christie, 85-year-old queen of British mystery story writers, has died, her publishers announced today.

Miss Christie, who wrote The Mousetrap, the longest running play in British theatre history, and at least 84 novels that sold an estimated 350 million copies, died at her home in Wallingford, 55 miles west of London.

Her books had been translated into at least 103 languages, 16 more than Shakespeare's works. On top of her prolific output, she also wrote 19 plays, books of poetry, children's stories and a book on archeology.

"It's murder," she once said describing the writing of her tales of death and detection. "People think writing is easy for me. But it isn't."

Mourners file past the flag-draped body of Chinese Premier Chou En-lai

Chou Cortege Viewed By Sobbing Thousands

By ROSS MUNRO
Special to the Times

PEKING — Thousands of Chinese men, women and children — many of them quietly moaning and sobbing — watched a slowly moving cortege Sunday carry the remains of Chou en-Lai through Tien An Men Square in the heart of Peking.

It was exactly 5 o'clock when the blue and white van, draped with black and yellow crepe and bearing the premier's remains, passed in front of Tien An Men — the Gate of Heavenly Peace which serves as the national emblem of the People's Republic of China.

The appearance of the funeral van transformed the crowd. A moment earlier the people were curious onlookers, alerted by the lines of soldiers and policemen that something momentous yet unannounced was about to happen. But as the van passed and the people were certain they were watching the remains of Chou go by, a soft wave of sniffling and moaning was all that broke the silence. Men, women and teen-agers — who only a moment earlier had been jockeying for a better vantage point — stood still and bit their lips as tears rolled down their cheeks.

Almost 150 curtained sedans and red flag limousines — presumably carrying China's top leadership and Chou's family and friends — slowly followed the funeral van past Tien An Men, whose magenta color was blood red in he dusk.

All indications were that Chou's body was being taken to a creamtorium in the west of Peking. Late Sunday night, crowds of Chinese were gathering around Tien An Men in anticipation of the arrival of Chou's ashes at the Workers' Cultural Palace. It is here that resident foreigners and Chinese will pay their condolences beginning today.

A grand memorial ceremony, the closest thing China has to a funeral, will be held Thursday for a limited group of Chinese officials, family members and friends.

As the motorcade passed into the distance down the boulevard of eternal peace, the mourners all seemed to quickly regain their composure. Then some saw China's gold-starred red flag which had been flying at half mast in the middle of the square, being hauled down and suddenly scores of young people began running toward the soldier who had wrapped the flag around a staff. The soldier, who appeared to be in his late teens, ignored the young people swirling around him as he resolutely marched straight ahead and into the Workers' Cultural Palace.

Many of the thousands who watched the cortege had wandered over from the monument to the People's Heroes which stands south from the Tien An Gate. All afternoon hundreds and sometimes thousands of people milled around the white marble terraces of the monument where a distinctively Oriental form of organized mourning was under way.

Groups of middle school students, wearing or holding white paper flowers of mourning, impassively marched up the steps of the monument and laid a wreath at the foot of the tall marble slab.

Afterward, on the main shopping street of Wang Fu Ching, people were lining up to buy souvenir copies of the Friday edition of People's Daily which carried the obituary notice for Chou and which had been repeatedly broadcast through China from before dawn Friday. In the stores, crowds were buying silk or paper white flowers or portraits of Chou.

The other nine inmates who took part in the mass breakout were recaptured within 40 hours of the escape.

Snow On Way

A large Pacific storm moving toward the coast will bring wind, snow, rain and continuing cold tonight and Tuesday in the capital region.

Up-island centres from the Malahat north had scattered snow at the weekend, some of which fell on Saanich Peninsula Sunday, and driving conditions were hazardous. Heavy rain Saturday caused basement flooding in parts of Victoria. To 10 p.m. Sunday 8.9 mm was recorded.

The storm centre is moving rapidly and its frontal edge was to pass over Victoria where temperatures near freezing would cause two or three hours of snowfall after midnight tonight, followed by slight warming and rain that is likely to extend through Tuesday into Wednesday.

The high Tuesday will be about 5 degrees (41 degrees F) with winds at about 15 mph, increasing Wednesday.

Angola Fate Now Rests With Amin

Times News Services

ADDIS ABABA — Deadlocked African leaders seeking peace in Angola today turned to Ugandan president Idi Amin to steer the Organization of African Unity past the most serious crisis in its 13-year history.

Amin, the burly, controversial OAU chairman, cracked tension-easing jokes Sunday as the 46 delegates traded insults and threats at the emergency summit.

Conference sources said it would be up to Amin — whose election as chairman last year was criticized by many African leaders — to heal the rift over how to end Angola's devastating civil war.

They said 22 states — two short of a majority — supported recognition of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola in its struggle against two pro-Western factions in the former Portuguese colony. Zambia president Kenneth Kaunda, supporting the West left the summit before it ended saying the session had failed.

In a switch from its long-established foreign policy, normally conservative Nigeria led the pro-Marxist caucus and hailed the Soviets for their "heroic role in African liberation."

The PMLA, meanwhile, today flew three white South African prisoners of war to the summit as evidence of foreign intervention in the former Portuguese colony.

Premier Lopodo Nascimento, arrived with the captives in a last-minute effort to swing deadlocked delegates in favor of OAU recognition for his group.

Earlier at the conference, a black U.S. congressman described involvement as "Kissinger's folly," and said it may be "the most serious foreign policy miscalculation" the United States has ever made.

"Regrettably President Ford has blindly followed Kissinger's folly."

On the war front, Soviet-backed forces have been hit by workers' strikes on their southern front and face a potential outbreak of typhoid fever in their capital, monitored radio broadcasts said today.

BUYERS' MARKET

LISBON (Reuter) — The Lisbon stoek exchange opened today for the first time since April, 1974 but dealing was suspended after 30 minutes when no sellers could be found.

Under its new rules, the exchange will for the moment only deal in fixed interest stocks.

Finance ministry officials, however, said they cannot foresee any chance of resuming trading in ordinary shares in the immediate future. Most of the companies whose shares were traded previously have been nationalized.

Banks and companies will, until the end of February, only be allowed to buy, and not sell, stocks.

Bombs Near UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Three pipe bombs timed to go off at 3 p.m. EST were found today on a ramp outside the UN library a few hours before the Security Council was scheduled to start its formal debate on the Middle East.

Police said the three bombs were enclosed in a single package near a work ramp of a subway line at First Avenue and 42nd Street. The ramp is located beneath the Dag Hammaraskjold Memorial library.

Police said the package contained a timing device set to go off at 3 p.m., but it was not immediately known how powerful the bombs were.

The security council was scheduled to start its formal debate on the middle east at 3:30 p.m., a half-hour after the devices were set to explode.

McGeer Fires Five At North College

Five NDP appointees to Northwestern Community College were fired by cabinet order last week.

One of the councillors has called the move "an unprecedented political invasion of B.C.'s college system," but Education Minister Pat McGeer said the five refused to obey a Social Credit government order.

McGeer told college councils to take no action binding on their successors but the Northwestern Council planned to hire a new principal, for campuses in Kitimat and Terrace.

Peter Burton, vice-chairman of the council until he was fired Thursday, said the college began to look for a new principal last year and several weeks had narrowed choices to a short list.

Interviews were being set up with potential candidates when McGeer issued his order for councils to not make any new moves until the new government-chosen members were appointed.

Burton said council members decided to disobey the statement because they considered it undue political interference for the college.

He said he believes the real reason for the firings is the new government's objection to council policies such as having courses in which working people, women and Indians can participate rather than classes solely for university entrance.

Skeena Socred MLA Cyril Shelford said he knew little about the situation despite Burton's charge the MLA wanted to purge NDP appointments from the council.

McGeer denied the charge of political interference and said Northwestern is the only college which disobeyed his request.

"But I would say since there will be changes made in the make-up of councils and in the direction from the government, I think it would only have been courtesy to wait until a new council is appointed before decisions are made."

CONVICTS RIOT IN ARGENTINE

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Three hundred prisoners at a maximum security prison in southern Argentina rioted Sunday and took 10 guards hostage, prison officials said.

No injuries were reported in the revolt at the Bahia Blanca federal penitentiary, 350 miles south of here. Soldiers and police surrounded the prison as officials were reported to be negotiating with the convicts.

Prison sources said revolt leaders were demanding "better treatment and other things."

The total prison population was not given, but sources said 30 political prisoners accused of being guerrillas are held there.

The prison mutiny was the second in Argentina this month. About 200 prisoners in a maximum security prison at Neuquen, 900 miles south of Buenos Aires, held 17 guards hostage for three days earlier this month.

Bloodless Forces Coup in Quito

QUITO (AP) — A three-man junta that took control of Ecuador's military government in a bloodless weekend reshuffle says the military will remain in power until the end of 1977.

The commanders of the army, navy and air force eased Gen. Guillermo Rodriguez Lara out of the presidency early Sunday, a few hours after his daughter's wedding at the government palace.

Political and diplomatic sources said the three junta members—Gen. Guillermo Duran Arcentales of the army, Vice-Admiral Alfredo Poveda Borbone and Gen. Luis Leoro Franco of the air force—are conservatives interested mainly in increasing Ecuador's oil production and stimulating the economy.

The only opposition reported came in the form of critical statements by several former cabinet officers, one of whom was arrested last week; by civilian politicians who wanted immediate elections; and by a retired colonel, Jorge Ceballos, who announced he was leading a "resistance command" at the border town of Tolcan, 125 miles north of the capital.

Military sources said they doubt any troops were supporting Ceballos. Various military commanders and garrisons issued statements pledging loyalty to the junta.

The junta ordered a curfew but cancelled it Sunday night with the explanation that there had been no disorders. However, it closed down Radio Quito after it broadcast a statement by Gen. Raul Puma Velasco, the jailed former minister of public works, calling Gen. Duran "inept" and pledging a struggle "for the welfare and the security of the Ecuadorean people."

The police also locked the editors of El Comercio, a newspaper that owns the radio station, in the newspaper plant.

Ecuador in recent years has marketed abroad large crops of bananas, rice and other agricultural products as well as oil, but in 1975 a drop in oil exports resulted in a $300-million deficit in the balance of trade.

This was responsible for higher prices that led to considerable labor and student agitation and urging from civilian politicians for a return to elected civilian government. In September, Rodriguez Lara survived an attempted coup in which 20 persons were killed and 100 others were wounded. Then the government was plagued by a series of strikes.

Family Tradition to Crumble With Falling Bricks

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

A family tradition spanning more than 60 years will come to an end later this month when Joe Skinner does his rounds and closes the doors of the Campbell Building for the last time.

Joe's father, Tom Skinner, became the janitor there a year after the building opened in 1912. Joe joined him as assistant and understudy in 1935, and has been in the job ever since.

For a time, his mother operated the ornately-grilled Otis elevator.

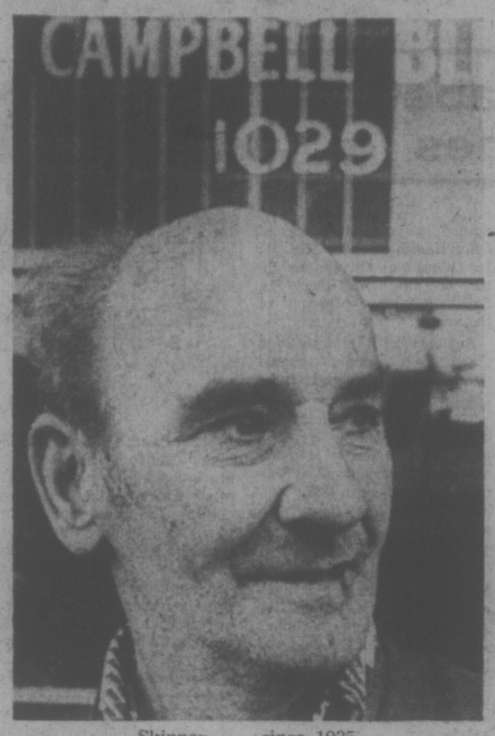
"I don't like to see it go. I'ts been like a home to me," Joe admitted.

But nostalgia is an almost worthless commodity in the harsh world of economics.

The Royal Bank, owners of the old eight-storey building at the corner of Fort and Douglas, has decided to close and then demolish it. The 39 tenants have been given notice to vacate by Jan. 31.

Officiaial reason given for the decision is bureaucratic insistence on upgrading the building to meet current fire safety standards. Implementing these requirements of the city fire department would be "so onerous and costly as to be positively impractical," says the bank's local agent.

However, it's long been common knowledge that the bank intended some day to pull down the structure and redevelop the site, once the neeessary land assembly had been completed. Tenants have occupied their premises on a month-to-month basis for about five years.



Skinner . . . since 1935

Whatever the reason, the Campbell Building seems destined for the demoliton fate already meted out to some of its stately downtown contemporaries.

To those such as Joe Skinner and Dr. William Westwood, a dentist who has been in practice there since 1946, in the same surgery established by his dentist father in 1919, the closure is both regrettable and an irritation.

"It's damn short notice," grumbled Westwood, whose quest for new accommodation must include special requirements for plumbing and electrical installations.

But to other tenants the eviction poses a more serious problem.

Although the Campbell Building began life as a professional "skyscraper," accommodating doctors and dentists who had previously practised out of their own homes, in latter years it has become a low-rental haven for a number of community groups and social service organizations.

And spokesmen for these tenants admit they have little or no hope of finding suitable alternative accommodation in the downtown area at anything like their present rents.

One the second floor, the offices of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Institute of Vancouver Island, the Big Brothers and Big Sisters organization of B.C. and the Greenpeace Foundation stand cheek by jowl.

Mrs. Louise Olsen, president of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Institute, said the group pays $35 a month for its two rooms. It might manage $50 but otherwise the only alternative would be to operate out of one of the officials' homes.

. . . still gazing

"Someone phoned us up and offered 1,000 square feet for $450," she said, without further comment.

Penny Parker, of the Community Information service which shares office space with the Victoria Volunteer Bureau, said she believes they have been able to line up alternative premises in the downtown area, but at much more than the present $50 rental in the Campbell Building.

Rents in newer office buildings are "outrageously expensive," she added. "We're going to have to dip into our advertising budget to cover the cost of the new rent."

Nancy Goldsberg, co-ordinator of Rape Relief, said the counselling and information service has no office alternative in sight at present, and the prospects appear bleak.

Their own survival interests apart, some of the longer-established tenants concede they'll be sorry to say goodbye to the Campbell, which was built by druggist Duncan Campbell.

City archivist Ainslie Helmcken recalls that Campbell had a strange obession with stuffed animal heads, which lined the walls of his ground floor store.

His trade mark was a camel's head — possibly chosen because of its pronunciation similarity to hiw own name — and three camel's head gargoyles were incorporated into the building's facade. Two disappeared several years ago but one, on the Fort frontage, still gazes out over the city to some distant oasis.

Today the Campbell Building still retains an air of faded elegance, its marble-lined staircase providing a stark contrast with cracked wall plaster, dingy beige paint and other signs of neglect.

Wandering along the mostly-deserted corridors, it's hard to conjure up visions of busy medical and dental waiting rooms, the Conservative Club which had its home there for many years, and the seventh-floor dance hall where the oldtime revellers stomped the night away.

If the building itself can't be saved for posterity, at least some of its fittings should — and not least the magnificent brass mailbox in the foyer, built by the "Canadian Cutler Mail Chute Company Ltd., Montreal."

GROOS DEAD AT 57, BURIAL AT SEA

Former Liberal member of parliament for Victoria, David Groos, 57, of 3130 Norfolk, will be buried at sea on Thursday.

Groos died of cancer at the Royal Jubilee Hospital on Sunday. He had been ill for the past 18 months and was hospitalized Sept. 4.

Dean Brian Whitlow will officiate at a service in Christ Church Cathedral at 11 a.m. Thursday. Groos' burial at sea will take place from the deck of an armed forces vessel that afternoon.

Prior to his political career, Gross served in the Royal Canadian Navy for 26 years, retiring with the rank of captain in 1961. He was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross in 1945 while serving in HMCS Restigouche.

He was first elected to the House of Commons in 1963, being re-elected in 1965 and 1968.

During the nine years he was in Ottawa, he served as secretary to the minister of national defence, was executive director of the North Atlantic Council, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's top political body, and worked on the standing committee for veterans' affairs.

He is survived by his wife, Phyllis Elizabeth; his son, Brian, and three daughters, Laura, Madeleine and Hilary.

Groos was one of two brothers to serve as naval officers. His brother, Harold, retired with the rank of commodore and is now a real estate consultant in Victoria. Groos is also survived by his sister, Mrs. Michael (Jeanne) Reid of Kelowna.

McCall Bros. are handling funeral arrangements. The family has requested that there be no flowers. Instead, donations to the Cancer Society at 867 Caledonia would be appreciated.

Ask The Times

Q. What are people talking about when they mention the French Quarter? — N.P.

A. Probably the French Quarter of New Orleans, the oldest and most famous section of the city. The area is much the same as it was in the 1700s and 1800s.

Q. I've never been sure of the difference between a producer and the director of a television show. Please enlighten me. — R.T.

A. The producer is the most important man on the show. He is to a television program what a captain is to a ship. It's his responsibility to plan the show, choose the performers, supervise the writing and attend rehearsals. His chief assistant is the director who has the actual job of putting the show on the air. He chooses which picture from three or four cameras should be telecast at a given moment, tells actors how they should say their lines and how they should move about the stage.

Freezer Plug Blamed For Fire

A short circuit in a freezer plug outlet is blamed for causing a fire in Sam Kee and Sons grocery Store, 143 Moss early Sunday.

A spokesman for the Victoria fire department said the fire, reported at 6:44 a.m. caused about $3,500 damage to one wall and some grocery stock piled against the wall and on top of the freezer.

Citizens Buying 'Like There's No Tomorrow'

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Victorians have just completed their biggest three - month spending spree in 25 years, according to a survey by the regional office of Canada Manpower.

Spending on consumer goods and services in this area during October, November and December was up 4.9 per cent from the previous three months, the biggest jump since 1951.

At the same time, the amount of credit buying increased 15.2 per cent.

The buying reached its peak in the Christmas season. One Sideny store said sales were up 30 per cent from the previous Christmas. Victoria stores reported increases in the 15 per cent range.

Adding to store revenues was a definite trend toward expensive Christmas presents this year.

"Store managers report that Victorians were buying like there's no tormorrow," said Stan Purdy, regional manager for Canada Manpower.

"It seems just like the wartime attitude: Live for today because no one knows what tomorrow will bring."

Sales were brisk across the city during the Christmas season. One store manager reported sales a little slow during the first week of December, better in the second and then "it took off like a skyrocket during the last 10 days."

Retail sales were the brightest spot in a year that was otherwise mixed from an employment viewpoint.

There was widespread unemployment among young people, with jobs for students particularly scarce. The forest industry shutdown during the summer months eliminated a number of jobs that traditionally are available for the students.

"In 1976 we are not expecting a big year, but hopefully it will be a little better than 1975," Purdy said.

There are indications of an improvement in the forest industry and continuing strength in the retail sector. With economic conditions improving in the United States, there could be a better tourist flow this summer.

A major concern is the expiry of contracts for the construction industry at the end of April and for various provincial government workers during the year.

Purdy said they were two key industries for the Victoria economy and a labor disruption in one or both could have a serious impact on the prosperity of the district.

The job outlook for students is rather bad, he said. Although jobs should be available in the woods this year there is otherwise very little available for young people.

A December economic survey, compiled by district Canada Manpower information officer Dan Bowes, contained the following highlights:

—Retail sales in December ranged from good to excellent.

—Restaurant revenue has increased more than 11 per cent.

—Yarrows Ltd. dockyard hired 75 additional employees in December to handle repair work, bringing the total work force to 775.

—Construction is brisk on residential and commercial structures (except for rental apartments) and union spokesmen say unemployment is almost nil. Some construction workers have taken jobs elsewhere on the Island where demand is also high.

—Hiring is restrained at the provincial legislature with employees being brought in on a replacement basis only. The work list has a peak of 125 vacancies, down from a high of 225 in November.

—There is little activity in agriculture, fishing and logging but some indications that market conditions are improving for sawmills.

NEW KIND OF REFEREE FOR 'BATTLING COUPLES'

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

The days when policemen acted alone to settle family squabbles or juvenile delinquency in Esquimalt may soon be a thing of the past.

Community workers and some social workers will be right alongside policemen Friday and Saturday nights . . . the two nights in a week most family and juvenile cases come to the fore.

Chief Art Burton said "social and community workers have the time and expertise needed to handle these situations . . . the policeman doesn't.

"All he can do is answer the call; if it's a married couple or common law couple arguing all we can do is try and get them to seek help. That's all.

"But with someone trained in the social scene along, they can give almost immediate attention to the problem and also carry on with the follow-up visits to see if relations are progressing."

Burton admits that at times a uniform — especially if it's a younger constable—may cause the "battling couples" to say: "What the heck do you know."

"This new concept—for us at least—takes it out of the police station and puts it in the hands of the poeple who are responsible—the social services," he said.

At present community workers Shirley Wakeham and Sheila Bell, who cover the Vic West, Esquimalt and View Royal areas, ride the cars most weekends. As well, some of the social workers from the Vic West and Esquimalt offices also go out on a volunteer basis but not on a regular stint.

Discussions are still going on and it is hoped that in the near future this will be part of the social worker's "day."

Chief Burton stressed that the policeman will still be the first one to assess the situation. He will enter the house and call a social worker if necessary.

Burton said his constables are taking training at the police college in Vancouver in how to handle such situations.

There is another aspect of the program which Burton and the social services staff would like to see incorporated.

If it can be done, Burton would like to see "tickets" issued in the case of family or juvenile cases. The summons would force the person or persons "within a set time period" to consult either a member of the social services team or any other appropriate agency.

Burton said the numbers of calls dealing with "family" or social cases is increasing tremendously and there is no way the police alone can handle the problem.

He cited the case of a woman who called the Esquimalt station 30 times in one day.

"This is an extreme but it points up the problem."

The police, added Burton, will still be involved to investigate law-breaking in a dispute "but with us and the social team working together it will be a better utilization of manpower and a better service to the people we serve here."

So if you see any of Esquimalt's four cars with a woman in the front seat beside the policeman, she's not being arrested. She's there to cut down and hopefully to prevent an arrest for some troubled man, woman or child.

$50M Bond Issue For B.C. Railway

A $50 million bond issue for B.C. Railway was authorized by the provincial cabinet last week.

Cabinet orders made public today showed the 25-year bonds will carry an interest rate of 10.4 per cent payable half-yearly.

Also included in the orders is a readjustment of salaries for directors of the Mediation Services Commssion.

Director Roy Macdonald will receive a salary of $28,600, retroactive to Oct. 1, 1974. His salary had been $27,600, so he will receive about $1,250 in retroactive pay.

Assistant directors Gus Leonidas and Clark Gilmour will receive $28,000 retroactive to April 1, 1975, up from $26,000.

$500,000 For Empress Changes

The Empress Hotel will spend $500,000 to renovate 150 rooms and make alterations to the kitchen of its Garden Cafe, hotel manager Ted Balderson said today.

The work is scheduled to be completed before summer. New carpets, drapes and bedspreads are being purchased for the rooms along with new lamps and other small pieces.

Alterations to the cafe kitchen are designed to speed up the service. A new dishwasher will be purchased for $30,000.

The hotel normally spends between $200,000 and $300,000 per year on renovations.

Still on the drawing boards are plans for a swimming pool and expansion for parking but no decision has been made. It might be some years before money becomes available for those two projects, Balderson said.
